

Representatives of Business Firms To Interview Students This Month

Representatives of several business firms will visit the University campus this month to interview students interested in employment.

Following is a schedule of visits released by Karl W. Onthank, graduate placement director.

(Unless otherwise indicated, further information is available at the Graduate Placement office, 216 Emerald.)

Tuesday, May 2

A Portland loan company seeking two men for training this spring and summer will hold interviews from 2:30 to 5 p.m. Only single candidates will be considered. Background knowledge in accounting and economics is desired.

The company's training program offers the chance to achieve a managership within two or three years.

Wednesday, May 3

Representatives of the Easterling Silver Co will hold a general meeting at 9 a.m., followed by individual interviews. George Stuart, vice-president of the concern, accompanied by Frank Mangin and W. E. Watson, will explain the company's training program and conduct interviews.

The Placement Office asks students planning to attend the general session to file their names with the office immediately.

Thursday, May 4

Students of all classes—freshman through senior—may attend a forum on life insurance career opportunities at 3:30 p.m. in 106 Commerce. W. C. Schuppel, chairman of the board, Standard Insurance Co., will address the group.

Purpose of the meeting is to provide more information about life insurance work, not to recruit employees.

Only single women from 5 foot 2 inches to 5 foot 7 inches weighing from 100 to 135 pounds will be considered. Vision of 20-30 without Credentials will be required, and should be filed with the Placement Office immediately.

Special Summer Courses Offered At Oregon College of Education

Oregon College of Education in Monmouth will be offering 11 courses in special education during the summer session, June 20 to Aug. 11, Dr. Louis Kaplan, director, has announced.

Three visiting experts will join the faculty to teach special work in speech correction and therapy, mental testing, clinical problems of child development, psychology of family life, diagnostic and remedial techniques of reading, applied mental hygiene, and the study of the handicapped child.

Dr. C. DeWitt Boney, principal of the Nassau School, East Orange, New Jersey, and professor of education at Rutgers, will direct a workshop in language arts. Four courses in the area of speech will be offered by J. J. Thompson, speech therapist of the Pasadena, Calif. public schools.

Robert Lilly, clinical psychologist at Lancaster Boys' School, Lancaster, Calif., will lecture on psychology.

The Guidance Clinic will be in operation, and will offer students opportunity to work with children in a clinical situation by study through a one-way screen.

Accreditation by the State Department of Education has been granted the special education program. Teachers can gain certification in this field by summer study and meeting additional requirements.

Retailers to Hold Conference Here

University President H. K. Newburn and Eric Stanford, retail store executive, will speak at a May 14 banquet opening the annual conference of the Oregon Retail Distributors' Institute.

"How to Solve Some Current Retail Problems" will be discussed by Stanford before an audience of Oregon merchants.

Stanford is secretary-treasurer of the I. Magnin stores, a women's wearing apparel concern with offices in San Francisco. He was formerly controller of Olds, Wortman, and King in Portland and of the Boston Store, Milwaukee, Wis.

All Oregon merchants have been invited to attend the conference, which will include the banquet in the Osburn Hotel and all-day meetings May 15 on the University campus.
