

'Naturally I Won The Election,' Says Association President

"Naturally I won the election," Hairy Mole-hill, newly elected Association for the Improvement of Canasta Playing at the University President, asserted last night, sandwiching in time between deals of an impromptu Canasta game held in celebration on the lawn of his Spanish Hacienda.

"These things are always very certain," the former member of the Bridge club commented, "if you run the election right." He made this remark after picking himself up from under the table where he had been playfully thrown by one of his association brothers who accused Molehill of dealing from the bottom of the deck.

Dick Helped

"This campaign was a snap," he said, popping his garter for effect. "I had the invaluable help of that master politician Joseph Dick. It just goes to show how good a democracy is," Molehill added, making a mountain of a statement, "when a poor, little, uninformed, fellow from the wilds of Eastern Oregon can come down to the big city of Eugene and pick up the ways of fast politicians rapidly enough to win an election."

About the secret fraternity BCOFTSOCC (Bridge Club Organization for the Suppression of Canasta Clubs) Molehill said, "I hope everyone will let bygones be bygones. We're starting out with a clean slate now."

Candidate Chances

The BCOFTSOCC had backed a candidate in the election who withdrew at the last minute because of ill health.

After this interview, Molehill turned to a record crowd of about five persons who had come to congratulate him. He shook hands with two or three of them before retiring to let his arm rest.

'Oh, Dem Golden Clippers,' For Co-ed Toe at Carson Hole

Mrs. Gwenevere Parsnip-pit announced the arrival of 375 gold-plated toe-nail clippers for use next year in the shrub-laden University mansion, Carson Hole.

The expensive gadgets will be installed in the bottom drawer of each co-eds individual dressing table, the official commented.

"All the lucky girl has to do is gently push two dollar bills through the slot, and this new convenience will be at her disposal," she purred.

These innovations in "snappy clipping" were obtained by the department of dormitories from Lower Slobovia, and are hand made by a cigar store Indian.

Because of the tremendous expense in transportation, (they were shipped individually to prevent breakage), dormitory fees must be raised slightly for the next 57 years, the matron revealed.

"Due to circumstances arranged by our control, dorm inmates will be charged $227 per month, with 29 cents extra for clipper charges," she promised.

"We feel that this tremendous bargain, which lowered the price of the clippers because of the Slobovian revolution, will help no end to keep our co-eds satisfied and snipped," she bubbled.

French Cooker Plans Eating Session Tonight

Craps Sousset, well-known French artist, will discuss "Eating for Joy," in an open session at the Anchor, at 7 p.m. tonight.

Monsewer Sousset, who two weeks ago gave a demonstration of cooking seaweed in sour cream, is recovering from food poisoning and will eat only horseradish at tonight's dinner.

Moms to Melt Unless Claimed

Business Manager Slim Blunders of the Oregon Mothers Club issued a threat today that 500 Mothers now sitting in the Student Union office of the new Erb Memorial Union will be donated to the Homecoming bonfire committee for next fall if they are not picked up by their owners immediately.

Among the owners Blunders has discovered 5-6 of a pint, three packages of chewing-gum, and an incredible number of students.

The current request out of the manager's nest is:

Please stop using your roommate's mother and pick up your own. Any student who can't find themselves a mother is asked to go to the Infirmary for a reasonable facsimile. Or, just tear off the top of your mother-in-law and mail the rest in, and we'll send you a brand new mother by return mail.
