

From Canby to St. Helens What's Happening In Your Hometown

Compiled from Oregon newspapers by the Daily Emerald

Hollis Bull was elected first chairman of the new Covered Wagon Boy Scout district which was organized last week at a meeting in Condon of scouts from Gilliam, Wheeler and Morrow counties.

Mrs. Cora Booher has received no official word regarding her son, Howard Moore, since his last letter August 28. She had received a telegram from Howard's wife in Japan that a friend had told her Howard was missing.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Knox have moved to their new ranch home west of Condon.

Coos Bay . . .

William McLean, instructor at Marshfield High School, has announced his candidacy for major. He has been on the city council. Others running for the post are C. C. Farr and the incumbent, Robert Marsden Jr.

Exterior of the Wilson building on Main Street has been completely refinished with white cement stucco.

Lynn McDonald, Forest Grove Future Farmers of America vice president, was elected to the office of treasurer of the Northwestern district of Future Farmers last week. McDonald and Walter Buckley will leave October 6 for Kansas City, Missouri, to attend the FFA convention.

Hillsboro . . .

Fixtures were being removed this week from the former Lebanon Coffee Shop and remodeling of the building will begin immediately, according to Charles Robbins, new lessee. The building will soon house the Cent-Wise Drug Store.

McMinnville . . .

Work on the city water reservoir No. 1 was completed last week and the new unit was put into use, raising the total water capacity to 2,100,000 gallons. Work on No. 2 reservoir has been started.

Moro . . .

The Moro football team won its opening game with Fossil 28-0. The year 1950 in Sherman county so far has been colder and wetter than the average, figures indicate.

Newport . . .

Some 350 children attended the skating party held in observance of Kid's Day. Newport had its hottest day of the year Sept. 21—85 degrees. Lincoln County's quota in the community chest drive is $3600.

North Bend . . .

The highly controversial and long discussed matter of rezoning Broadway between Virginia and 17th in the Bangor district of North Bend is coming to a head. At a meeting last week the North Bend city council instructed the city attorney to prepare an ordinance establishing the district as a central commercial zone.

The Coos County Shrine club will have about $5000 to present to the Shrine Crippled Children's hospital as the result of the first Myrtle bowl football game.

Redmond . . .

The first frost since May hit the Redmond area, but the dubious honor of being the coldest spot in the county still went to Bend last week.

Redmond union high school at present is remaining in session, but is releasing 17-18 year old students to work in the potato harvest.

Sherwood . . .

Spurred by a letter from a Hillsboro serviceman in Korea citing the shortage of blood in that war theatre, Sherwood volunteer workers are conducting an intensive campaign to secure 150 pints of blood when the Red Cross Bloodmobile visits there Tuesday.

Two Sherwood hunters brought back a 120 pound forked horn deer with bow and arrows. They felled it from a distance of 100 feet with an arrow in the throat and one near the heart.

St. Helens . . .

The council voted last week to get tough with delinquent water users, and as a result, when water is turned off hereafter the home owner will have to increase his dispoit to $10 besides paying the $1 service charge.

The city council approved a request made by a delegation of property owners on River street to complete a paving project that would extend a hard surface road to the foot of the hill on Columbia street.

Peeping Tom May Receive Hot Welcome

All right, Pappy, get your gun! That seems to be the watchword at the University's Trailer Housing Project at 15th and Agate St.

Seems like the folks there have been having "Peeping Tom" troubles. Not just once—it's uncommon if a month goes by without someone reporting an interested if uninvited observer.

So far, these characters have proved to be fairly harmless. You could call them the run-when-you-beller variety. No matter who they are or what you call them, the folks down there have decided to put a stop to them.

Most any night, the solitary figure of Don "Colt 44" Pickens can be seen protecting a body's fundamental right of privacy.

If you happen to pass by that way some evening or in the smaller hours and decide to take a short cut through the court, it might be well to sing softly, hum, whistle, or otherwise make yourself known. 'Cuz if you don't the menfolks of the encampment might be roused out en masse. Woe be unto the stranger in their midst.

Series Features Foreign Students

The first of a series of presentations by foreign students from the campus was given before a joint PTA meeting in Roseburg Monday night.

Taking part were Finn Sigald of Denmark, Maurice Morello of France, and Wilfried Maeding of Germany. They were accompanied by James D. Kline, foreign student adviser from the University.

Topic of the discussion was "What Europe expects of the United States in promoting world understanding."

Kline stated that any interested group in the Eugene area or anywhere in Oregon is free to call on the foreign students for similar presentations. Arrangements for such programs are to be cleared through Kline.

Young Nicky Takes Over at Cal Game

Nicky Gelhausen, 11-year-old son of Herman Gelhausen, associate professor of voice, had the thrill of his young life when he was allowed to be waterboy at the Oregon-California game in Portland.

He got the job by applying to Coach Jim Aiken for it. There are two boys, Danny McCall being the other one, but Nicky was the only one to go to the Portland game.

What we want to know is, has his father taught him to sing "Water Boy"?

Money may be the root of all evil, but some mighty nice things grow out of it.

University Talent Featured on KOAC 'School of the Air'

Fifteen women of Dr. Robert Nye's public school music class are to sing in the KOAC School of the Air "Let's Sing, America" program from 1:15 to 1:45 p. m. Thursday.

Miss Maude Garnett, professor of public school music, will direct the group.

Students participating are Merilyn Moss, Marjorie Carlson, Jane Edgeworth, Margaret Reeve, Mary Hawkins, Sybil Hagen, Jeanette Holloway, Mary Frances Robinson, Lois Maier, Joan Cavey, Rose Zena Latta, Louise Leding, Georgia Dragich, Irene Philan, and Dolores Kletzing. The announcers and men participants will be announced next week.

National Program

This national program for school children has been at the University for nine years, sponsored by the KOAC School of the Air broadcast. Those who take part are juniors in public school music. This is a part of the General Extension Division.

It has been estimated that 50,000 school children from small schools sing with the program. At the end of the year the children sing in McArthur Court.

Folk Dance Group To Hold Meeting

The University folk and square dance group will meet for the first time this year from 8 to 9:30 p. m. Wednesday in Gerlinger Annex.

Meetings will be held regularly at this time for the rest of the year.

Miss Rosamond Wentworth, professor of physical education will direct the dancers.

Fashion Flashes

This year fashions again turned to the ever popular skirts and sweater with the traditional pearls and scarfs.

Sweaters have come in many new luscious colors such as Van Lou Peterson's Shepards Lavender cornsilk. Coffee mcreea is a color that is fast becoming a teenage standby.

Gold and Silver belts add so much to a girl's looks as do the bright flowers pinned on the blouse, give a girl's appearance that extra swish of color.
