

Yanks Win Second On DiMaggio's Homer

SHIBE PARK, PHILADELPHIA, (AP)—Joe DiMaggio lined a 10th inning home run into the upper left field stands Thursday to give the New York Yankees' Allie Reynolds a 2-1 win over the Phils' Robin Roberts in the second world series game.

It was the favored American League champs' second straight victory in the best-of-seven series before 32,660 fans.

The Yankee Clipper's belt, his seventh in nine world series, broke up a fine battle between the Yankee fire-balling righthander and 24-year-old Roberts, the Phils first 20-game winner since Grover Cleveland Alexander.

First Extra Inning

The game Phils carried the struggle down to the last out. Pinchhitter Jack Mayo was on second base with the potential tying run when Reynolds breezed a third strike past Dick Sisler to end the first extra inning series game since the 1946 opener.

It was the second straight day that Sisler had been struck out to end the game.

Although nicked for 10 hits along the route, Roberts was able to bear down so well in the clutches that the Yanks popped up his pitches all afternoon. They didn't hit a ball on the ground until the eighth.

Still Reynolds, with an efficient seven-hitter, well deserved his third straight world series success. He never has lost one of these big money games in October.

Roberts in a Jam

The Yanks had Roberts in a jam in the first but failed to score. They pushed over a run in the second on a walk to Gerry Coleman, a single by Reynolds and an infield single to shortstop Granny Hamner by Gene Woodling. Woodling's hit drove in the run.

And that was all the Yanks were to get until Casey Stengel's "Big Fellow" smashed a Ribert's Pitch into the seats leading off the tenth inning.

The Phils, shut out yesterday by Vic Raschi in the 1-0 opener, hadn't scored a series run in 13 innings until they finally moved Mike Goliat home in the fifth. It was their first series run, in fact, since their last appearance in 1915.

Goliat singled on a bouncer toward second that Coleman had no license to stop. The Yank second baseman made a sensational play to knock down the ball but threw wildly to first with no chance to get the runner. Fine back-up work by Yogi Berra kept Goliat on first base.

Trying to bunt him over, Roberts popped to Reynolds but Eddie Waitkus moved Goliat all the way to third with a bad hop single over Coleman's head into short right field. The ball skidded off the edge of the infield grass and careened wildly over Coleman's head for a single.

Ashburn tied it up with a fly to Gene Woodling, so deep that there was no chance for a play on Goliat at the plate.

Two fine double plays, the first of the series, stifled Phillie threats in the eighth and ninth inning.

The series scene shifts to New York's Yankee Stadium Friday for the third, fourth and fifth games

Series Shorts

PHILADELPHIA (P)—The Philadelphia Phillies ran their World Series losing streak to six straight Thursday—six straight one-run defeats. Of course, the streak covers more than a generation—35 years.

Joe DiMaggio has been no ball of fire at the plate in the last two World Series. He didn't get a hit until the final game of the 1949 series against Brooklyn. He didn't get one in this series until the 10th inning Thursday. The Phils would prefer not to discuss the hit. When last seen, the ball was vanishing somewhere in the left-center field stands and for the second straight day, superb pitching by the Phillies was not enough for victory.

* * *

The last previous extra inning game was played five years ago. Like this one, it was a 10-inning affair on Oct. 6, 1946, when the Boston Red Sox nosed out the St. Louis Cards, 3-2.

* * *

Fans leaving the ball park forgot to look back. It may have been the last time they walked out of a world series game at this park until next year. Bob Carpenter, the Phillies' head, is not likely to agree. . . But the undeniable truth is this: guys who don't hit don't win ball games.

SPORTS STAFF

Jim Knight, Desk
Pete Cornacchia
Clyde Fahlman
Bill Gurney

if five are necessary. Lefty Ed Lopat (18-8) will work for the heavily favored Yanks. Sawyer was undecided between Bob Miller (11-6) or Lefthander Ken Heintzelman.

R H E

N. Y.010 000 000 1—2 10 0
Phil. 000 010 000 0—1 7 0

Rain and Soggy Turf May Hamper Teams

One of the greatest aerial circuses on the Pacific Coast comes to Eugene tomorrow afternoon when Montana's Grizzlies invade Hayward Field for Oregon's initial home football contest of the season. The boys from Missoula will be after their third straight win while the Webfoots will be working to snap a seven-game losing streak.

Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Saturday's clash will be the fifth between the two schools. The first meeting was in 1928, when the Webfoots grabbed a 31-6 win—the only time Montana has been able to score. It was 13-0 for Oregon in 1934, 38-0 in 1940, and 34-0 in 1946.

Heavy rains this week have threatened to weaken the attack of both Montana and the host Oregon eleven. Grizzly Coach Ted Shipkey has no desire to cruise down a river on a soggy afternoon, for considerable of his happier moments this year have been in thoughts of one Quarterback Bob Kingsford.

Kingsford to Bauer

Rated by many as the best passer in the Northwest, Kingsford has been all but responsible for wins over Idaho and Eastern Washington. The 175-pound senior's target most of the time has been End Ray Bauer, a 187-pound senior who holds the Pacific Coast Conference pass completion record. Bauer's receiving ability is at least equalled by his defensive work.

Webfoot Coach Jim Aiken won't be so completely dependent upon the air lanes for a good Saturday night's sleep, but a soggy turf certainly won't be helpful to his Tiny Trio consisting of Tommy Edwards, Hal Cuffel, and Bobo Moore.

The Oregons at least have had the benefit of a week's practice in nearly steady rain. While Quarterbacks Earl Stelle and Hal Dunham have been hurling successful passes consistently through the rain, Aiken also has provided heavy drills for his backs—in search for better chances in the mud.

Fullbacks Are 'Mudders'

Sharing most of the ball-carrying in the mud this week have been two fullbacks, Carl Ervin and Ron Lyman. Ervin was switched to the power post after starting the season at right half.

While the Webfoots displayed a fairly good defense against California's vaunted running attack this past weekend, they were guilty of several expensive lapses against the Bear's extra-feature passing. The situation must at least be reversed Saturday if Oregon expects to win over the visitors, who seldom needed more than three or four plays in their scoring drives against Idaho.

Aiken has concentrated on pass-defense sessions this week in an effort to nullify the Kingsford-Bauer threat, sessions which the Oregon coach described as "the most satisfactory scrimmages we've had this year."

Still at Bottom

The Webfoots will go into the contest resting at the bottom of the Pacific Coast Conference standings, a position they will retain regardless of the outcome of the meeting. Montana is competing in its first year out of the conference, after requesting and quickly receiving permission to leave the loop.

The battle Saturday will provide an opportunity for two linemen to settle boyhood grievances. Webfoot Center Dean Hanson, a

(Please turn to page five)

IM Schedule

| Time | Place |
|--|-------|
| 3:50, IM Field, Phi Sigs vs. Sherry Ross | |
| 3:50, Field 1, Alpha vs. Phi Kaps. | |
| 3:50, Field 2, ATO vs. Hunter | |
| 3:50, Field 3, Phi Psis vs. Yeoman | |
| 4:45, IM Field, Sammies vs. Kappa Sigma | |
| 4:45, Field 1, French vs. Stan Ray. | |
| 4:45, Field 2, Betas vs. Campbell Club | |
| 4:45, Field 3, Lambda Chi vs. Pi Kaps. | |

Newland Predicts. . .

Russ Newland's football selections:
Friday
C. of Pacific over Denver by 6.
Saturday
California over Penn. by 10.
Washington over UCLA by 1.
Stanford over Oregon State by 14.
USC over Wash. State by 15.
Oregon over Montana by 7.

People who don't waste time wondering what makes the world go around are the ones who keep it going.

He's Set for Montana

By Bill Gurney

Right in the middle of the line; that's where this game of football is really played. Ray Lung, letterman varsity guard, is a man who sees a lot of rugged action at that unglamorous position. Which is why Ray is one grizzer you Webfoot fans should know better.

This is his senior year and his third varsity season. Last year he developed fast and played 289 minutes as a defensive guard, making several all-oponent teams. This season he operates in both the offensive and defensive lineups, and against UCLA even tried his hand at punting.

Ray carries a solid 202 pounds on his 5 foot 9 inch frame. He has an explosive charge on defense, and is a fine blocker. It looks as though Mr. Lung is all set to capitalize on his experience and do big things in Aiken's line.

Law Is Goal

A Fresno, California boy, Ray gave as a reason for coming to Oregon:

"I wanted to play against California."

Here at Eugene, he is an Economics major with a 2.7 grade average. Law School is his goal, however he grinned and added, "If I don't get drafted."

If he does, it won't be the first time. Ray has spent 22 months out of his 23 years in service of his country. Part of this time was spent at the King's Point, New Jersey Merchant Marine Academy.

Since this was wartime, he had little opportunity to continue on with football following his three years at guard for Fresno High School.

Along with his teammate Gus Knickrehm, Ray remembers last year's Washington game as a knockdown and dragout struggle in which he really played football.

"Just Can't Lose"

On the campus, Ray is an Order of the O man and a Beta Theta Pi.

During the summer he makes ice cream for the Arden farms in Fresno, and likes to hunt and fish whenever he can.

"What is your prediction for the Montana game?" was a question that put Ray on the spot. There was no hesitation.

"We just can't think about losing it," said he, sounding very much as though he meant just that.

LETS GO TO CABLES

(DRIVE IN)

BILL RILEY

AND HIS

ORCHESTRA

DANCING EVERY SATURDAY NIGHT

DANCING 9:30-12:30

WILLAMETTE PARK

U-SAVE

AUTO SUPPLY

Something NEW!!

Something DIFFERENT!!

An auto supply store with the ACCESSORIES you want for your car! The most complete line in Oregon!

- DISTRIBUTOR FOR DEEP-TONE PORTER & SMITTY MUFFLERS DUALS ALSO
- FULL LINE OF SPEED EQUIPMENT INCLUDING EDELBROCK, EDMUNDS & OFFENHAUSER

1198 Willamette

Phone 4-2441

It's LATER than you THINK!!

HEAR THE

VARSITY GOSPEL TEAM

- FRED MUELLER-Captain One of Oregon's Amateur Golf Champions
- BOB WHEELLESS An Outstanding Trumpeter
- SHIRLEY ANDERSON Golden Voice Contralto
- CARLSON SISTERS Cello and Piano Artists

90 Sparkling Moments of Inspiration, Music and Challenge

Saturday Nite, October 7, 7:45

WILSON AUDITORIUM

12th & Jefferson

Eugene Y.F.C. Rally

Joe Brill, Director

"DON'T MISS IT"