

Campus Merry-Go-Round

Summer marriages were Joan Abbett and Dave Van Zunt; Bev Grace and Theta Chi Dick Kramer; Pat Maddison and Jom Reynolds.

Seven of the Tri Deltas who are temporarily staying at the ADPi house were pleasantly surprised this week when their hosts gave a fireside in their honor.

Joan Hite returned from Portland with the Delt pin of Paul Barrow.

The Tri Deltas, whose house is still undergoing construction work, were entertained by the Deltas at a Wednesday night dessert. It is expected that the sorority house will be ready for the Bunion Derby tonight.

A large replica of the Pi Kap pin was made by house adviser Bruce Shaw and several members as an identifying sign for the house front porch. It is outlined with electric light bulbs to represent the pin's jewels.

Formally engaged this summer were John Musgrove and Nancy Rusher who is in nurses training at the Portland Medical School.

Bob Hilton is the latest Sig Ep to enlist in the Army, while Mel Leighton, according to latest reports, is stationed at Fort Ord, Calif.

This year marks the 100th year of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. In recognition of this and in honor of their Centennial convention in Philadelphia, Vaughn Monroe recorded and sent to every chapter a recording of the Phi Kap Sweetheart song.

The Skull house played host to "Puddles," the UO mascot, after his trying ordeal at UCLA. When asked for a statement for this column his only statement was an indignant "Quack."

Closing Hours Decision Near

The student affairs committee will meet next Thursday to discuss 1 a. m. closing hours on Friday nights. Final decision on the matter will be made by the committee, according to Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs and members of the committee.

As stated in Thursday's Emerald, the committee may decide to grant the late closing hours temporarily in cases where such a move is needed, if they cannot decide on a blanket policy for all Friday nights.

Previously, the ASUO council and the student union board put themselves on record as favoring the late closing hours, but the student affairs committee was not able to act on the measure because of the absence of one of its members, Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs, during her recent illness.

We've Had It; Ratio Goes Up

According to the latest registration figures released by the registrar's office, the ratio of men to women on the campus has changed since Thursday's figures. There are now 2.08 men to every woman.

Total registration is now 4,947 which is an 8% decrease under last year. The number of new students enrolled has increased 6% over last year while a 15% decrease is noted in the number of returning students.

The sophomore class has the honor of being the largest with 1,164 members. They are followed by the freshman with 1,162; the seniors with 993; and the juniors with 864.

In the various schools on campus, the College of Liberal Arts shows the greatest increase, 38%, while the School of Education has a 37% increase. The law school showed the greatest drop, 71%, as compared with last year.

Policy Changes; College Men Draft-Eligible

Every male college student, except these in reserve status of the army, navy, or marines, is eligible for the draft, Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, stated Thursday.

In line with a recent change from preceding policy a college student is in exactly the same status as any other male eligible for the draft. He is not to request a certificate from his school prior to receiving his induction orders.

Sign-up Incomplete Until Cards Filed

A number of students who have paid their registration fees have not turned their cards in to the registrar's office. Until they do, they are not officially registered for fall term.

The last day to turn cards in is next Monday, October 9.

Clifford L. Constance, registrar, reminded students Thursday that the same deadlines and penalties apply to students who have only completed part of their registration as to those who have done no registering at all.

Song Queens Set for Rally

Announcement of the five new Oregon song queens is scheduled for the pre-game rally tonight, according to Jim Fenimore, rally board chairman.

Over 60 girls were present for the tryouts Thursday afternoon and even more were expected for the evening session. The large turnouts necessitated semi-finals and finals today to pick the five girls who will lead songs this season. Present plans call for the girls first appearance together at the Montana game Saturday.

'Pigger' May Disappear From Vocabulary

By Larry Hobart

The word "pigger" may disappear from the college vocabulary according to the indication of today's poll.

It seems that men and women would like to sit together at athletic contests, even if it means breaking an old tradition. At least that was the general opinion expressed by students who were asked the question, "Do you favor the abolishing of segregation of men and women rooters at football games?"

Lewis Eggert—sophomore in architecture and allied arts—"Make room for progress! Let's break the tradition."

Austin Peterson—senior in business administration—"I would like to see the rule abolished as I am married and could then sit with my wife on the student's side of the field. Men would be less apt to swear if sitting with women."

Illa Edwards—freshman in education—"I think that the rule should be abolished. The girls could still sit together, but girls could date and they might give the boys better spirit."

Gary Sems—junior in pre-med—"The inhibitions caused by sitting with women would lessen the spirit."

Men and women should sit in separate sections."

Anne Cunningham—graduate student in psychology—"Abolishing segregation at games is a fine idea. It might get rid of those weird, shrill screams from the women at games. Of course, I'm not a screamer myself."

Dick Lee—junior in pre-law—"I'd like to sit with the women, but I hate to see the tradition go."

Peggy Mainer—sophomore in Sociology—"I think that men should sit with women. It would promote more spirit if they mix."

Betty Jo Berannon—senior in psychology—"I think more girls would go to games if they left it the way it is now. There might be better spirit though. It's worth a try at least."

Bill Clichlow—senior in business administration—"There should be three sections—men, women and a section for piggers. That system works at other schools."

Dixie Lucas—freshman in liberal arts—"It seems rather juvenile to have to separate men and women. I think that abolishing segregation would be a good idea."

Who Lives Next Door?

them alone and they'll leave you alone. But the chances are, once you really get to know them, you'll find them okay.

In the meantime, count your blessings. You're in a fine new house with improvements that you couldn't find anywhere else but in America. And how did America get that way? Because of a lot of people with even funnier sounding names than the ones your neighbors have. Names like Kosciusko, Pulaski, Haym Salomon.

Make sure that you are not spreading rumors against a race or a religion. Speak up, wherever you are, against prejudices, and work for better understanding. Remember that's being a good American.

● What's wrong, Joe? You finally got that new house, didn't you? You ought to be real happy. But you look like you ate something that didn't agree with you.

Worried about the people next door? Why? Different religion? Different sounding names?

So what?

Stop worrying, Joe. You'll find them real Americans. You may even get to like them. If you don't, that's all right too. Just leave
