

Dreams of Pigger's Staff Haunted by Illegible Names

By Marge Elliott

Names, names, names! Students on the Pigger's Guide staff literally dream about names, and have nightmares about the ones that weren't written legibly.

The Pigger's Guide, a student directory, carries just about every little thing that a student needs to know. Telephone numbers are listed for offices, living organizations, honoraries, and religious groups.

Hours are listed for the Co-op, library, and final examinations. The directory even covers traditions, songs, and an academic calendar.

One section lists the name of every student, his home address, campus address and telephone number. The back of the booklet gives data on the faculty.

Out Nov. 1

The staff begins working when school starts. They hope to have this year's directory out by Nov. 1.

During registration most students printed their names on blue cards to be used by the Pigger's Guide. . . . the rest merely scribbled their names. Thus, the first step in compiling the pigger's book is the main problem.

The staff must take two steps to remedy the situation. First they check with the student's other registration cards to see if they can decipher any of them. If this doesn't do the trick, they simply spend many hours of their week at the telephone.

Many Steps

Then it's a matter of putting all the names in alphabetical order.

er. After this they wait for the names to come back from the printer's to be checked. Finally the printer checks the corrections and all is done.

Meanwhile the business side is knocking on doors downtown selling ads. This year they brought in $700. They have already received proof on it, and all that remains is checking again with advertisers and handing it into the printers again.

Cover A Secret

The cover of the Pigger's Guide was done by Curt Finch, who was appointed art editor. Exactly what the cover will look like is a secret.

Virginia Wright, editor, heads a staff consisting of Edith Kading, social editor; Margaret Powne, information editor; Curt Finch, art; and Pat Choat and Sally Thurston, executive editors. The business side is in the hands of Bruce Wallace. Fred Baltz is advertising editor.

These students work four nights a week at their office in the Student Union, and at other times during the day.

Promotion Committee Head Petitions Needed

An additional call for petitions for the Homecoming promotion committee has been issued by Kay Kuckenberg, committee chairman. Students are needed for work on posters, flying speeches and other types of promotion.

Petitions are to be turned into Kay Kuckenberg, Delta Gamma, before 5 p. m. Wednesday.

Student Union Post Office Sets Opening Soon

The new branch post office in the Student Union should be in operation within 10 or 12 days, according to Eugene Postmaster Ethan Newman. All the equipment has been installed, with the exception of the screen line: the wire grill work and counters housing the stamp, parcel post, and general delivery windows.

"When do we open, it will be with a temporary screen line," Newman said. "Our permanent one is en route, but Mr. I. I. Wright, physical plant superintendent, is having a temporary one made for us."

The new post office will be a regular branch of the main Eugene office, he continued. It will serve the campus and the entire east side of Eugene, starting from Ferry Street.

According to an Illinois doctor, some girls can't stand kissing. They should try it sitting down.

Portland AP Chief Opens 'Meet the Press' Series

Floyd Lansdon, chief of the Associated Press bureau in Portland, will be the first journalist featured in "Meet The Press," an informal question and answer session sponsored by the School of Journalism.

This first meeting, open to all, will be at 4 p. m. Thursday in the Student Union, room to be indicated on the bulletin board.

Drawing from his range of experience, Lansdon will answer questions and present his ideas on journalism of the past three decades.

Tom King, SDX president, will MC the first session. Coffee and doughnuts will be provided (Dutch treat) right in the room.

Mr. Lansdon began his journalism career on his high school bi-weekly, The Pepperbox. He gained further experience on several Idaho papers, and edited the University of Idaho Argonaut in 1925.

After working on various papers in Idaho, he became night editor for the Associated Press in Spokane in 1928. He was promoted to his present position in 1939.

Neuberger to Talk To Speech Group

State Senator Richard L. Neuberger will address speech students of the symposium group Oct. 17. His topic will be "The Columbia Valley Administration."

The entire group will do research on the C. V. A. under the program set up by Herman Cohen and W. A. Dahlberg, forensics directors.

Square Dance Set For Co-rec Night

Square dances called by Rosamond Wentworth, professor of physical education, highlight the recreational facilities available for Co-rec night, 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Friday in Gerlinger Hall.

This is to be a series of no-date evenings sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association.

Thousands of hands work when you say "fill 'er up"

Most folks probably think of a corporation like ours in terms of a name... "Standard Oil Company of California."

Actually, a company is people... people working together.

In our case, 27,900 men and women work to bring you the products you buy from us. They each contribute special skills and abilities, live their own lives in many different places. You'll find their houses down the block, pass them on the street, sit next to them at a movie.

In the extremely competitive oil business, it takes a lot of people—working with many expensive tools—to bring you good products at reasonable prices. For crude oil is a bulky, sticky liquid that's hard to handle. Taking oil from the ground, refining it, transporting it and pumping it into your car or oil burner is a continuous job... a job that can be done most efficiently when many people pool many talents within a coordinated organization.

That's why thousands of hands work at Standard to bring you good products... and to make sure oil flows in steady supply to America's planes, tanks, trucks and ships in times of national emergency.

Your progress and oil progress go hand in hand
