

Foreign Student Reception Set for Wednesday Night

More than 150 persons have received invitations to attend a reception for foreign students at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Student Union.

James D. Kline, foreign student adviser, announced Friday the reception will be open to all University students who wish to attend.

Kline announced that, proportionately, Oregon now has the highest enrollment of foreign students in any major American school. Nearly 100 are registered this term, and the roster makes a veritable United Nations.

Among students from all parts of the world, are students from occupied countries, including Japan, Germany and Austria, who were assisted in reaching this country by the United States Army and State department. The Institute of National Education guided the University in selecting students from other countries.

Nearly every religious faith is represented on campus—Mohammedan, Buddhist, Hindu, Sikh, Jewish, Protestant and Catholic.

Conscious of the fact that Oregon now is educating as many foreign students as many other schools, Kline announced a community-wide assistance group is being organized, to be known as the Foreign Student Friendship Foundation.

Of foreign students on the campus, between 14 and 20 will need some financial assistance. To meet this need, the foundation will be asked to raise between $3,200 and $5,000.

Kline reports many foreign students are still having trouble orienting themselves to American life. At the class for foreign students, Kline has found that newcomers living in fraternity and sorority houses are bothered by a few American institutions.

"What is a hack? Why do the older students hack the freshmen? What is a date?", are among the questions asked.

Kline said Wednesday's reception will be part of the foundation's efforts to acquaint foreign students and Americans.

Browsing Room Offers Relaxation

Want to relax with a good book? Try the newly located Student Union Browsing Room, now more comfortable than ever.

Situated on the second floor past Taylor Lounge, the Browsing Room provides a convenient rest between classes.

"Magazines, murder mysteries, current novels, and even a copy of the University theater production, "Born Yesterday," are available to while away that extra hour between classes," stated Miss Bernice Rise, Browsing Room librarian.

Among Browsing Room projects for the year are the lecture series, next of which is Wednesday, featuring M. B. Ross, professor of architecture and O. M. Willard, professor of English, who will review "Sacheverell Sitwell."

Also sponsored are the house librarian collections and the Josephine Evans Harpam Cup which is awarded to the living organization promoting the best librarian program within its house.

Browsing Room hours for the year are Monday thru Friday, 12 noon until 5:30 p.m. and 6:30 to 10 p.m.; Sunday, 2 to 9 p.m. The Browsing Room is open to students and the general public.

Art Gallery Calls For Student Help

Students interested in working in the art gallery as arrangers for campus and traveling collections may petition to the Student Union Cultural Committee, chairman Barbara Bates announced.

Work in art galleries or museums is a good but not necessary qualification, Miss Bates announced.

Petitions are due 5 p.m. Thursday in room 301 of the Student Union. They may be picked up at the same location.

Seabeck Reunion

A "Seabeck Reunion" will be held at 4 p.m. Tuesday at the YWCA, Gerlinger. Seabeck is the Regional "Y" camp in Washington.

Any women who have been to Seabeck either in college or high school may attend, Jackie Wilkes, YWCA conference chairman, explained.
