

Ducks Expect Trouble From Galloping Gaels

By Pete Cornacchia

A band of St. Mary's Gaels who haven't even trotted this season are expected to make a lot of trouble Saturday for Oregon's Webfoots when they invade Hayward Field for a non-conference football clash.

The game will be the 10th meeting between the two schools, although only the second appearance for St. Mary's in Eugene.

The first trip made by the Gaels to the Oregon campus was in 1948, when they enlisted the aid of rain to badly scare a great Webfoot team before losing, 14-13. The loss two years ago was only the third to Oregon for the Moragamen, who hold six wins in the nine-game rivalry. Game time is 1:30.

Rain Again?

The setting of that meeting which nearly blocked the Cotton Bowl path for the Ducks in 1948 stands a very good chance of being the same at kickoff time Saturday. A drizzling rain soaked the turf throughout the dark afternoon in the earlier meeting, and the weatherman says it's "a flip of the coin" whether or not we get a storm tomorrow.

Little more than the Governor's Cup will hinge on the outcome of the battle, for each club has fared badly this season. St. Mary's has taken three wallopings in addition to a surprising tie with Georgia, while the Webfoots hold a non-conference victory over Montana but have failed in three conference outings.

Coach Jim Aiken's Ducks will be out to retain possession of the cup, which highlights the rivalry between the two elevens, for the third straight year.

The Preying Panther

One of the biggest obstacles between the Oregons and victory is expected to be one fullback John Henry Johnson. The explosive, line-crushing sophomore has been the loudest bell to ring for St. Mary's this season. Johnson has displayed average rushing ability but has been sensational on kickoff returns. The 200-pounder has returned 8 for 255 yards—an 31.9-yard average.

The remainder of the Gael starting backfield includes Quarterback Harry Atkinson, a southpaw who throws both long and short with pin-point accuracy; Left Half Dave Marcelli, the team's fastest starting back and an outstanding pass defender; and Right Half Frank Cassara, whose powerful leg drive has been used for extra yards when needed most.

Lack of Depth

The greatest problem for the T-formation Saints has been lack of depth, a shortage which has brought double duty for most of the first-stringers in this day of specialists.

Both teams will hold light workouts this afternoon. For the Webfoots, the session will conclude a week of heavy drills during which Aiken has experimented extensively in search of a satisfactory combination. The Duck mentor spent a considerable part of the week working on an all-sophomore backfield composed of Hal Dunham at quarter; Ron Lyman and Don Sloan, halfbacks; and Carl Ervin at fullback.

The Webfoots will enter the fray with no members of the squad on the injury list.

Frosh-Rook Clash In Corvallis Today

By Phil Johnson

Coach Bill Bowerman's Oregon Frosh gridders will meet the powerful Oregon State Rooks this afternoon at Corvallis.

If scores can be depended upon to furnish a comparison between rival squads (and they usually cannot), the Rooks are slight favorites by virtue of their 45-7 triumph over the Willamette Jayvees last week. The Oregon Frosh downed Willamette 32-6 last Friday.

The Duckling-Rook clash will be the second battle of the season for both teams. They will meet again on Saturday, Nov. 18, on Hayward Field.

Even-Stephen

Coach Bowerman's previous Duckling elevens have won exactly half of their encounters with the Rooks. In 1948, Bowerman's initial year as mentor of the Frosh, Sam Baker twice led the Rooks to victory over the Ducklings, who lost by scores of 32-14 and 34-7.

Bowerman's gridders returned payment with interest in 1949 by seizing easy 33-6 and 13-0 victories over the Corvallis squad. These welcome wins ended a six-game Rook victory string over Oregon and laid the foundation for a possible series of Duckling wins.

Since 1910

The earliest records of the rivalry between the two squads date back to 1910. Since then, the Frosh have won 27 games while losing 18 to the Rooks. Six ended in tie scores, including two scoreless deadlocks in 1932.

The Ducklings will employ the platoon system in today's game. The offensive backfield will consist of Quarterback John Spreen, Left Half Jack Morris, Right Half Bobby Marra, and Fullback Howard Hostetler. Morris, Marra, and Hostetler will also see action on the defensive unit, which has the
