

Campus Merry-Go-Round

At Pi Kappa Phi...

New initiates this term are Jack Gardner, Glen Garrett, and Bob Potts.

Married in Portland on Oct. 21 were Bill St. Hilaire, June graduate, and Shirley Crabb, ADPI.

At Alpha Phi and Sigma Nu...

A Halloween party for the fourth, fifth and sixth graders of Eugene is being given by the Alpha Phis and the Sigma Nus. The festivities will take place at the Sigma Nu house, and will include movies, a spook house, games and refreshments for the guests.

At ZTA...

Recently announced was the engagement of Marni Galla to Jim Johnson, Pi K A.

Married a short time ago were Yvonne Adams and George Campbell.

At ATO...

A new face around the ATO house is that of Pierre Pasquio, foreign student from France. Pierre holds the title of Champion Skier of Paris, his home city.

Former ATO national president, John MacGregor, will be a guest at the chapter house during Homecoming. MacGregor, class of '23, will speak at the Student Union dedication ceremonies. While student body president at the university, MacGregor instigated the initial drive for funds for construction of the Student Union.

At Alpha Gam...

A tea was held Sunday in honor of Mrs. S. Kent Roe, new house-mother, and Mrs. Mary Jane Grimes Flenner, national grand president. Mrs. Flenner was a weekend guest at the chapter house.

New pledge Mary Linn Cooper announced her recent pinning to Jim Smith, Sigma Nu.

At Sam...

Recently pinned were A D Pi Joan Safarik to Merv Hampton, and Dick Davis to Sue Milford, a senior at Lincoln High in Portland.

Engaged are Bob Rudolph and Terry Stein, from Portland.

Married last spring term were Ed Artzt and Ruth Martin; and Jerry Ginzberg and Rusty Pitcher were married this summer.

Entertainment for the fireside Oct. 27 was provided by Alan Barzman.

Delta Tau Delta...

A new Delt-Tri Delt pinning is that of John Kerns to Pat Johnson. Another recent Delt pin planted in the Delta Delta Delta house was that of Paul Barrow to Joanne Hite.

Black crepe behind the pins of all members of Delta Tau Delta recently was for the mourning of the recent death of alumnus Ernest Haycock. Haycock was a strong leader in Delt alumn activities in Portland for many years, and frequently honored the chapter with his visits.

Plans for the Delt house dance (Dec. 2) are completed. For an orchestra, the fellows aren't saying who they've hired, but they claim it's "one of the most popular bands on the Pacific Coast."

Initiated Sunday at the Shelter were Abbot Paine, Bob Miller, Claire Ingram, Jerry Snyder and Paul Muzzio. Recent new pledges are Bill Wilmot and Bob Friend.

UO Theater Production Called 'Excellent Show'

By Don Smith

It was a swell show the University Theater put on Friday and Saturday nights with its presentation of "Born Yesterday." Any deficiencies in the production, which plays Wednesday through Saturday of this week, could be credited mostly to the author, Garson Kanin, rather than to the theater.

Director Horace W. Robinson has worked his cast into a company that has high standards. There wasn't a bad performance in the show.

Joyce Sommerlade as Billie was the outstanding performer of the evening—her blank stares, fluttering eyelashes, mobile hips, and straightforward talk ("I got two mink coats. What more do you want?") pulled out every possible laugh.

Faber DeChaine brought one of the most repulsive characters to the University Theater stage in many a season. His Brock could be laughed and hated simultaneously. Occasionally DeChaine acted more like a dead end kid than a big time industrialist—but he was funny either way.

There was a message in this play—but for all the attention it gets from the audience it might just as well have been forgotten. Author Kanin's play is a little too long, and judicious cutting might have made things better. But as it is, whenever the dialogue gets a little too heavy, the audience can usually look to Miss Sommerlade for some reactions that would brighten up the face of the world's worst sourpuss.

The play's set, a Washington, D. C., hotel suite, is about the most garrish thing ever to hit the University Theater stage. Technical Director William E. Schlosser pulled no punches in giving his interpretation of a high-priced hotel room. After a while it gets to be tiresome on the eyes to look at the profusion of bright red, chartruse, the pink stairway covering, and the silver bannisters.

The comedy concerns a junk dealer who has made a fortune and goes to Washington to push through some legislation. To make things look better, he hires a reporter from the New Republic to educate his mistress—so she can act right in Washington society. The mistress gets too smart for the junk dealer, and finally louses up his plans to get the legislation pushed through.

Gordon Howard turned in an adept portrayal of Ed Devery, an attorney who drowns his conscience in liquor and $100,000 a year paycheck from Brock. Jim Blue was personable as Paul Verall, and Ken Olsen did a comic bit nicely as Eddie.

Virginia Howard was good as Mrs. Hedges; though Karl Harshbarger was forced to portray a stereotyped, high-collared, ribbon-tied, pince-nez Senator that his youthful qualities could not allow him to do.

Needed: One Model, Bring Own Teeth

Do you still have your own teeth? If they are all present, with few or no cavities, you can get a cast made of them by seeing W. S. Laughlin, professor of anthropology in his office in Condon Hall.

Laughlin wants a permanent cast of a perfect set of teeth to use as a demonstration model in classes. He will send the student who qualifies to Dr. Clifford R. Clarke, local dentist, who will make the cast.

The person who serves as a model will get a cast of his own teeth. Laughlin said the cast would be useful in case the person ever wants to replace some of his own teeth.
