

An Afternoon Retreat

—Courtesy The Oregonian
BAMBOO FURNITURE in black, green, and gray plaid provides the modern setting of the Dads' Lounge. The room may be combined with the Ballroom by means of electrically-controlled folding doors.

Student Union, Campus Nerve-Center, Coordinates Oregon Activities, Offices

Student offices and meeting rooms were gathered together in a common location this year with the opening of the Student Union. Formerly they have been in Emerald Hall, McArthur Court, and chance empty rooms.

On the north end of the third floor, the offices comprise what has been termed the "Squirrel Cage." The rooms, furnished with desks, chairs, and filing cabinets, have windows stretching the full length of the hall.

"Having student offices centrally located was a big step forward in coordinating all campus activities, Olga Yevtich, SU program director, pointed out. "It gives student leaders a better chance to meet and work together."

Officials Listed

Now working in the new offices are Miss Yevtich; Barry Mountain, president of the ASUO; Hank Pannian, SU Board Chairman; members of the SU Board Directorate, who are heads of the standing committees. They include Bill Carey, Dick Olson, Jane Wiggen, Dick Lee, Joe Proulx, and Barbara Bates.

Barbara Stevenson, president of Associated Women Students, and Bonnie Gienger, president of Women's Athletic Association, share one room, as do Panhellenic President Joan White and Inter-fraternity Council President Bill Harber.

Ruth Landry, Oregon editor, and Bob Schooling, business manager for the yearbook, have individual offices. Other offices include those of Frank Cothrell, president of the University Religious Council; Jackie Pritzen, of Heads of Houses, and Frank Fairly, of the Inter-dorm Council.

YMCA Moves In

The YMCA moved into rooms 318-319 this year from its former location on Kincaid St. Here are offices and a meeting room. Dave Swanson is president, and Jack Merner, executive secretary.

Chairman of special events, such as Homecoming or campus dances, have an office reserved for such occasions, available through the program director.

Temporarily two rooms are vacant for meetings, and another for filing purposes. The Directorate meets in room 313. Waller Room, 315, is the largest of the student meeting rooms.

Can Serve Refreshments

Organizations desiring to serve refreshments at their meetings will find rooms 334-335 ideal for their purpose. They are referred to as the "clam chowder" or "Cape Cod" rooms, since their wallpaper depicts scenes of "Fisherman's Wharf." Approximately 80 persons may be accommodated in the two rooms.

The Frank L. Chambers Memorial Union Board Room, where the SU Board meets is also located on the third floor.

—Courtesy Oregon Journal
THE CALIFORNIA RALLY takes over the Student Union Ballroom. Located on the second floor, the Ballroom is the student gathering place for campus dances, rallies, movies, and other events in which a large area is needed. Here, Coach Jim Aiken speaks to an estimated 1,500 to 2,000 students.

Union Offers Cultural Center

Two music listening rooms, a piano practice room, Browsing Room library, and art gallery compose the cultural area of the Student Union.

Now being displayed in the second-floor art gallery are 21 modern paintings by Charles H. Dietemann, instructor in industrial design at the University of Illinois.

The Adelaide Church Memorial Room, or Browsing Room as it is more generally called, is for recreational reading only. Located in the north section of the second floor, the room is an exact replica of the Browsing Room formerly in the University Library.

Listening Rooms Identical

In the Browsing Room area are the two music listening rooms, which are identically furnished. A light blue color scheme is carried out in overstuffed furniture, draperies, and rugs.

A sound-proof practice room, equipped with a grand piano, is also available for students to use. It, too, is in the Browsing Room area.

Mac Court Empty; SU Ballroom Full

Campus dances made a major transition this year from their familiar location in McArthur Court to the spacious Ballroom in the Student Union.

Located on the second floor, the Ballroom will accommodate 900 couples.

A built-in sound system in the ceiling, facilities for all types of lighting fixtures, and a complete stage for orchestra and speakers are some of the conveniences of the Ballroom.

Decoration Simple

Decorating for dances is simplified by burlap material lining the upper half of the walls, since the material will hold nails and tacks.

Two 16-millimeter movie projectors are located in the projection room above the Ballroom, making it possible for free movies to be held weekly. Assemblies and rallies are also staged here.

Directly north of the Ballroom is the Dads' Lounge, financed by the Oregon Dads' Club. Separated by electrically-controlled folding doors, the lounge may be combined with the Ballroom for increased capacity.

Bamboo Furniture Used

The lounge, decorated in black, green, and gray, is furnished with bamboo furniture. It has maple floors, as does the Ballroom, and gumwood walls.

East of the Ballroom are four individual rooms, which can also be combined with the main area.

These rooms, in which banquets may be held, are equipped with kitchen quarters. A hot-food cart will transport the food from the main kitchen.

Terraces on both the east and west of the Ballroom area can also be used for dances or other functions. An outside stairway leads directly to the west-side terrace.

Information, Candy In SU Main Lobby

Information, a small-scale confectionery, free coat checking, and telephones are services offered in the main lobby of the Student Union.

The information desk, where daily papers and magazines are available, is also the central lost and found department for the campus.

The coat-checking facilities have not yet been fully utilized, Olga Yevtich, SU program director, said, except during the Whiskerino dance. She pointed out that the check room is a special service of the SU offered to the students.

A large bulletin board in the lobby displays pictures and posters of campus events.

Sports Exhibitions Slated for SU

Exhibitions by some of the world's finest bowlers and billiard players are on tap for the coming year in the Student Union recreation center, Louis Bellissimo, area director, has announced.

Best Wishes to the S.U.

THE BRUNSWICK BALKE-COLLENDER CO.

Billiards & Bowling Alley Equipment & Supplies

1626 Ferry Avenue
 Seattle 1, Washington

2710 N.E. Broadway
 Portland 12, Oregon