"It would then be impossible to build strength in Western Europe against Communist aggression there."

Speaking of the recent Chinese movement into Tibet and its effects on India, Dull commented that it might push India off the middle road of international politics into a position more sympathetic to United States efforts.

India May Help

Concerning India's position, Schleichler stated that India's objection to the Tibetan move might mean more support for the United States in the U. N. where India has previously remained as nearly neutral as possible.

"The matter is bigger than one nation, and it prohibits following the lines of expediency further," Dull explained.

"Whatever the outcome of this move, we will be living in a world of fear until we have true international rule enforced by an effective international police force," he said.

The parade was brightened by living organizations who carried bright red torches, exploded dynamite caps, and displayed just plain bright lights and spirit.

Card Stunts A Highlight

It's a toss up as to what could be called the highlight of the football game. Some say it was the WSC rooters pants which were white with black checks and white shoes, but it was probably the card tricks which were successfully attempted.

A gay and happy weekend was evidently had by all, anyway by those students who spent Friday night around the bonfire in a solitary song fest, by those engaged in the many spirited serenades around the sorority houses and dormitories late Friday night.

The number of alumni attending Homecoming is not known at this time, but if the dance was any indication there evidently was a capacity crowd. The dance floor was crowded at all times and music by Ike Carpenter was broadcast to the many extensions of the ballroom.

Oriental Miniatures In Library Display

An exhibit of Persian, Moghul, and Rajput miniatures, most of them created for the pages of hand-lettered books, is now on display in the University library lobby.

According to Wallace Baldinger, associate professor of the history of art, the miniatures reflect the high regard held for books in both India and Persia.

The exhibit is on loan from the Portland Art Museum and will be open to the public until Nov. 15.

Rooter Lid Money Wanted by Barry

All fraternity and sorority representatives selling rooter lids during Homecoming, are urged to turn in money from the sales to Tom Barry, Homecoming chairman at Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Receipts will be turned over to the Rally board to defray Homecoming expenses.

Chinese Reply

locked in the depths of the Kremlin.

Actually, Chinese intervention without formal declaration is an exceedingly convenient thing both for the Communist world as a whole and for the Red government in particular.

To have abandoned North Korea—a Communist state—would have had tremendous repercussions in all the Red satellite countries. Russian authority over many of them is precarious and rests un- easily.

Prestige Involved

Communist prestige is at stake in Korea.

There are two major advantages that accrue to the Chinese Communist government itself.

1. Intervention will assist in solving the mounting domestic difficulties in China. A foreign war is a time-honored method of dealing with internal troubles. The Chinese Reds have some big ones.

2. Intervention also may be used as a gun aimed at the head of the United Nations to force the seating of Communist representatives in that body.
