IC to Take Action Proposed Program Fall Term Rushing

Consideration of the proposed fall term rushing program will be given tonight when the Inter-dormitory Council meets to take action on the joint Inter-fraternity Council-IDC plan. Consideration is the second of two proposed programs written last week. The first, conceived by the IDC last week, was rewritten by the IFC, with the counsel of three members: President Bill Clothier, LaVern Thompson, and the Naapi.

This revised plan which is the result of present discussion. The plan was presented last Thursday to consider rushing but took no action at that time. Clothier, IDC president, performed the Emerald that wishes to go over the plan tonight and present it for consideration by dormitories Monday.

He said that much of the criticism of the present rushing program is that it was written in a hurry and overlooked too many details.

Going over this plan tonight, said Clothier, "the hope is that it will not repeat the mistakes of last year when a hasty rushing program was adopted within a couple of days. Things concern too many people to be hastily and inadequately written."

Principal Difference
The principal difference in the two programs which have been considered by IFC and IDC is that contact and control of fraternities will have over dormitories.

The presently considered program allows fraternities to rush and control dormitories in all house functions throughout the year. Fraternities will be allowed to hold pledge parties and have pledges to dinner time. Pledges may visit fraternities except during evening hours (7-10 p.m.) and during dormitory house meetings.

Social Functions
The matter of social functions and dances may attend fraternities unless their house is having a dance the night before.

Men would be required to sign a statement of loyalty in intramurals and a statement of dormitory for the entire year. Clothier informed the plan has generally been favorably received by the IFC. There is yet no sure indication that the plan as presently written will be adopted by IDC. President Bill Harber of the IFC has already signed the present proposal and should it be adopted by the IDC, the plan will be immediately installed. However, the plan be either rejected or accepted by the IDC at tonight's meeting. IFC has indicated that changes will not be immediately acceptable to that group. At Harber, whatever changes are made by the IDC will be considered and adopted by IFC.

Election Results . . .

Results of today's election will be available for anyone who calls the Emerald shack tonight after 8 p.m. If you live on campus, dial 217 or 218. If you live off campus, dial 5-1511 and ask for either of those numbers.

Complete tabulations on all members of Congress from Oregon, the state gubernatorial race, various referenda, and the trend of national elections will be kept.

Results will be given each 15 minutes over the Student Union public address system. Wednesday's Emerald will carry stories covering thoroughly the outcome.

Lecture on City Problems Slated by British Authority

F. J. Osborn, distinguished British authority on town and country planning, will speak to University students and Eugene townspeople at 8 p.m. Wednesday. The lecture will be held in 3 Fenton.

Under the sponsorship of the American Institute of Planners, the noted British speaker will be jointly sponsored by the University Lecture committee and the School of Architecture and Allied Arts.

Last Chance Set For Purchasing 1951 Oreganas

Last chance to buy Oreganas begins today, Bob Schooling, business manager has announced.

Subscriptions will be on sale in every living organization by Oregana house representatives. The book will also be sold from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Co-op and Student Union, and evenings in the SU.

"This is positively the last chance for everyone to buy the Oregana," Schooling said. "Our budget must be completed by Nov. 15, and the Oregana cannot undertake the possibility of ordering books which will not be sold."

Schooling added that he would like to continue sales on the year-book throughout the year, but the gamble is more than the budget of the Oregana allows.

The announcement by Schooling concerns only students who have not yet ordered the Oregana. Many students placed complete or partial orders for the book during registration. These orders are not affected by the last chance announcement, he said. The remainder of the money for partially paid for Oreganas will be collected during winter term registration.

Salesmen in living organizations will receive free copies of the Oregana.

Foreign Students To Observe Polls

An opportunity for foreign students to "go to the polls" and see how American elections are conducted is being offered by the YWCA International Affairs Committee.

All foreign students interested in this phase of American life are asked to meet at 4 p.m. at Delta Gamma. Girls from the committee will serve as guides.

Besides the visit to the polls, sample ballots will be handed out and explained for the student's benefit.

Osborn's main experience in housing and town building is on the business side. He has been concerned with the town plan, land disposals, building houses, and factories and shops in many leading cities of England.

The expansion of cities and the problems which face every large city will be the general subject of Osborn's lecture. The New Town Act of 1946, under which 20 towns are to be built with Government financing will be illustrated in his talk.

The advocacy of controlled lands and its effect on modern industrialism will also be explained.

Included in Osborn's literary contributions are, "Overture to Planning," "The Land and Planning," and "Green Belt Cities."

Before his visit to Oregon, Osborn spoke at Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Columbia University, Cornell University, Syracuse University, University of Michigan and the University of Chicago.

After his lecture here, Osborn will speak at the University of California, University of Southern California, University of Georgia, Atlanta University, and the University of North Carolina.

Hands-off Policy Set For OSC-UO Game

The office of student affairs has announced the joint hands-off policy between Oregon and Oregon State regarding acts of vandalism and other destruction of property in connection with the annual football game.

Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs at Oregon, and Dan Poling, dean of men at OSC, made the joint statement and said that it would naturally affect both acts on the Corvallis and Eugene campuses and actions in Portland where the traditional rivals will meet on Nov. 25.

The complete statement is as follows:

"We approve of school spirit. We believe that it adds not only to the interest in, but also the values

Executive Council Hears Report on Poor Progress Of Red Feather Drive

The Executive Council heard an unfavorable report on the progress of the Community Chest Drive at Monday night's meeting in the Student Union.

Also receiving council action were:

1. Approval of four additional members be appointed to the Rally Board.
2. An intramural championship "Sports Night" to be sponsored by the Executive Council.
3. Discussion of having students' pictures on student body cards.
4. An Executive Council delegation to be sent to the Oregon Federation of Collegiate Leaders at Oregon State College.
5. Amount of salaries for the ASUO president and his secretary.

Barbara Stevenson, co-chairman of the student division of the Community Chest Drive said, "It's going to take about one dollar per student to attain the $4,000 goal that has been set. Many of the living organizations have made very poor donations—particularly some of the men's."

She said that the total collected to date was short of the half-way mark and only two days are left in the drive.

ASUO President Barry Mountain pointed out that the Rally Board was too small to work effectively. He suggested that more members be appointed from the sophomore and freshman classes to help plan rallies a year ahead and provide better continuity in the organization.

"This would keep many of the members over for the following year, and make it possible to plan in advance possibly for Executive Council approval," Mountain explained.

The council approved the proposal. Petitions will be accepted at the ASUO office through this week. The appointment of four new members will bring the total of the board to nine.

The council favored the holding of a "Sports Night," sometime during winter term, that will be open to the public. It would feature championship teams and individuals in competition with those of other schools. Proceeds will be delegated to student organizations.

The machinery of the event will

Voters Face Long Ballot In Oregon

Salem.—(AP) Some 450,000 persons—the usual 60 per cent of registered voters—are expected to vote today in Oregon's general election.

They face a long ballot, choosing a governor, U. S. senator, congressmen, state labor commissioner, supreme court justices, local judges, legislators and local officers. They will also decide whether to pass nine new laws or Constitutional amendments.

The polls will be open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Democrat Majority
The fact that this general election is the first in which the Democrats have had a majority of registered voters has given the Democratic leaders more hope than they have had in many years.

Governor Douglas McKay, in office for two years, is a favorite in newspaper polls to win a four-year term. His opponent is State Sen. Austin F. Flegel, Portland Democrat, who is a lawyer and former industrialist.

Flegel Charges
Flegel's charges that that the Governor is controlled by big business and by liquor and gambling interests produced the major fireworks in the campaign. McKay came back fighting with a charge that Flegel told deliberate lies.

U. S. Sen. Wayne L. Morse, Eugene Republican who wants a second term, is considered a sure winner over Howard Latourette, Portland Democrat who says he is more conservative than Morse. Latourette has the support of Dave Hoover, Lane county Repub-

Apples for Sale On UO Campus

Box after box of Delicious apples will be peddled on the campus by jean-clad pledges of Gamma Alpha Chi, national women's advertising honorary, starting today and ending Thursday.

The sale, an annual tradition, will include booths in the Student Union, Co-op, Friendly, Oregon, Carson, and the library.

The price has been set at one dime per apple, according to Kay Kuckenberg, chairman.

Flying speeches were presented Monday night at men's houses and will be given tonight in women's living organizations. Posters in the shape of apples have been distributed.
