Students OK Election Gains For the GOP

By Larry Hobart

National election results received the scrutiny of campus minds today as political circles seethed with the news of important Republican gains in Congress. "Do you think that the recent election results will benefit the nation?" was the question asked students.

Bev Hatfield—senior in history—"I hope that a change in government policy in some respects will take place because of the recent election. There is room for improvement in international policy. It's time that some new ideas concerning foreign affairs were introduced."

Joyce Barber—freshman in journalism—"It is good for any country to have a change so that no one party becomes too strong. I am glad to see the Republicans pushing the Democrats."

Ann Thompson—junior in music—"As a result of the election, I think that issues before Congress will now be more hotly contested but I doubt that the results will be very different. More heated debate due to the equalizing of the two parties will probably focus greater attention on the 1952 presidential campaign."

Vern Behrends—senior in education—"The election will be followed by a swing to the right. The Republican sweep will, in 1952, give them the best chance they have had since pre-Roosevelt days to win a presidential election. A significant factor indicated by election returns is the show of strength on the part of the Republicans in the South."

Barbara Kurilo—freshman in business administration—"We have had a Democratic president all my life and I'm happy to see the Republicans gain strength in Congress."

Helen Hyché—sophomore in liberal arts—"I think that it's fine that the Republicans gained in the election. It is time that the balance of power, held for so long by the Democrats, was narrowed."

George Yost—senior in architecture—"I personally welcome the Republican advance. The election helped remove a lot of deadwood from Congress."

Bliss Stanley—junior in business administration—"Yes, I think that the election results will be beneficial. I believe that there will be a movement toward the decreasing of government spending in connection with the Marshall Plan and subsidies. The election indicates that the farmers don't approve of the Brannan Plan. The results renew my faith in the two party system."

Don Ross—junior in writing—"I don't believe that the election will make much difference because things are in such a mess now that all we can do is try and make the best of a bad situation."

Jim Fenimore—senior in business administration—"I think that we will see a big change in foreign policy—I hope a more aggressive policy. The election results appear to be a direct slap at the Truman administration."

Karin Lindland—freshman in journalism—"I'm disappointed in the election returns. I don't have any kick against the present Democratic administration."
