

Court Imposes Fourteen Fines In Traffic Cases

Fourteen fines were collected from traffic violators at the student court's regular meeting Wednesday night. Two fines were waived by the court because of sufficient reasons brought forth by violators.

The parking situation which exists on the University campus may account for most of the fines assessed Wednesday night. Students were fined mainly for parking in no parking areas, blocking driveways and parking near fire hydrants.

Besides the fourteen fines collected at the court, seventeen have posted bail at the Office of Student Affairs, bringing the total to thirty-one fines collected for the past two weeks.

A large number of traffic violators who have not appeared before the court have been sent notices of the date the court will convene.

If students who have received these notices do not appear before the next court meeting, scheduled for Jan. 3, their names will be turned over to the Office of Student Affairs and they will be subject to action by this office.

'Webfoot Jazz' Booked to Play At DTD Dance

Portland's Webfoot Jazz band will be on the campus Saturday night, playing at the Delta Tau Delta house dance.

The band, currently playing an engagement at the Jax Club in Portland, has gained enormous popularity on the Pacific Coast in the last year. It played in Eugene earlier this fall.

Delt spokesmen said Thursday anyone on the campus is invited to drop in and hear the band any time during the evening. The dance will be in the Delt house, on the hilltop. The Webfoot group will arrive in Eugene Saturday and stay Saturday night at the Delt house.
