

Enrollment Falls From 1950 Total

A drop in registration of 1,001 students from last year was indicated Wednesday in figures released by Registrar Clifford Constance.

Cash register receipts show that 3,218 students have completed registration for winter term. On the same day last year, 4,219 students had completed the process. The University enrolled 5,614 students last winter term.

During pre-registration, 1,118 students completed the registration process.

The 3,218 total, said Constance, is not completely indicative of the actual number of registrants. Although payment of fees completes the registration process, things other than fees are recorded on the cash register and this figure may include other payments besides registration fees.

The deadline for payment of fees is Saturday. Students paying fees after that date must pay the late fee. All registration must be completed by Jan. 15. This includes course changes.

Schumacher Ill; Condition Serious

Waldo Schumacher, professor of political science, is in the Eugene Hospital and Clinic recovering from a heart infection suffered during the final week of fall term. Schumacher's physician, Dr. Thomas A. McKenzie said that the professor was seriously ill for several weeks, but described his condition as "considerably improved."

McKenzie said that Schumacher will probably not return to conducting classes at the University for one or two months. Schumacher has been on the faculty since 1928.

Symposium Group To Enter Contest

The Annual Intercollegiate Town Meeting, sponsored by Vanport College, tops the list of engagements for the speech department's symposium group this term.

The tournament will be held Jan. 15 and 16 before school, church, and civic club audiences in Portland.

Discussing the question "What should be the responsibility of the federal government for the welfare of the people of the United States?" will be Nancy Ann Yates, William Lees, and Robert Bozorth from the University.

"Should the non-Communist nations form a new international organization?" will be the topic of discussion Jan. 16 at Junction City high school, and Feb. 27 before the Willana Business and Professional Women in the Del Rey clubroom in Eugene.

"We have not yet delegated students to the last two events," Cohen said.

He declared that extreme cases concerning senior rides became more frequent during fall term, requiring action by the administration.

"Anything that brings unfavorable comment upon the University is naturally frowned upon," Bill Harber, IFC president declared, concerning the situation.

"The IFC recommends moderation in such procedures, since extremes which would injure the fraternity system should be discouraged," he explained.

Joe Richards, president of Alpha Tau Omega, declined to comment for the present.

Barton Named Sports Editor

John Barton, senior in journalism, has been named sports editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald for winter and spring terms. Fall term sports editor was Pete Cornacchia, also a senior in journalism.

Barton was co-sports editor with Sam Fidman on the 1949-50 Emerald. He has worked on the Emerald four years, and was a reporter on The Dalles Chronicle for approximately seven months.

Other upper staff changes include the appointment of Bill Frye, sophomore in journalism, assistant news editor and Sarah Turnbull, sophomore in liberal arts, chief night editor.

Barbara Williams and Shirley Hillard, both juniors in speech, are new assistants to the business manager. Virginia Kellogg, junior in business, has been named advertising manager.

Mary Hall was chief night editor of the campus daily last year and fall term. Jackie Pritzen was an assistant news editor last term.

Class To Start Today For Foreign Students

The first foreign student orientation class will be held at 4 p.m. today in the Student Union and will be held throughout the term at that time every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

Lectures for the first week will be sponsored by the School of Journalism and will provide an analysis of the press and other communications. All foreign students enrolled on scholarships and in the country for the first time are expected to attend, according to James D. Kline, foreign student adviser.

Radio Honorary Taps Seven For Pledging

Seven University students are being pledged by Kappa Rho Omicron, radio honorary.

The pledges are Lorin Miller, George Drougas, Ed Raggazino, Lerry Antijunti, Lois Williams, Bob Peterson, and Pierre Pasquo. They will be responsible for an original 15 minute show, to be presented in two weeks over the campus FM station KWAX, according to Dick Hardie, honorary president.

Bazaar Success, President Says

Students, faculty, townspeople, and visitors flocked to the annual Art Bazaar Dec. 8 and 9 to purchase approximately $875 worth of oil paintings, watercolors, jewelry, pottery, and sculpture, according to figures released by John Amundson, Associated Students of Architecture and Allied Arts, president.

The Art Bazaar, given each year by the School of Architecture and Allied Arts, presented more than $2,000 worth of art material. The most popular was salt-glazed pottery, small watercolors and sketches, jewelry, and Christmas cards.

"A large part of the success of the Art Bazaar was due to the diligent work of Co-chairman Al Zurflueh and Al Staehli," Amundson said. "The hard work on the part of the students and staff members also aided greatly."

The ASAAA is now making plans for the annual Beaux Arts Ball.

Alien Act Affects Foreign Students

In accordance with the new Alien Registration Act requiring all non-American citizens to file notice with the government of their position in the United States, all foreign students enrolled at the University should visit the campus post office in the Student Union and fill out U.S. government form I-53.

This must be done no later than Jan. 10, according to James D. Kline, foreign student adviser. No announcement has been made of penalties invoked for failing to do this, but all students concerned should complete the procedure by the deadline to protect their student standings, Kline said.

Any harm in a nap after Dinner?

To most of us a nap after Thanksgiving dinner is as much a part of Thanksgiving as the turkey itself. And there's no harm in that if we don't stay asleep in the responsibilities that go with the good things we have to be thankful for . . . the good things we enjoy only because we are a free people.

But too many of us go right on napping year after year.

45 million Americans failed to exercise their right to vote in the last presidential election! They were asleep to one of the most fundamental duties of free Americans.

How many millions more of us are asleep to our other duties as citizens of a democracy? How many of us are napping when we should get out to our Town Meetings and other civic government groups? How many millions of us pay union dues and don't vote in union elections—own stock but throw away our proxies? How many of us dodge jury duty?

These are our rights as free people! These are the rights we'd all hate to lose—yet so many of us do so little to help keep them. We must do more than give thanks for the good things freedom gives us—on Thanksgiving or any other day of the year. We must work to keep our freedom. We have a government "of the people"—and only the people themselves can make it work right!

It takes 150 million full-time, wide-awake citizens to keep our democracy going—to keep it going strong!

EVERY HOME should have this guide to the Rights and Duties of an American.

Do you know your rights? Do you know the nine keys to good citizenship . . . the how and why of each?
