Needle-shy Donor Ogles Nurses as Blood Spills

By Bob Thalhofer

Idle thoughts of one of the Red Cross's sacrificial lambs. . . . Twenty-one? Well, I guess! Yes, I filled out one of those cards. . . . What's the tag for I wonder? I hope they don't expect any trouble. Maybe they use these tags for expeditious handling of the remains. . . . Say, aren't these girls in the white sweaters and skirts a bunch of cuties though. And look at those Pepsodent smiles! . . . Take off my jacket? How could she know it was my shirt? I guess it does look like a jacket at that.

Girls Again

. . . . Oh, boy, a chair and girls again. . . . That guy better not horn in. I'll let him know what I think about line buckers. . . . Name and address. Wonder how many times they ask you that around here? Gads, imagine that 25 years old. . . . Looks like they've got all the top brass from the RO out this morning. There's the Lt. Col. and Major Palm. Just for kicks I'd like to ask them if those suspenders were GI. . . . I wish they'd take this thermometer out of my mouth. How long does it take to check a temperature anyway? Ninety-seven point six and 62 on the pulse. That girl thought she was pretty funny with that crack about me not being alive. . . .

Have to Wait

Holy smokes, you mean we really have to wait for all these people? Chairs again. I'll be worn out by the time my turn comes with all this hopping from chair to chair. At least they are warm. I think I'll fool them this time and wait two moves before I hop again. That skiing is taking its toll. . . . Why there's that St. Vincent nurse, wonder how her brother is doing in the Air Force? . . . Why don't they let a person answer all these questions by himself? Must think we're all stupid. . . .

Ge, that band is tight on my arm, and here comes the needle! Well, it wasn't too bad considering that I'm getting more needle-shy every time. . . . Look at that smile on the redhead. She really must enjoy leading us to the slaughter. . . .

Apple Juice!

More tables and more chairs. . . . Apple juice! They really do this thing up right. Say, this is good. No, Major, this isn't my second cup, I coddle my drinks. . . . Why must they have use sitting here where we can see those people lying on those cots? This waiting is bad enough without that. Look at that girl, is she pale. . . .

Why, there's my RO company commander, what's his name, anyway? Say, this is really a great place to meet people. . . .

Woops, it's my turn to go where the blood does flow. . . . I must say, that everyone is certainly friendly around here. This nice old lady makes me feel like somebody's father the way she's leading me around. . . . They could use a little more padding on these tables if you ask me, and a little more length wouldn't hurt.

Use A Bed Rail

If that woman from Springfield wants a pillow she oughta rest her head on the bed rail. I've seen worse. First time she's ever been in the SU, huh. It sure is a swell place all right. . . .

So this cute little nurse is from Providence! Looks as if I missed a good deal by not doing a little more operating out there. St. Vincent grads all over. . . . Novacaine! That's new. Don't remember them using that the last time I went through this. But the last time they jabbed me four times, too! . . .

There's that cute little girl from the ski trip. Gee, they're tapping her on both sides. . . . And all the time I thought that I was a blue blood.

Blue Blood

Half a pint to go. . . . Heck, no, I don't need the stool to get off. . . . More old ladies leading you around. . . . Woops, better not step on that fella. He really took a dive. . . . Ah, hah, a cot, no less. . . .

I can't see staying here for ten minutes. I feel fine. Gotta get home to eat, too. . . . Now, I have to sit for five minutes. Whatta system, whatta system! . . . There's that cute AOPi. What's she doing with the Red Cross uniform? . . .

Too bad these aren't the two-for-fifteen donuts. . . . Hmm, I never knew she was a counselor at Hendricks. Nice little group we have here. . . . Oh, oh! That girl just keeled over out of her chair against that fella. Guess I had better get home to lunch.

World's Fate Our Problem-Case

the dying soldier who was shown the theory that "you never give up the things that make life enjoyable; but you take them with you," Dr. Case demonstrated that it is within man's power to answer these questions and to "become great by answering life's ultimates unafraid."

"Now is not the time to settle back, for there is no ease in sight. But this is a time filled with possibility," Dr. Case concluded his address.

David Seaman, director of Wesley Foundation, introduced Dr. Case.

Speak Today

Dr. Daniel McGloin and Dr. Harold Case will be featured speakers today as Religious Emphasis week activities swing into their second day.

A change in program has been effected so that Father McGloin will speak tonight at 8:15 in the SU ballroom instead of the previously scheduled speech by Dr. Robert Millikan, Cal Tech physicist. Dr. Millikan will speak Wednesday night at 8:15 on "The Road to Peace."

Father McGloin will use as his address topic, "A Stake in Tomorrow's World." Dr. Case's address will be given this afternoon at 2:00 in the SU ballroom.

There has also been a change in the program for the Hillel meeting. The talk by Rabbi Leo Trepp will be given at 8:15 p.m. in the Student Union.

Also this afternoon at 4:00 in 207 Chapman, Dr. Millikan will conduct a joint science seminar.

This morning's devotional service is being conducted by Wesley house in Alumni hall from 7:30 to 7:50 a.m. At 7 a.m. a mass is conducted in Gerlinger Annex by Father McGloin.

Tomorrow's Program

Tomorrow the YMCA and YWCA are in charge of the morning devotions which will be held in the Men's Lounge of the SU. Dr. J. Randolph Sasnett, director of the RIE Foundation will speak on "Reverence." Gretchen Grondahl will be student leader.

The second in the dinner fireside programs will be conducted tonight. House pairings were listed in yesterday's Emerald with Margaret Powne in charge. The fireside program this week is arranged so that the speakers come to dinner at one of the houses and then the other houses scheduled assemble after the dinner. "Certainties in an Uncertain World," the theme of the week, is the fireside theme.

Frosh to Vote On Constitution

The new constitution drawn up by the freshman council was voted on by freshman residents in all houses and halls Monday night. The proposed constitution was presented to each group by the council representative. Results of the vote are still indefinite.

Designed to cover any problem which might arise in the school year, the constitution has been ratified and approved by the council. If the constitution meets the approval of the majority of the class it will go into effect immediately. Standing committees will be selected to begin work on various class functions, such as the frosh picnic.

Council members will return results of the voting at their meeting Wednesday night.

Oregon Library Receives First New Paint Job

The old section of the University Library is now being repainted for the first time since it was built in 1937. I. I. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant reports.

Thus far the physical plant workers have painted the reserve reading room, the reference room, first floor and basement, the future reading room in the basement, and the circulation room.

Ceilings have been painted off-white to aid in the general lighting, Wright said. The walls of the phone booths have been painted black in an attempt to keep people from scribbling on them.

Within the coming year the physical plant expects to repaint the second floor of the library. Some changes in the lighting in the building may also be made, Wright concluded.

Federal aid is simply a system of taking money from the people and making it look like a gift when you hand it back.

'City of God' Topic Of Breen SU Talk

Dr. Quirinus Breen, professor of history and social science, will speak on "The City of God" by Saint Augustine from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Browsing Room at the Student Union.

Dr. Chandler B. Beall, professor of romance languages, will lead the discussion.

Miss Bernice Rise, reader's consultant, announced that the general public is invited.

YWCA Petitions Accepted all Week

Petitions for YWCA cabinet positions will be accepted through this week, Lois Greenwood, executive secretary, announced Monday.

Interviews are now being given for applicants. Those who are petitioning for positions requiring interviews may check at the YW headquarters in Gerlinger any time this week.

"What's his race or religion
got to do with it—
He can Pitch!"

You admire this kid, don't you? He's got guts enough to stand up for his pitcher against the whole opposing team.

But this kid has more than guts! He has grasped one of our very oldest American traditions—that men and women have the right to be judged on the basis of their individual merits. Being "foreign" is nothing against an individual—nor is his race—nor is his religion.

It's up to each of us to keep disunity from our families, our community and our country.

Make sure that you are not spreading rumors against a race or a religion. Speak up, wherever you are, against prejudice, and work for better understanding. Remember that's being a good American citizen.
