Press Conference Starts Here Friday

Registration for the 32nd annual Oregon Press Conference will begin Friday morning in the lobby of the Student Union. Over 175 editors, publishers, University faculty members, and students are expected to attend the two-day conference.

Principal speaker for the conference will be Tom H. Keene, editor and general manager of the Elkhart Daily Truth, published in Elkhart, Ind. He will give the Eric W. Allen Memorial address.

Keene has had a long and successful career as a journalist. In 1948 he received the second annual Minnesota award to a newspaperman for "service to journalism of a higher order over a period of years".

Included in Friday's program will be a talk by Charles T. Duncan, associate professor of journalism at the University of Oregon, on the "Community Newspaper, Springboard or Career?"

President Newburn will extend the official welcome from the University at a joint press conference and University faculty luncheon, which will be held Friday noon in the Student Union. Gordon A. Sabine, dean of the school of journalism, will address the luncheon group on "The School of Journalism Today and Tomorrow".

The annual Press Conference banquet will be held Friday evening in the Eugene Hotel with Dean

Sabine presiding.

Friday evening, Murray M. Moler, Intermountain Manager for the United Press, will speak on "Dateline—Korea". Moler served in the Alaska-Aleutians theatre and Japan during World War II, and covered General MacArthur's headquarters in Japan last summer.

"The Emperor Becomes A Human" will be the title of the address given by Miss Yoshiko Seki at the meeting of the press women of Oregon Saturday morning. Miss Seki toured Japan with the Japanese Emperor following the occupation by the Allies.

Plug Plus Plug Means Ticket

MESA, Ariz., — (P) — You can't park a plug by a plug and get away with it if Mesa police have their way.

Jeff Earl, 72-year-old Mesa resident, found that out recently.

He rode his horse, Starlite, into town and hitched it to a fire-plug. When he returned from shopping he had a ticket.

He will appear in police court Saturday to answer charges of parking a vehicle (a horse) within 15 feet of a fire plug.

Digging Done, Lampposts Late

Lamp standards for approximately 80 new campus lights, which were supposed to have been sent to the physical plant during the latter part of January, have not yet arrived, according to I. I. Wright, physical plant superintendent.

No word has been received as to when the standards will arrive, Wright said. When they do arrive, the circuit adjoining 13th St. E. should be ready within a week after their arrival. The other circuit will include the area adjoining University St.

Cables are now being laid in the trenches around the campus. The cable-laying will be finished when all the bolts for the lights arrive. The trenches will be filled in then. Some of them have already been filled in to prevent any possible danger to persons at night.

The new lights will be installed to provide light for campus walks and drives, Wright said.

Seven Judges to Choose Three Finalists For Dads' Day Hostess Competition

Selection of three finalists for Dads' Day Hostess will be made by seven judges at 4 p.m. today in the Student Union, Jerry Irion, judging sub-chairman, announced Wednesday.

Over a dozen photographs of candidates were turned in by 5 p.m. Wednesday, Irion said. Judging will be posted on ballot boxes at registration booths. Dads registering for the weekend will elect the Hostess. The winner will be presented between halves of the Washington game, Feb. 24.

Judges are A. L. Peiterson, assistant professor of business administration; K. W. Onthank, associate director of student affairs; Capt. N. N. Mihailov Jr., assistant professor of air science; Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs; Sidney W. Little, dean of the School of Architecture and Allied Arts; Rev. Wesley Nicholson, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Eugene; and Jack Foster, Eugene businessman.

Luncheon tickets that have been purchased by fathers may be picked up now at 216 Emerald Hall, according to Elaine Hartung, luncheon chairman. Students may also buy them for $1.25 apiece.

Registration for Spring Quarter To Commence on Saturday

Advance registration for spring term begins Saturday, when registration material will be available in the art gallery on the second floor of the Student Union.

Conferences with advisers and registering with department clerks will begin Monday and will continue until next Friday. Final checking, filing of cards in the registrar's office, and payment of fees if desired, may be done until Mar. 3, Registrar Clifford L. Constance said.

Students who have any intention of registering for spring term should at least complete the process as far as filing their cards with the registrar, he emphasized. Those who do not go that far and decide later to register will be assessed an $8 penalty fee for failure to complete advance registration.

Cards and procedure are the same as for winter term, according to Constance. A new time schedule of classes will be available.

OSC Business Dean to Talk At YMCA Festival Here

Clifford E. Maser, dean of the School of Business and Technology at Oregon State College, will be the featured speaker at the YW-YMCA International Festival to be held on the Oregon campus Mar. 3.

Maser will speak at the luncheon at the Student Union, after which he will lead a discussion period. He will be speaking primarily to help foreign students better understand how to interpret their country to Americans and how, upon their return to their home, to interpret Americans and the American way of life to their fellow-countrymen.

KWAX Wants Staff Workers Immediately

Publicity workers, announcers, producers, technicians with Federal Communication Commission third class ratings, and above all, script writers, are in urgent demand by KWAX.

It's like a ship without a sail, a Model T without a crank—a station can't get started without personnel to keep it going, according to Station Manager Jack Vaughn. KWAX has enough helpers now to open, but more will be needed eventually.

But anyone interested in working be sure to contact Vaughn, or Dick Hardie, program director. Announcers may schedule auditions with Jim Blue by calling him at 4-8381.

Washington games Feb. 23 and 24 are sold out, general admission tickets can still be procured at McArthur Court for $1.20.

Jeanne Hoffman, decorations chairman, urges living organizations to start planning their signs now. Signs must be two-dimensional, have no moving parts, and are not to cost more than $10.

Globetrotters To Play at UO

Student and faculty tickets for tonight's Harlem Globe Trotter-Oregon All-Star basketball game will be on sale for 60 cents on presentation of student athletic card at the athletic office in McArthur Court today.

Athletic cards alone are not sufficient for admittance to the game, scheduled for 8 p.m. in McArthur Court.

The All-Star team is composed of former Oregon and Oregon State basketball players. Preliminary game will feature the intramural all-star team vs. Phi Delta Theta.

Manifesto In Bulletin Held 'Red'

An article in the January Bulletin of the Oregon Federation of College Leaders follows the Communist party line, the Eastern Oregon College of Education Student Council decided Wednesday evening.

The council demanded an explanation of an article appearing in the bulletin under the heading: "Appeal of the Second Congress of the International Union of Students to the Students of the World." The article called for "immediate cessation of bombing of the civilian population in Korea, cessation of war in Korea, withdrawal of foreign troops from its territory, and address to the U. N. Security Council of petitions for peaceful settlement of the Korean question."

At Oregon State College Tom Faught, editor of the bulletin, explained that it presented articles from various points of view, without comment or endorsement, to allow college students to know (Please turn to page eight)

YWCA Plans Legislature Visit

Plans for the YWCA-sponsored visit to the State Legislature next Thursday are continuing, with foreign students and YW members being notified of the trip, Janie Simpson, chairman of the public affairs committee, said Wednesday.

First chance for making reservations will be given to these groups, Miss Simpson stated; however, if space remains the Salem trip will be open to other students.

Bus fare for the round-trip will be $1.75 with luncheon extra. The Willamette University YWCA will arrange the day's program for the Oregon delegation.

Alum Quits Berlin Job, Protests 'Censorship'

A former Oregon student left his army radio broadcasting job in Berlin Tuesday because, he said, he refused to bow to censorship.

William L. Minehart, a graduate of the School of Journalism in 1948, quit his job as newscaster with the American Forces Network winding up the 30 days' notice he gave after declaring superiors cramped his news program.

The 26-year-old Californian broke with the army forces network three weeks ago after he was forbidden to announce the arrival of American tanks in Berlin, even though all other news media had already publicized that fact.

Minehart said this was the climax to a series of "annoying censorship" imposed by civilian and army authorities. A former sergeant, Minehart was employed as a civilian at $5,500 annually.

Minehart was employed by radio station KORE while in Eugene.

Two Priests Will Discuss 'Catholic Marriage' in SU

"Catholic Marriage" will be discussed at 7 tonight in 207 Chapman in the first of a five-talk series by Rev. Daniel Hurley and Rev. Leo J. Linahen.

The "question box" will be used during the lecture series, with Father Linahen answering and discussing questions from the box during his talks. He will handle the "positive presentation" of the series, and Father Hurley will give the "dialogue business."

The talks will be given every Thursday, tonight through March 8. The final talk in the series will take place on Sunday, Mar. 11 in Gerlinger Annex to avoid conflict with final exams.

Father Linahen is the Newman Club Chaplain at the University of Oregon and Oregon State College. Father Hurley, parish priest at St. Mary's in Corvallis, was for many years the prefect of discipline at Central Catholic High School in Portland.

Jr. GOP's Cut Salem Trip Cost

Price for the Young Republican-sponsored trip to Salem next Thursday has been lowered from $3.25 to $2.80, Don Collin, president, said Wednesday.

This amount will include transportation by chartered bus and luncheon at the State Capitol.

Registration for the trip is open to all students, Collin emphasized, with the Student Union booth to be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today. The booth will be closed during the weekend, but will reopen Monday.

Reservations may also be made and further information obtained by calling Collin, at Alpha Hall; Marge Cardwell, Delta Zeta; or Ed Peterson, Lambda Chi Alpha.
