Pledges Hear Talk

"City Panhellenic" was the topic of a talk by Miss Nina Kitts of Eugene to the Junior Panhellenic at its meeting Tuesday. She informed them of the organization, purposes, and functions of the group.

Mrs. Golda Wickham, director of women's affairs, will be present at the next meeting to speak on scholarships and loan funds for women.

Also discussed at this meeting was a proposed picnic for all freshman members of Junior Panhellenic which would be held spring term. It was reported that 75 women attended the breakfast Saturday honoring pledges.

The Oregon Weekly replaced the monthly university paper. It appeared each Monday.

Inquiring Reporter

Make it Easier! Most Students Want Changes

By Virginia Dalley

With registration again in the spotlight this week, today's Inquiring Reporter question was "Do you have any suggestions for improvement of the registration procedure?"

Centralization of departments for class registration was the most frequently occurring idea for change in the system.

Kathleen Wisdom, junior in education—"I think it would be nice if they had an arrangement so all departments were in one building—say Mac Court—and then when you are registering everything would be right there, so you wouldn't have to run all over the campus."

Roger Webster, freshman in pre-dentistry—"I think it is all right as it is."

Pat Bramble, freshman art major—"There should be less confusion, better organization, anything but this."

Ivan Hoyer, senior speech major—"My biggest complaint is in getting to see the senior adviser—the appointment system—and other than that the new IBM system is the best they could install for moving the students through faster."

Margaret Edwards, senior in journalism—"Have it all in the same building, and, preferably, have the adviser doing all one individual's registering."

Doug King, sophomore in pre-law—"I got through it in an hour and a half, so it seems all right to me."

Suzanne Pfister, freshman in liberal arts—"I don't see why it wouldn't be possible for all the departments to be located in one building, temporarily, to eliminate all the bother and time."

Donna Braden, freshman in education—"I think they could centralize where we register for classes—for instance in the Student Union. It would simplify registering for classes, and we wouldn't have to go all over campus. It would be easier, and there would be fewer errors."

Hank Panian, graduate student in history—"Since I worked in registration, I know the difficulties that they have. I believe the system that evolves is probably the best of a necessary end. There is more to registration than receiving material and signing up for classes. The registrar's office works to full capacity to get students through registration with the least trouble."

Military Housing Only Rumor Yet

Rumors claiming that one or more units of the veterans' dormitory system will be turned over to the armed forces for the use of military personnel during spring term are only rumors, according to Lyle M. Nelson, director of public services.

"It is reasonable to assume that the University will get a military program," Nelson told the Emerald Wednesday, "but how soon or what facilities will be used is still unknown. No contract has been signed with any of the services."

Inspection parties representing the three branches of the military, the army, navy, and air force, have made studies of the living and recreational facilities of the university. These inspections have been part of a national study of educational institutions made by the services.

Information regarding the University has been sent to the United States Office of Education in Washington, D. C., which is operating as a coordinating unit between the schools and the military.

In 1902 there were at Eugene 17 professors, assistant professors and instructors; in 1915 the number was 52.

Insurance Students Organizing Here

Plans for forming a professional organization of University insurance students were announced Wednesday by M. R. Greene, assistant professor of business administration.

Greene said the purpose of the group would be to promote interest in the insurance field as a career through contacts with individuals actively engaged in the insurance business.

The organization would be open to any student who has taken insurance courses offered by the business school. These courses include life insurance, property insurance, casualty insurance, social and economic aspects of insurance, and three seminar classes.

Student officers for the new organization will be elected at 3 p.m. Friday in 105 Commerce, Greene announced.

The first regular meeting of the insurance group has been scheduled for 6 p.m. Mar. 1 at the Faculty Club.

"General Opportunities in Property and Casualty Insurance" will be discussed by a representative of the Insurance Company of North America at the initial meeting, Greene said. "Career Opportunities in Life Insurance" has been selected as the second topic for the evening gathering.

Religious Notes

Open house for "Dad," a talk on "The Kremlin and the Vatican," folk dances, and Sunday coffee hour are planned by various campus religious groups over Dads' Weekend.

NEWMAN CLUB

The differences and similarities of Communism and Catholicism has been the topic for Father Matthias Burger's series of discussions Sunday at 7 p.m. in Gerlinger Annex. Last week, Father Burger brought out that the Catholic Church and Communism are alike in that both object to the evils of the present social system. Continuing in the discussion series this Sunday, he will approach the subject from the point of view that both Catholicism and Communism are dogmatic.

March 4 is set aside for the election of Newman Club officers with the communion breakfast also being held on this date. Charles Diener, graduate student in economics, will speak on Theresa Neuman.

Rosary will be said every Tuesday during Lent at 6:30 p.m. in the Student Union with a discussion club meeting to follow.

CHRISTIAN HOUSE

Christian House will join with other religious organizations Friday evening at the folk games party sponsored by the YMCA in the SU ballroom. The party will follow the Washington game.

Sunday evening services based on the topic, "Brotherhood—When?" will begin at 5:30 p.m. Mitzi Tsai, DeNorval Unthank, and Shubert Frederick will take part in a panel discussion on the subject.

WESLEY FOUNDATION

Sunday at 4 p.m. David Levering, a traveling secretary of the World Student Service Fund, will speak at the Wesley building to all members of student religious groups. Levering has a wide knowledge of India, having traveled extensively in India and had the opportunity of talking with leaders there in education and politics. He especially understands the university needs in this Asiatic country.

Rev. Ennis Whaley, pastor of the Hughes Memorial Methodist Church in Portland, will speak at the group's Sunday evening program. Noted for his talent as a song leader, Rev. Whaley will be accompanied by a quartet of singers, a part of the Chordsmen group who travel with him throughout Oregon.

WESTMINSTER HOUSE

"What Happens When We Worship," will be discussed at the group's Sunday evening service beginning at 6:15 p.m. Rev. Paul Mellish will lead the discussion with worship service led by Allan Opliger and Sue McAndie.

Capitol Visitors To View Game Friday Night

Approximately 80 Oregon legislators—the largest number ever to visit the campus—and their wives are expected to be present for the Oregon-Washington basketball game Friday night, according to Lester E. Anderson, alumni director. They will come to the campus in chartered buses and will leave immediately after the game.

Arrangements have been made with the ASUO Executive Council to exchange 175 seats in the women's rooting section for a like number on the south end, downstairs, to permit the legislators to sit in a student section. Members of the Executive Council, Mortar Board, and Order of the "O" will act as official hosts and hostesses. Police and other ushers will be on hand to keep the section in the south end, normally open to general admission, for the women students.

Anderson explained that the legislative night will be somewhat of a visit to the legislature in reverse. A group of students is going to Salem to witness the Legislature in action today, on Friday, the legislators will reverse the procedure by coming to Eugene to watch the students in action.

The University of Oregon medical school cornerstone was laid on May 1, 1918, and the building was completed in 1919.

Production Help At KWAX Wanted

More students interested in radio will be needed immediately for work on KWAX programming, it was decided at a meeting of department heads Tuesday.

Lorin Miller, music producer, urges anyone who would like to help with production of recorded music shows to fill out a blank designating interview time. These are available in the program director's office on the third floor of Villard.

The same procedure applies to those wanting to help with any phase of "talking" programs, such as news, interviews, commentaries, and discussions. This would involve anything from writing scripts to obtaining stars. Bob Peterson may be contacted for such jobs.

Workshop experience is almost required, according to Miller. The student should have some knowledge of radio production technique or speaking experience.

Home Ec Meet Held

Three representatives from the University's home economics department attended a meeting of college home economics teachers Saturday at Willamette University in Salem.

Oregon delegates to the conference were Miss Mabel Wood, head of the department; and Miss Frances Van Voorhis and Miss Mildred Wilson, both assistant professors of home economics.
