Christian House Marks Birthday

Christian House is celebrating its second birthday this weekend. Friday evening it is sponsoring an old-fashioned basket social at 6 p.m. at the First Christian Church. Women bring decorated boxes or baskets containing food for two, for which men bid competitively. Proceeds are to be divided between the Foreign Student Fund and a conference fund.

A talent show will be the entertainment of the evening, with Mary Peterson in charge. Albert Hoydar and Bob Peterson will handle continuity.

Students taking part include Effie York, Hiroya Katayama, Wah Chun, Jack Adams, Carol Thomas, Winona Fishback, Pat Powell, Jim Cornett, Arlene Hendricks, Beth Philpott, Roger Cone, Mary K. Sadler, Dick Merriman, Mary Lou Roberts, and Chloe Simon. Auctioneer for the evening is Dick Friedline. The party is open to all.

The worship period at 5:30 p.m. Sunday will be led by George Good, with Mrs. Genevieve Turnipseed as speaker. Mary Alice Baker will preside. The birthday cake will be presented by the Board of Directors, Dr. Victor P. Morris, chairman. The board will also be guests for the anniversary service.

Five Stars Play In SU Movie

"Flesh and Fantasy," film to be shown in the Student Union Ballroom Sunday, stars Charles Boyer, Barbara Stanwyck, Betty Field, Edward G. Robinson, and Robert Cummings.

The story of the movie is presented in three stories of mysticism and the supernatural, supplemented with Robert Benchley's musings on the subject.

The first episode is about an ugly, embittered little dressmaker who finds true beauty through the aid of a mysterious little old man. The second episode concerns a palmist who reads murder in a man's hand and how it affects the man's life and fate. The final episode shows the power and reality of dreams in the life of a famous tightrope-walker.

The showings will be at 2:30 and 4:30 p.m. Admission is 30 cents. A short and a WSSF newsreel will supplement the feature.

The movie committee of the Student Union Board sponsor the movies for all members of the University family.

Education Honorary Will Hear Chisholm

Miss Thelma Chisholm, Seattle, national vice-president of Pi Lambda Theta, women's education honorary, will speak to the University chapter of the group at a meeting at 7 p.m. tonight in the graduate lounge of the education building. A business meeting will follow.

The Bird to Fly the Coop in June As SU Progress Brushes it off

By Phil Bettens

Its real name is The Falcon. But hardly anyone calls it that.

To thousands of University of Oregon students—past and present—the tiny restaurant across Onyx St. from John Straub dorm is known as "The Bird."

"Many of the students call this their 'second home,'" said Clara Buerstatte, present owner of The Bird.

And to many who meet there to talk, have a snack, play cards, or even to study The Bird is just that—a nice, cozy place, with a big fireplace at one end of the main room.

Built in 1933

And the little restaurant has an interesting history, too.

The Falcon was designed and built in 1933 by two brothers, Fred and Richard Guske, who were then students at the University. They operated the restaurant for about 14 years, including the time they were in college.

"They used the proceeds from The Falcon to pay their way through school," said Mrs. Guske, wife of Richard.

There's an apartment upstairs, over the restaurant, and a little shop—now occupied by a cleaning establishment—on one side.

Only recently, the University purchased the property on which The Bird stands. The whole area behind the new Student Union is to become a mall and parking lot.

Intimate Atmosphere

"Our business hasn't been hurt appreciably by the Student Union," Mrs. Buerstatte said. "The people who frequent The Bird seem to prefer its intimate atmosphere."

"It'll be too bad to see it go," Mrs. Guske also commented. "There are a lot of wonderful memories connected with The Bird for many, many Oregon alumni and students."

With huge earth-moving machines nibbling at the back door of the little place—starting work on the new mall—the days of The Bird are numbered. And when it closes, another old Oregon tradition will have passed on.

But until then, well.... "See you at The Bird."

Want a Summer with ECA? Agency Accepting Applications

Applications are now being accepted by the Economic Cooperation Administration for a limited number of student internship positions available in the agency's Washington office during this coming summer.

Graduate and undergraduate students will find these summer work assignments in such fields as public administration, international relations, political science, economics, journalism, social sciences, and others.

Only students who will definitely continue their academic work after the internship will be eligible to apply, both undergraduates and graduates who have been accepted for further study in the fall.

Salary rates range from $2,650 to $3,100 a year. The assignments are to begin on or before July 1, and continue approximately two months.

Information as to where applications are available and other requirements for the positions is available at the graduate placement office, Emerald Hall.

Service Group Initiates 4 Men

Alpha Phi Omega, national service honorary, initiated four new members Thursday night and discussed plans for participation in the special events program of the World Student Service Fund drive.

The new members are James Lancaster, Don Parr, Jim Watkins, and Ernest McCook. They successfully completed their period of pledge membership, which included attendance at weekly pledge meetings and participation in service projects.

In addition to the WSSF activities, the members discussed plans for the presentation of the Alpha Phi Omega scholarship, which will be awarded this spring.

Also on the agenda were discussion of plans for Alpha Phi Omega assistance to the Eugene Council in connection with the latter's summer camp and formulation of plans for Saturday's swimming meet for Explorer Scouts, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega.

UO Men to Talk At Reed College

Three University faculty members will be participants in panel discussions at Reed College in Portland this weekend.

Frederick Combella, associate professor of classical languages; Quirinus Breen, professor of history and social science; and Bertam Jessup, associate professor of philosophy, will take part in discussions as part of a conference on humanities being held Friday and Saturday on the college campus.

Combella will discuss biographical and literary criticism; Breen will participate in a discussion of "Historical Objectivity;" and Jessup will discuss "The Changing Meaning of a Work of Art."

Several other University faculty members are expected to attend the conference.

Red Cross Job Positions Open

All applications for Red Cross positions in its armed forces and veterans programs are due by Sunday the graduate placement office has announced. Applications should be in that office before that date or post-marked by that time.

The jobs open include field directors and social and recreational workers. Physical education and health majors are preferred for the positions. A representative for the Red Cross will be on campus to interview applicants in May.

Music Group Picks Nine New Members

Mu Phi Epsilon, national women's music fraternity, pledged nine new members at the end of winter term.

These pledges are Dorothy Pederson, Jean Spicer, Shirley Foster, and Virginia Rabick, freshmen in music; Yvonne Reed, freshman in liberal arts; Mary Lou Watts, sophomore in music; Lois Maier and Joan Cavey, juniors in music; and Mary Harrison, graduate student in music.

Seven Students Rate Lawyers' Honor Roll

Seven law students are listed on the Law School honor roll for winter term, according to announcement made this week.

Honor roll standing requires the carrying of a full study load and a cumulative grade point average of 3.00 for work done in the law school.

The list in rank order includes Alfred T. Goodwin and Walter Probert, third year students; Kenneth A. Poole, Lester D. Pederson, Robert W. Hill, and William E. Love, second year students; and William E. Duhaime, first year student.

Moore to Study U.S. Population

E. H. Moore, head of the sociology department, will study the degree of social participation of the older population of the country, during a year's sabbatical leave which will begin Sunday.

During his absence J. V. Berreman, associate professor of sociology, will be acting department head.

Moore's studies, a continuation of work which he has been doing during the past six years, will take him to the Middle West, East, South, and back to the West. The survey will be concentrated on that part of the population which has been retired from two to seven years and is in good health.

Areas around the University of Michigan and Cornell University will be the site for the first of the studies. Moore will then move to the South and West. He will also observe social and recreational facilities in Cleveland, Ohio, Philadelphia, Pa., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

Moore, who has been at Oregon since 1935, is the author of numerous articles on the subject of the aged.

Institute to Offer Personnel Work Training Program

An internship training program will be offered at the Western Personnel Institute for the year 1951-52 to a select group of graduate students interested in various aspects of personnel work, according to the graduate placement office.

Selection of students for the program will be based on a broad academic background with emphasis on the student's qualifications for the field of educational personnel. An interested program of field work and academic study is to be offered by the Institute, combining the facilities of the Claremont Graduate School with 24 western colleges and universities.

Further information as to where applications for the program can be obtained and answers to other questions may be found at the placement office in Emerald hall.

The Swiss Confederation dates back to 1291 when a group of mountaineers and peasants from three cantons met in a mountain meadow and formed a league.
