

Speculation Begins For UO Ugly Man

Speculation Begins For UO Ugly Man

By Helen Jackson
 "Who do you think is the campus ugly man?" The Emerald ad portrayed five possibilities but they all looked like they had stepped from the pages of Tennyson's "Idylls of the King."

Surely no Oregon man has that "medieval look"! But it seems that three people had opinions anyway. When asked "who do you think is the campus male 'Nancy O'?" the following had their ideas.

Harriet Vahey, sophomore in liberal arts—"Gee, I'd say Jim Loscutoff! I never did think he was ugly but he does resemble the ugly man third from the left in the Emerald ad. It's that profile that brought my attention to it. 'Course I haven't been lining the men up in the 'ugly' category."

Ernie Baldinin, junior in political science—"As much as I'd like to say Bill Carey, Barry Mountain has it head and shoulders above the rest. I've thought about Barry in that capacity for sometime. Everyone would agree if they could see him at eight o'clock in the morning—that is, when he gets up."

Barbara Keelan, freshman in liberal arts—"Oh, I'd say Bill Carey. It's pretty hard to narrow the field down but Bill is pretty outstanding. He runs true to the character of the fellows in the ad. He's my choice."

Of course, nothing is settled and the question still remains and the ad is still running. But it is interesting to get opinions.

Who is the ugliest man on the Campus?

The only cattle in the Oregon county prior to 1837 belonged to the Hudson's Bay Company.

They're right — from the moment you try them on. Finest leathers, plus patented nailless construction, make Allen-Edmonds shoes the most comfortable you ever wore. The comfort is guaranteed in writing.

Arbuckles

Double Trouble

A DUAL PROBLEM in shaving is faced by Harvey E. Day, of Minneapolis, as his year-old English cocker spaniel, Trigger, indulges in its liking for lather during shaving.

Puddles to Inspire Ducks

By Larry Hobart

With the advent of spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of baseball. Soon the air above Howe Field will really be swarming with hard horse-hide covered spheres propelled through the energetic efforts of dozens of sun-bronzed youths, since the home season opened Monday. And who will be watching this spectacle? Drippy-nosed kids? Bleacher coaches? Co-eds?

Yes, they'll all be there, but the most important on-looker will be that dauntless duck, Puddles.

For Puddles, the University of Oregon's feathered mascot, is the school's most ardent fan and possesses an esprit de corps far exceeding many of the students that he represents.

Puddles now resides at the home of Athletic Director Leo Harris. The fearless fowl is at the present time regaining his composure following his return from the OSC campus two weeks ago where he was held captive during the final basketball series between the Webfoots and the Beavers.

Intimate reports from sources close to Puddles indicate that the battling bird is actually a homebody and quite content to remain in Eugene, contrary to information released by OSC students.

At any rate, Puddles will be in there pitching for the Webfoots during the 1951 baseball season.

WSSF Regional Official Tells Plight of Refugees

"American students may feel they are poor but they have no real value of money in terms of a refugee student in Germany or Greece or Southeast Asia," Mrs. Gladys Lawther, regional secretary for the World Student Service Fund drive, said Monday.

Mrs. Lawther, who will be on campus until Wednesday, is helping with the interpretation of what WSSF is and is distributing material from the regional offices in Portland in preparation for the WSSF drive which begins officially Apr. 9.

"It is frightening to see the apathy that has developed among student groups in meeting student needs throughout the world," Mrs. Lawther stated. She also tied in the thought that although the military is spending tremendous sums of money, very little is being spent on the positive side, such as education, which will lead to world peace and understanding.

An Oregon Alumna
 Being an Oregon alumna, Mrs. Lawther said "it's a real thrill to come back and see how the drive is progressing." In her capacity as regional secretary, she visits campuses in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana and arranges speakers for WSSF drives.

One of the particular aspects of the WSSF drive, according to Mrs. Lawther is that there is no quota. "To me the most dramatic illustration of the uselessness of a quota lies in the situation in Indonesia. There are 3,000 college students in a country of 80 million people with only 15 months of independence in its history. How can you establish a quota when the need goes on and on?"

Assam to Get EO Funds
 Assam, the section of India to receive Oregon WSSF funds, faces a similar situation with the added tragedy of having the worst earthquake since 1897 striking the country last fall. Appeals have come into the regional offices from all over the world including Yugoslavia, Mrs. Lawther pointed out.

The unique aspects of the Oregon WSSF drive, according to Mrs. Lawther, is the Vodvil show. "Many campuses have carnivals or some similar event but the Vodvil show is different. Many campuses do nothing beyond solicitations," she said.

In Both Capacities
 Mrs. Lawther will be acting in both her capacities, as regional WSSF secretary and as regional YWCA secretary, working with the solicitors and committees of WSSF in preparation for their drive beginning Monday, and also meeting with the senior and sophomore Y cabinets and the advisory board.

Although Mrs. Lawther is not here to recruit staff members for the national Y, she would be glad to talk with interested students about that work, according to Miss Lois Greenwood, campus YWCA executive director. Appointments to see Mrs. Lawther may be made by calling the Y.

This weekend, Mrs. Lawther was a featured speaker at the senior Y cabinet retreat.

Junior IFC to Meet

The Junior Inter-Fraternity Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at Phi Kappa Psi, President Bill Paulus announced.

The council will hold election of new officers and discuss plans for a clean-up project following the annual Junior Weekend Picnic in co-operation with another organization, Paulus said.

Weekend Publicity Committee to Meet

All members of the Junior Weekend publicity committee will meet at 4 p.m. today in the Student Union, Clara Belle Roth, Junior Weekend publicity chairman, has announced.

The location of the meeting will be posted on the SU bulletin board.

Plans and procedures for Junior Weekend publicity will be explained, Miss Roth concluded.

Tea Held Monday For House Officials

A tea was held Monday afternoon in the Carson Hall music room by Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs, for Heads of Houses, both old and new, and housemothers.

Installation of officers was held. New officers of the organization are Barbara Williams, president; Marian Briner, vice-president; and Jo Anne Hewitt, secretary-treasurer.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

- 11 a.m.—Red Cross, 111 SU
- 11:45 a.m.—Chemistry Dept., 110 SU
- 12 noon—Gamma Alpha Chi, 315 SU
- 4 p.m.—Jr. Wk. Publicity Comm., 334 SU
- Phi Theta Upsilon, 333 SU
- Culture Foundations Seminar, 110 SU
- Vodvil Comm., 114 SU
- WSSF, 111 SU
- AWS Congress, 315 SU
- 6 p.m.—Propeller Club, 113 SU
- 6:30 p.m.—Mu Phi Epsilon, 315 SU
- Scabbard and Blade, 114 SU
- 7 p.m.—Propeller Club, 112 SU
- AWS, WRA, YWCA, Installation, Alumni Hall
- Inter-Dorm Council, 214 SU
- IVCF, 334 SU
- Newman Club Exec. Cn., 110 SU
- SDX, 111 SU
- 7:30 p.m.—Student AIA, Dads' Lounge
- 8 p.m.—Abramowitsch Concert, Music Sch. Aud.

Best Suited

For taking care of your dry cleaning needs—our modern personalized conditioning method of cleaning that revitalizes wools, returns all fabrics to their original look of new!

SAVE MONEY BY CASH AND CARRY

BOTH LOCATIONS

1420 Onyx

643 13th Ave. E.