

Twenty-seven Faculty Members Get Grants From Research Fund

Twenty-seven faculty members have been given grants from the general research fund, it has been announced by Eldon Johnson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts.

Selections were made on the basis of competence and were awarded by an advisory committee. On the average, grants were around $500 and were given so that faculty members could continue research on their own time.

The list of those receiving grants and the projects they will work on includes:

A Through C

Ewart M. Baldwin, associate professor of geography and geology, search for pliocene vertebrate faunas and a study of associated strata in Oregon.

Joel V. Berreman, professor of sociology, survey of drinking patterns of students and their parents.

Quirinus Breen, professor of history, editing of Nizolius' "De veris principiis" and translation and editing of Leibniz' "De style philosophico Nizolie."

Duncan W. Cleaves, instructor in chemistry, thermodynamics of the rearrangements of iminoesters in concentrated sulfuric acid.

L. S. Cressman, head of the anthropology department, Klamath Indian pre-history and its place in the Northern Basin culture.

D Through G

Francis E. Dart, assistant professor of physics, optical and electronic properties of semi-conductors.

Robert B. Dean, assistant professor of chemistry, study of the diffusion coefficients of colored non-ionic molecules in water.

S. N. Dicken, head of the geography department, a geographic study of the Oregon Klamath region.

E. G. Ebbighousen, associate professor of physics, investigations in beta spectroscopy.

Alice Henson Ernst, associate professor Emeritus of English, a history of the theatre in Oregon.

V. R. Gaertner, assistant professor of chemistry, the influence of aromaticity of organic compounds on substitution and rearrangement.

H Through M

Gordon D. Hoyt, assistant professor of physics, measurement of beta and gamma radiations from radioactive nuclei (with Dr. Ebbighousen).

R. R. Huestis, professor of zoology, study of optic asymmetry.

W. S. Laughlin, assistant professor of anthropology, archaeology and ethnology of the Aleuts.

Howard V. Meredith, professor of health and physical education, body size and motor abilities of Oregon elementary school girls.

E. H. Moore, head of sociology department, investigation of retired personnel to determine the influence of community breaks on extent and quality of social participation.

N Through R

Ivan Nagy, assistant professor of political science, the phenomena of Nationalist Communist deviation in international relations.

Ivan M. Niven, professor of mathematics, research in problems of asymptotic density.

W. V. Norris, professor of physics, microwave spectroscopy in ozone and free radicals studies.

V. A. Ostrom, assistant professor of political science, the law of the Columbia River.

Arthur Pap, assistant professor of philosophy, studies in theory of definition and meaning.

F. J. Reithel, associate professor of chemistry, separation of phosphate esters by chromatography.

S Through Z

B. T. Scheer, associate professor of biology, hormonal control of metabolism in crustaceans.

P. E. Simpson, associate professor of economics, balance of payments in the Pacific Northwest.

A. L. Soderwall, assistant professor of biology, length of visibility of spermatozoa within the reproductive tract of the female hamster.

D. F. Swinehart, assistant professor of chemistry, mechanism of the "dead stop" end point and equilibria of bismuth trioxide in dilute solutions of acid and alkali.

Pierre Van Rysselberghe, professor of chemistry, physical chemical and electrochemical properties of percarbonic acids and percarbonates.

Psych Students Accept Offers

Six graduate assistants and graduate students in psychology at the University of Oregon have accepted offers of assistantships from other schools, where they will begin work next fall.

Graduate assistants in psychology who have accepted offers are as follows:

George W. Kent, a research assistantship at the University of Wisconsin; Henry Von Holt Jr., an assistantship at Clark University; Edward A. Wade, an assistantship at the University of Minnesota.

The following graduate students in psychology have accepted offers from other schools:

Joseph J. Fortier, an assistantship at the University of Michigan; Donald R. Goodenough, an assistantship at the University of Pittsburgh; Leonard M. Lansky, a research assistantship at the University of Michigan.

Other graduate assistants and graduate students in psychology are considering offers, and are being considered for similar positions.

Ugly Men Show Confidence In Contest Result

The six Ugliest Men on the Campus after the first day of competition Monday are Tom Barry, Jack Faust, Jack Landrud, Jim Loscutoff, Bob Peterson, and Dave Gibson.

These candidates' milk bottles in the Co-op in the contest to benefit the World Student Service Fund were high in first-day contributions of $23.09. This was under what was expected, according to Jackie Wilkes, drive chairman.

The contest will continue through Saturday, with the winner, or Ugliest Man, to be announced at the All-Campus Vodvil Saturday night.

Foreign Teaching Jobs Announced by U. N.

Teaching positions in foreign countries have been announced by the International Universities Bureau of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization for the coming year.

The positions cover several fields and many of them do not require a knowledge of the language of the country. Further information can be obtained from the Teacher Placement Service.

Dames to Hold Sale

A cookie sale will be held Wednesday at the Co-op, sponsored by the Dames Club, an organization of veterans' wives.

Members of the club will meet at 8 p.m. today in Gerlinger and are asked to bring cookies for the sale to the meeting.

IFC Nominates Officers for 1951

The Interfraternity Council nominated officers and heard Ray Hawk, dean of men's affairs, give a bright picture of fraternity strength due to the new draft deferment policy at its meeting last week.

Nominated for IFC offices were president—Norman Peterson, Phi Delta Theta; Dick McLaughlin, Chi Psi; Ken Ball, Beta Theta Pi; vice-president—Larry Dean, Sigma Nu; secretary-treasurer—Fred Baltz, Phi Sigma Kappa.

Hawk told the group that instead of the drop in enrollment at the university expected in the fall, an increase is now expected due to the new deferment test which, if passed, will allow more students to attend and stay in college.

A proposal was made that all fraternities adopt a policy of providing board and room free for one foreign student. Hawk warned the group that at this time many of the fraternities are not in adequate financial condition for this, and should wait until they were sure they could support a foreign student.

Blanks Due for Advanced ROTC

Basic Army Reserve Officers Training Corps students may turn in applications for advanced ROTC through Friday, according to Lt. Col. John H. Cunningham, head of the military science and tactics department.

Applications may be obtained in regular class periods or from the information window of the military department. Further details will be supplied by ROTC instructors.

Applicants will be questioned by an officers' interview board between Apr. 16 and 26. Notification of acceptance will be made near the end of spring term.

Applications for advanced Air Force ROTC will be available after May 1, it has been announced by Lt. Col. E. L. Hibner, professor of air science and tactics.
