

Art Workshops Being Offered

Interested in a summer workshop in art? Workshops are being offered jointly by the Portland Extension Center and the Museum Art School for the six weeks period from June 18 to July 27.

The size of the class will be limited, however, and students are urged to register now to insure a place.

Hal Riegger, nationally known ceramist, will come from San Francisco to conduct a special course in ceramics, as part of the guidance offered to the student.

The tuition fee is $21 for a class. All classes are fully accredited under the Oregon State System of Higher Education.

Dance Petitions Due

Petitions for Mortar Board Ball chairmanships and committee memberships will be due at 5 p.m. Wednesday to Betty Wright at the Delta Gamma house.

Committees open include general chairman, decorations, programs, promotion, publicity, intermission entertainment, tickets, chaperones, and clean-up.

Illinois University Libe Director On Tour to Visit Duck Library

Robert B. Downs, director of the University of Illinois library, will visit the University of Oregon library Wednesday as a part of a tour of west coast libraries.

Downs will observe the open-stack system instituted here this year. Under this system students are allowed to obtain books directly from the bookshelves rather than requesting them over a desk by call number.

Downs has been at Illinois since 1943, previously serving at many universities and colleges and at the New York Public Library. He was advisor to the Library of Congress and last year was sent to Japan to set up a library school there.

Under his direction, the University of Illinois' 2,200,000 volume library, whose collections are third largest of American educational libraries, and library school have expanded activities in various directions. A rare book room, map room, undergraduate library, physical education library, and music library have been established. The library staff has been given faculty status, and the library school curriculum revised.

Downs will leave for the University of California at Berkeley at the end of his one-day visit.

Civil Service Man Sets Government Interviews

Ralph Underwood of the Oregon State Civil Service Commission will be on campus Wednesday and Thursday to meet with students interested in state government and the jobs available with it.

He will furnish general information on various state government departments. The interviews will probably be most interesting to political science, economics, business administration, and social science majors, according to the graduate placement office.

Appointments may be made at the placement office, Emerald Hall.

Medical Movies Set for McClure

Two March of Time movies on medicine will be shown at 7 p.m. today in 105 McClure. The features to be presented are titled "Modern Surgery" and "New Frontiers in Medicine."

The showing is sponsored by Asklepiads, pre-medical honorary. All pre-medical students and others interested may attend. Following the movies there will be a short meeting of all Asklepiad members.

Law School Selects Own 'Ugly Man'

A new angle to the World Student Service Fund-Alpha Phi Omega Ugly Man contest was revealed Sunday when law school social chairman Bill Taylor announced that the law school student body had selected an Ugly Man contestant, Dave Dardano, to compete with other campus "Ugly Men" for top honors.

Dardano was selected at a law school student body meeting last week. "It was a close race between Bob Jones and Dave, but Dave finally won out," Taylor said. "We are saving Bob Jones' beauty for Law School Weekend."

The winner of the Ugly Man contest will receive "The Thing," a box of "Something" which is being displayed in the Co-op this week. It will be awarded at the Vodvil Show Saturday.

Rush Signup Deadline

Women interested in spring term rushing may register at the office of the director of women's affairs. Deadline for the sign-up is Apr. 19.

Reds Open Gates In Flood Attempt

By Larry Hobart
From the wires of Associated Press

The Chinese Reds opened the sluice gates of the big Hwachon Reservoir in the face of advancing Allied troops Monday, but the flood fell short of its intended mark.

The rushing water raised the level of the Pukhan River three feet, but by noon the peak had been reached.

An Allied tank column sped northward, seeking to seize control of the dam.

A United Nations technical engineering expert said it was apparent that the Communists had not been able to open enough of the dam gates simultaneously or had failed to open them far enough to cause any real damage.

The dam, 880 feet wide and 275 feet high, had 18 gates. The engineering spokesman said that if it all had been opened wide, a 10-foot wall of water would have poured down the Pukhan Valley toward Chunchon. If the dam itself had been destroyed, Army experts said, the entire Chunchon plain would have been put under one foot of water.

The onrushing flood waters were first reported by two American military policemen on duty at a pontoon bridge over the Pukhan 200 yards south of the 38th parallel. The dam is six and one-half miles north of the parallel.

Disciplinary Action Against General MacArthur

... because of his latest public statements was reported Monday to have been decided against by President Truman if it would upset the General's status as Supreme Commander in the Far East.

An informed Congressional official, who asked that his name not be used, told the decision to a reporter Monday. He said that Truman's action did not mean there would be no reprimand to MacArthur—but that the President apparently has not yet made up his mind about that question.

The White House itself was silent about what, if any, action might be taken.

Democratic Congressional leaders acknowledged that there had been some discussion of MacArthur at a forenoon conference with the President. But they said the general was mentioned only incidentally.

It was learned, however, that Congressional leaders have been told that any action to relieve the general of his command might upset the existing situation in occupied Japan.

France Teamed With Great Britain...

... Monday in opposing Gen. MacArthur's proposal for use of Chiang Kai-Shek's troops by the United Nations in an effort to win the war in Korea.

This was reported by the semi-official French News Agency and later confirmed by a foreign ministry spokesman.

The news agency said the government "confirmed that throughout the conversations carried on by diplomatic channels at Washington and Lake Success to fix the common position of the powers with troops in Korea, France as well as Great Britain has constantly opposed any extension of the conflict, whether by bombing Manchuria or the use of Nationalist Chinese troops, and in general by activity of the Commander-in-Chief not expressly approved by the U.N."

Universal Military Training...

... advocates backed down still further Monday. They agreed to a draft bill amendment which cuts their proposal down to nothing more than authorization for drawing up a plan for Congress to pass on later.

Under the new language approved by the House Armed Services Committee, it would take a regular new law, passed by Congress and signed by the president, to put any training plan into effect.

Speaker of the House Rayburn again told White House reporters Monday that the United States is in "terrible danger" because the Russians are building up concentrations "here and there and everywhere."

Last week Rayburn came out of a White House conference and said not all the troops gathering in Manchuria were Chinese Communists. Rayburn also said that the U.S. was threatened by "a terrible danger" which might bring on another world war.

Rayburn's statements were made on the House floor last week as debate on the controversial Draft-Universal Military Training bill.

The U. S. Supreme Court...

... agreed Monday to step into the government's thus far unsuccessful efforts to outlaw medical and hospital insurance plans operated exclusively by doctors' societies.

The Justice Department asked the high tribunal to review a lower court's finding that such plans do not violate anti-trust laws.

The test case was brought in Oregon in 1948 against the Oregon Physicians' Service, its sponsor, the Oregon State Medical Society, affiliated county societies, and a number of doctor members.

The U. S. District Court at Portland dismissed the case after a trial which ran through many months last year.

A State Cigarette Tax...

... of three cents a package and a five per cent boost in liquor prices might make it possible to take care of emergency building needs of state institutions and the State Board of Higher Education.

The cigarette tax, to raise $10,000,000 during the next two-year budget period, was approved Saturday by the point Legislative Ways and Means Committee. It also asked the Liquor Commission to produce an extra $3,000,000, which would mean an average liquor price of five per cent.

The committee would put the entire $13,000,000 in the State General Fund. Committee members would like to take care of the most important of the $24,000,000 worth of buildings asked by the State Board of Control and the Board of Higher Education.
