

Capitol Newsman to Speak Here

Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Post, speaking daily in Washington, D. C., will come to the University of Oregon Apr. 29 to May 2 to talk with journalism students and professional newsmen.

He will also be the featured speaker at a joint Matrix Table-Grignon Banquet May 1 sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi and Delta Chi, women's and men's national journalism fraternities, respectively.

The banquet, to be held in the Student Union, is a combination of two dinners—Matrix Table-Grignon Banquet—held annually by the fraternities.

Wiggins will also speak to a small group of working newspapermen from Oregon papers at a special day seminar on the campus May 2. His off-the-record discussion then will be on the subject of the News Scene in Washington.

Wiggins is a member of Sigma Chi, the Gridiron Club, and National Press Club.

The speaker has been managing editor of the Post for four years. He started his newspaper career 15 years ago as a county editor. At that time he has been personal assistant to the publisher of the New York Times and editor, managing editor, and Washington correspondent of the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch.

Ratio of Men to Women Remains Over 2-1 for Spring Term

The ratio of men to women for the spring term remains at slightly over 2 to 1, there being 2,066 men for every woman on campus.

According to Registrar Clifford Constance, there are 2,974 men and 1,440 women registered for the spring term, making a total of 4,414 students. This is a drop of 15 per cent over last year.

The University's total will somewhat exceed 4,450 this term, a decrease of about 6 per cent from the total winter term, Constance said. The registrar's office at Oregon State expects a total of 4,100, a 7 per cent drop from the winter term total of 5,408.

Commenting on the registration, Constance said, "This is better than expected, as I thought the drop from winter to spring would be the same as from fall to winter." The decrease from fall to winter was 9 per cent.

He cited as reasons that more students have come to the campus this term that had not been here before and that veteran's aid expires in July for those who are not taking advantage of it. He also mentioned that the selective service problems are becoming more settled and students feel they can plan to go to college without having their education interrupted, for a while anyway.

The sophomores have the largest class, 1,047 members, followed by the freshman with 979, the juniors with 828, and the seniors with 808. In addition, there are 587 graduate students and 165 special students.

Remodelling Program, New J School Need Approval of Oregon Legislature

A state building program which would include remodeling and expansion of the University journalism building, remodeling and addition to the business administration-social sciences buildings, and construction of a medical school teaching hospital was proposed by the State Board of Higher Education to the State Legislature Saturday.

The $6,620,000 State Board program, which places the $4 million teaching hospital first, the BA building third, and the journalism building fourth in priority for the 1951-53 biennium, was submitted at a meeting of the legislative ways and means committee. Construction projects of Oregon State College have second and fifth priorities.

The board's original request was for $11,750,000 for construction. If money for the board's program is to be appropriated in the near future, a bill must be passed before the Legislature adjourns its present session, which will tentatively be in the next few weeks.

School of Journalism expansion, for which $500,000 has been requested in the program, would include tearing down McClure Hall, which now is the site of the chemistry department, installation of the new wing in its place, and remodeling of the present journalism building.

Preliminary plans for the new wing have been approved by the State Board of Higher Education, and final plans, prepared by Church, Newberry, and Roehr, Portland architects, should be ready within 30 to 60 days.

The new wing will provide about 20,000 square feet of additional floor space to the journalism building. Gordon A. Sabine, dean of the School of Journalism, said. He said that the building is being planned with an eye toward the future peak enrollments of 1960 and 1965, and should be adequate to handle the increased registrations.

The proposed School of Journalism will include the University (please turn to page eight)

Total of Visitors Falls Below Goal

Only about 500 high school seniors were registered at the Student Union by the close of Duck Preview weekend—200 fewer than expected—according to figures compiled by Registration Chairman Donna Pastrouich.

Many more were believed to have been on the campus for the weekend, designed to give prospective University students a glimpse of college life, but official registration was one step bypassed, Miss Pastrouich said.

Most events on the agenda were well attended by the visiting students. The Friday night assembly, put on by the Class of '54, drew a full house, as did the Saturday luncheon in the SU. More than 300 girls, nearly the total number registered, attended a special assembly for them, but the boys' assembly only brought out about 25 fellows.

TKE Takes First Prize At Vodvil

With a skit entitled "Interpretive Ballet," Tau Kappa Epsilon won the trophy for the outstanding act in the All-campus Vodvil show Saturday night.

Lois Willisma, Delta Gamma, won the individual trophy for her part in the DG skit, "Let Me In."

Honorable mention went to Lambda Chi Alpha for "The Raven" and Theta Chi for its "Old-Fashioned Pantomime." Proceeds from the Vodvil show went to the World Student Service Fund drive.

The winning skit was a take-off of a ballet entitled "Red Riding Hood." Karl Harshbarger acted as narrator, with Dick Neibour dancing the role of Red Riding Hood and Eric Matthews, the Wolf. "The Trees" were Jerry Markham and Mark Van Voorhis with Dick Humphrey providing background music.

During intermission Harriet Vahey and Hal Simmons entertained with two musical numbers and Tom Barry was presented as winner of the Alpha Phi Omega-WSSF Ugly Man contest. Jackie Wilkes, WSSF chairman, gave a financial report on the drive.

While the judges were tabulating the scores for each skit, the "Delt Trio plus one" played several numbers. This group is composed of Fred Schneider, Paul Barrow, Jim Bradford, and Jack (Billy) Eckstein. Bill Frye was Vodvil master of ceremonies.

WSSF Drive Total May Reach $2,000

"We figure on clearing the $2,000 mark for the World Student Service Fund drive as soon as all the figures are in," Jackie Wilkes, WSSF drive chairman, said Sunday.

A total of $1,167 was collected through personal solicitations. Approximately $800 worth of tickets was sold for the All-campus Vodvil show, the proceeds going to the WSSF drive, according to DeLores Parrish, ticket chairman. "With the faculty contributions yet to come in, we should have $2,000 (please turn to page eight)

All Draft-eligible College Men To Be Given Chance to Take Test

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said Sunday that drafting of college men will be delayed this spring until their test scores and scholastic standings have been calculated.

Hershey also said, in a broadcast and in conversation with re-

Applications Out Today

Selective Service Forms 106 and 107, application postal card for the Selective Service Qualification Test, should be picked up as soon as possible at the local draft board.

porters, that he believes "the great mass of college freshmen will assemble freely next fall without interference from selective service."

Educators here said thousands of queries have been received from college men worried by the fact that their school terms—and their statutory deferment—may end before they can take the forthcoming college qualification test, or before their scholastic grades are out.

Students who score 70 or better in the test, or who are in the upper ranks scholastically, may be granted occupational deferment in order to resume their education next fall. However, many school terms end before the test dates—May 26, June 16, and June 30—and scholastic standings often are not determined by colleges for weeks after school is out.

Hershey said also that the Kilday amendment to the draft bill which the House passed Friday, setting out that draft boards are not to be bound by the aptitude tests, "in no way impairs our plans for giving the tests or using the scores."
