

Council Approves Frosh Orientation, Summer Picnic

The ASUO Executive Council Monday evening agreed upon a University of Oregon summer picnic and voted to step into a new area of student responsibility by cooperating with the Office of Student Affairs in the presentation of extensive freshmen orientation program.

The council also accepted the recommendation of the Publications Board for the appointment of Bob Ford, freshman in pre-journalism, as editor of the Ore-Nter, orientation booklet, and heard a discussion of the National Students Association by Al Loienstein, national president.

A program of orientation for freshman, a portion of the plan submitted by the ASUO dormitory committee which visited Stanford, was approved by the executive council and petitions for the position of orientation chairman were called for by Mountain. Applications should be turned in to the ASUO office not later than 12 noon Friday. A screening committee will interview candidates at 4 p.m. Friday. Those passing the committee successfully will meet with the council at its regular Monday evening session.

To Revive Spirit

Anderson, speaking to the council on the orientation proposal, said that the plan presented a way in which to revive class spirit within the University and to stimulate alumni interest.

Donald DuShane, director of student affairs, expressed hope that the orientation plan could be placed in operation in the fall "substantially as proposed." "I welcome a working partnership with a joint program and increasing control by students," he said.

The duties of the chairman, as outlined by Mountain, would be to work closely with the Office of Student Affairs and to select a committee from members of class honoraries to run the orientation program. The chairman would be responsible to the Office of Student Affairs but would also be guided in his actions by student government.

ASUO President Barry Mountain Monday evening called for the appearance of the chairman of the Student Discipline Committee, J. M. Foskett, and several members of the committee before the Executive Council to explain their procedure in handling discipline cases.

Mrs. Ernest McKeene, president of the Oregon Mother's Club, and Les Anderson, alumni secretary, acquainted the council with details of former picnics held for the University family. The executive group agreed unanimously to hold the picnic at Jatzon Park in Portland during the summer months.

Mrs. McKeene explained to the group that the cost of food for recent picnics, the last of which was held two years ago, had been split between the State Board of the Oregon Mothers, the Portland unit of the Mother's Club, and the Oregon Dad's Club, with each paying one third. She said that an estimated 2,000 students and alumni attended the last picnic.

Election of Officers in Law School Quite Unique but Interesting

COUNTY of FENTON, State of Hollis—(Special)—Law books are closed. Law School Weekend and royal court hullabaloo, usually at a high pitch about this time of year, is at low ebb.

The attention of the 90 inhabitants of Fenton Hall is focused on the selection of a new president for the realm. And election day is Wednesday.

Outgoing President Jim Hafey, in his last official act before stepping down, has proclaimed that Fenton, too, will operate on "daylight time." There was some controversy over whether the governor of Oregon's proclamation had any effect within Fenton, but Hafey decided that the interest of Fenton's farmers, fishermen, and golfers all were benefitted by the "fast time."

So, the election will be held from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. daylight time, with an hour off for lunch from 12 to 1.

Three candidates—all claiming "grass roots" origin, and to be representing "all of the peons of Fenton" and not any special class, interest group, or Greek affiliation, are vying for the lucrative position. However, there is a rumor that the feminine members have decided to consolidate, and may throw a ringer into the pre-election dopesters by running a write-in candidate of their own.

Proper authorized candidates are

Dale Pederson, Ed O'Reilly, and Ken Poole.

Pederson is promising the constituents more and larger "parades," with proper weather conditions.

O'Reilly is running on a plank to restore control of Fenton to the honest people, and away from the gamblers who have taken control, and operate the "pepper games," the most important single activity within the realm.

Poole, the only present member ever to come out with a "four point," is appealing to the intelligentsia in an attempt to wiggle control away from the ignorant masses.

Hafey reports that plans are all set for the election. His only problem now—and it is one that arises each year at this time in Fenton—is to devise some way of making the total number of votes equal the number of eligible voters. The philosophy of "vote early, and vote often" is the perennial by word in Fenton elections.

Should the election be contested Hafey has announced that the presidency will be determined by the only other equitable means known—a "pepper game" with unmarked cards (if any can be found that have not been tampered with). To the winner will go the spoils of this great political office.

Wiggins Speaks At SU Luncheon

A luncheon featuring a discussion with J. Russell Wiggins, managing editor of the Washington Daily Post, will be held at noon today in the SU for all persons interested in journalism. The Emerald is sponsoring the luncheon.

Wiggins, who is on campus for four days, will answer questions of the luncheon guests.

ROTC Students; No Complaints?

ROTC students have apparently found a "home in the service." An inspection party visiting Oregon's military department scheduled two hours to hear student "gripes." Only one person appeared.

The inspection group, which is composed of officers of 6th Army and 4th Air Force, will review Air Force and Army ROTC detachments today.

Committee Suspends Barclay, Loscutoff

Curt Barclay and Jim Loscutoff, stars of this year's Webfoot basketball team, were suspended for one year from the University of Oregon Monday night by the student discipline committee.

Lyle Nelson, director of public service, said that this is "all the information that would be released. He said this is the practice of the committee in discipline cases. Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, stated the reason for the suspension could not be disclosed because it was a "touchy" matter.

"All members of the Student Discipline Committee were instructed not to release the information by chairman J. M. Foskett," Hawk said. Foskett is an associate professor of sociology.

When basketball coach John Warren was informed of the suspension by the Emerald, he said that the news took him "completely by surprise."

"It's a disciplinary matter—not in my department," he said. He added that it was too soon to tell how the suspension of the two athletes would affect next year's basketball team.

"That's too far away to think about. This whole thing is kind of a surprise; but that's that, I guess," Warren stated.

Non-Partisan Group Supports Giles for Senate

Formation of a non-partisan committee to elect Arlo W. Giles, non-partisan candidate for senator-at-large, was announced on Monday.

Co-chairmen of the committee are Tom White, Delta Upsilon; Bill Taylor, Phi Sigma Kappa; and Douglas Ambers, president of Yeomen.

Other announced members of the committee include Walter Probert (USA), Michael Murphy (AGS), Patricia Young (Ind), Kay Saito (USA), Don Dewey (USA), Joe French (AGS), and William Klein (AGS).

Loscutoff, called at the Phi Delta Theta house Monday night for a statement, said that he had been suspended.

"I haven't much to say," he stated. "We just broke one of the school codes, that's all."

Barclay is a sophomore business administration major from Missoula, Montana. He starred on the Frosh and varsity Oregon basketball and baseball squads and was placed on the 1951 All-Northern Division basketball second team.

Possible replacements for Barclay, a forward, include Don Hoy, a sophomore who was held out of competition last winter in order to preserve his eligibility, and Keith Farnam, also a sophomore, who outscored Barclay while playing for the Oregon Ducklings in 1950.

Loscutoff, a junior transfer from Grant Tech of Sacramento, is a six-foot, five-inch All Northern Division second team center. A liberal arts major, his home town is Palo Alto, California.

Trio to Entertain For Banquet

The Delt Trio Plus One and a short play by members of the speech department will comprise the entertainment at the Matrix Table-Gridiron Banquet tonight.

The banquet is sponsored by the men's and women's journalism fraternities, Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi.

The play, "Grammatical Amour," was presented on the special television show in Portland last Friday. Written by Robert Montgomery, instructor in speech, the play is the story of a triangular love affair of three parts of speech: Proper Noun, played by Don Doak; Object Noun, Martha Stapleton and Lois Williams; and the hero, Isa Verò, played by Bob Chambers. Pronoun is enacted by Phil Barter.

The Delt Trio Plus One is composed of three Delta Tau Delta's—Fred Schreiber, Paul Barrow, and Jim Bradford—the "plus one" is John "Billy" Eckstein. They recently entertained at the All-Campus Vodvil.

The two journalism fraternities will present awards to outstanding students in the journalism school. In addition, four senior girls from Eugene high schools will be guests at the banquet. The four, named by their high school newspaper advisors as outstanding senior girls interested in journalism, are Eilene Harris, Eugene High; Mary Jean Heidenreich, St. Francis; Carolyn Keith, University High; and Beth Miller, Willamette High.

Bob Frazier, Register-Guard reporter and U. O. Journalism School Graduate, will be master of ceremonies.
