

No Misties, Just Kisties--Says Phi Theta Set

By Judy McLoughlin

Although various hints have been dropped around campus as to the identity of "Kisties," only one out of the 10 persons questioned by today's Inquiring Reporter correctly guessed that this year "Kisties" are caramelized apples.

Following are various students' reactions to the question, "What do you think 'Kisties' are this year?"

Walt Freauff, fifth year student history: "Kisties are apples soaked in Hadacol."

Avis Lange, freshman in Liberal Arts: "Candy brains are my guess for what Kisties are."

Brian Teller, sophomore in Liberal Arts: "Oh! Kisties are probably maple bars."

Virginia Drake, junior in business: "I imagine they're ice cream."

Bruce Wallace, senior in business: "They're probably aspirin for the voters who vote for the wrong candidates."

Dave Todd, freshman in liberal arts: "Some kind of candy, they sound like."

Oskar Hoessl, foreign student: "I hope they are candy kisses."

Louise Hohlitt, freshman in liberal arts: "Maybe they are bubble gum."

Earl Churchill, sophomore in business: "Oh, something like popcorn balls."

Vets Dorm resident: "Rejected brown bread from the Vet's Dorm common."

Esther Walgren, sophomore in liberal arts: "Candied apples."

LOSCUTOFF NAMES CAUSE OF ACTION

University authorities refused Tuesday to disclose any information concerning the charge on which Jim Loscutoff and Curt Barclay, members of this year's Oregon basketball team, were suspended from school for one year.

Loscutoff, contacted by the Emerald Monday night, said that the reason for the dismissal had been a morals charge. The Emerald was unable to reach Barclay.

The statement released by the Student Discipline Committee read: "Two students, Curtis Barclay and James Loscutoff have been suspended from the University of Oregon for one year for disciplinary reasons."

J. M. Foskett, chairman of the Student Disciplinary Committee which imposed the suspension, said that all details of the case being made available to the public would be released through the office of the University president, Harry K. Newburn.

L. M. Nelson, director of public services in the president's office, told an Emerald reporter that further facts involved in the case would not be made public because of the harmful publicity that might result for the persons connected with the incident. Nelson said that this is the usual handling of discipline cases by the University. All cases are treated alike, he said.

Loscutoff and Barclay are free to apply at any other university or college, Nelson stated. If the two return to the University of Oregon, at the termination of the suspension period, no restrictions will be placed upon them.

ASUO President Barry Mountain asked Monday that Foskett and several other members of the Student Discipline Committee appear before the Executive Council to explain their procedure in discipline cases.

Mountain explained Tuesday that "this is the only time this year that the committee has been called upon to explain their operating procedure." He said that he proposed to discover whether the group is merely a policy-making committee or if it handles all discipline cases.

Questioned as to whether he thought details of the case should be made known, Mountain said that they should not.

"It has always been the policy of the Student Discipline Committee not to disclose the information of the cases. There is no reason to break a precedent. It has never been the policy of the student body to act as the direct judge in any case concerning their fellow students and I am sure it is the desire of the students to continue this policy."

Loscutoff has announced that he will enter the U. S. Army while Barclay has indicated that he plans to attend an extension school. Both have expressed hopes of returning to the University. The suspension is in effect until the beginning of spring term, 1952.

The Student Discipline Committee is composed of five faculty members, two administrators, and three students. The members of the school administration hold non-voting positions on the committee. Students on the committee are appointed by the student body president.

Violations of the University discipline code are originally reported to the director of men's affairs and the director of women's affairs. Minor violations are handled by these offices. More serious cases are referred to the Student Discipline Committee at the discretion of the officers. All cases in which expulsion is recommended, must be referred to the committee.

Under the discipline code adopted by the Student Discipline Committee in 1946 and approved by the President of the University, five offenses are listed as punishable by suspension. They are cheating, unauthorized absences from living organizations after closing hours, false information concerning overnight off-campus privileges, traffic in or possession of liquor at any University sponsored activity, and any other action which brings discredit upon the University of Oregon.

Immorality, gross indecency, criminal behavior, drunkenness, destruction of property, fraudulent registration, and false information concerning overnight off-campus privileges are offenses which are punishable by expulsion.

In the instance of suspension for cheating, the charge is sometimes made public.

Petitions for Student Union Board Positions See Deadline Friday

Appointments to seven positions on the 1951-52 Student Union Board will be made during the fourth week in May from petitions turned in to the board, according to Chairman Hank Panian.

Deadline for the petitions is noon Friday in Panian's office or in the office of the SU program director.

Vacancies will occur at the end of this year with the graduation of representatives from the Graduate School, the Schools of Law, Music, Health and Physical Education, Architecture and Allied Arts, and the College of Liberal Arts.

In addition, there is the unexpired two-year term of Carol Udy, School of Education, which is being temporarily filled by Barbara Howard.

Miss Howard's successor, along with representatives from the graduate and law schools, will be appointed for one year. All others will serve two-year terms.

Requirements Told

Applicants must meet regular University scholarship requirements, have residence here during the three previous terms, and be a major in the school or college they wish to represent.

Only sophomores this year are eligible to petition from the Schools of Music, Health and PE, Architecture and Allied Arts, and the College of Liberal Arts. Applicants from the School of Education must hold junior class standings this year.

All petitions will be turned over to a joint committee of the SU Board and the ASUO Executive Council for screening and interviewing. Deans of the various schools will make recommendations to the committee, and final appointments will be made by University President H. K. Newburn.

No student who performs the duties of an elective office established by the ASUO constitution or who is a member of the Senate or Cabinet is eligible for a place on the SU board, with the exception of the ASUO president and vice president, who are automatic ex-officio members under the board's perpetuation plan.

Law School Calls Eligibility Forms

Law School application forms have been mailed to all students whose names are on the list of pre-legal students academically eligible for admission to the law school at the beginning of fall term, according to O. J. Hollis, dean of the law school.

Hollis stated that all students who have not received an application form by mail and who wish to apply, should call at the office of the law school secretary and secure an application form.

Applications for next fall term must be filed with the law school not later than May 9.

Harada Talk Will Discuss Art Aspects

Dr. Jiro Harada, an authority on Japanese art, archaeology, gardens, and the tea ceremony will be on the campus Thursday through Sunday as a guest lecturer.

At a public lecture Thursday night in the Student Union, Dr. Harada will discuss "Some Aspects of Japanese Art."

He will be honored at dinners and luncheons, and will meet with several class groups during his stay here.

Harada will lead an informal discussion at 10 a.m. Friday on "Ideals of Japanese Ceremonial Tea" in Studio A, audio-visual department, University Library.

The speaker, who is now a commissioner of the National Museum of Japan, will also speak at a coffee hour at 4 p.m. Friday in the Student Union, with "Some Aspects of Japanese Gardens" as his topic.

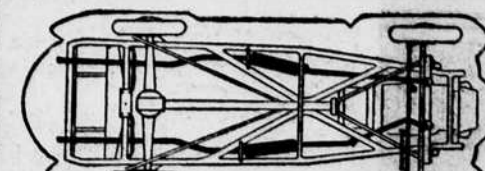

From 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday there will be a tea and gallery reception in honor of Harada and his two associates, Jiro Arimitsu and Kinji Fujikawa, in the Museum of Art. Harada will discuss the works of Japanese art in the permanent collection of the museum.

Harada is in the United States under the auspices of the state department, and it will be his first visit to the University since he lectured on Oriental art here in 1935-36.
