

Korean War Pictures Slated Today in Union

Pictures of the Korean War prepared by the U.S. Air Force will be one of the highlights of the Armed Forces Day program to be presented at 1:55 p.m. today in the Student Union ballroom.

The Korean combat films will follow a panel discussion on "The Unification of the Armed Forces" and four five-minute speeches by high school students on the subject "The Contribution of the Armed Forces to the American Way of Life."

Taking part in the panel will be Lt. Col. J. H. Cunningham, head of the military department; Lt. Col. E. L. Hibner, professor of air science; and Lt. Commander G. W. Ennis, commander of the Eugene Naval and Marine Corps Reserves. Robert Montgomery, instructor in speech, will serve as moderator.

A plaque will be awarded to the high school speaker who delivers the best talk. Members of the panel and Capt. J. M. Pagano, assistant professor of air science, will act as judges for the contest. Pagano will make the presentation.

The Elmira High School band under the direction of Miss Gladys Stone will provide music for the program which is sponsored by the speech and military departments.

Saturday ROTC students will take part in an Armed Forces Day parade in co-operation with other military organizations. More than 1,000 Army and Air Reserve trainees are expected to participate in the march through Eugene streets beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Special drill teams from Army and Air ROTC groups will march in the parade and will perform display drills along the route. The teams will also appear in Springfield's Armed Forces Day parade later in the day.

The ROTC detachments will form at 9:30 a.m. Saturday at the military department, then march to the starting point for the parade, the Southern Pacific railroad yards.

Kading, Wallace Top Guide Staff

Edith Kading will be editor and Bruce Wallace, business manager of next year's Piggers' Guide. They were chosen by the Student Publications Board at its last meeting of the year Thursday night.

Miss Kading, junior in English, was associate editor of this year's directory. She also worked on the Guide in 1948, and has been on staffs of the Oregana and Emerald. She is now an assistant managing editor of the daily.

Wallace will go into his second consecutive year as business manager of the Guide next fall. He's a senior in business administration, and has worked on both the Oregana and Emerald.

Other petitioners for the editorship were Pat Choat and Tom Shepherd. Delores Parrish and Dick Davis also petitioned for the business manager position.

The publication board approved budget changes allowing a banquet for the '51 Oregana staff this spring. It also decided that next year's Piggers' Guide will be sold after publication in the same system used last fall. Previously the directory was ordered and paid for during registration.

Cast Rehearses for Play

THE CAST OF "ANNE OF THE THOUSAND DAYS" runs through a rehearsal while Director Frederick J. Hunter and the theater stage crew work in the background. Avis Lange (white shirt, center) stars as Anne Boleyn in the 16th century English drama which opens tonight in the University Theater.

Play Opens Tonight; Stars Lange, Marsh

"Anne of the Thousand Days" opens at 8 tonight at the University Theater. Starring Avis Lange as Anne Boleyn and Robert Marsh as King Henry VIII, the Maxwell Anderson play presents a dramatic account of the fevers and passions of the early Sixteenth Century English court.

Directing the production is Fredrick J. Hunter, instructor in speech. Set design is by William E. Schlosser, instructor in speech, and wardrobe designer is Geraldine Hettinger, graduate student.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" will complete the University Theater's second year of play production.

Ticket sales are running well, according to Theater Business Manager Virginia Hall. Other showings are scheduled for May 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, and 26. The ticket office will be open until certain time on all these days.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" is the story of Henry VIII's desire for the high-spirited, beautiful Anne Boleyn and of the passion that was generated between them. The struggles to retain the faith of his ministers, his people and the church which are threatened by the affair.

"Anne of the Thousand Days" has been called the first of Maxwell Anderson's Tudor trilogy, which also includes "Mary, Queen of Scotland," and "Elizabeth, the Queen." The trilogy will be presented as a unit for the first time June by the University's summer on any stage this summer during theater.

Co-op Refund Deadline Near

Monday is the last day to turn in co-op receipts, according to G. L. Henson, co-op manager. Tickets must be listed on their folder, and totaled before being turned in, he said.

Henson said a number of tickets have not been turned in. Receipts should be turned in at the co-op office. After all the tickets are in, the co-op board will meet to decide how much refund can be given this year.

All freshmen should find themselves a date and come on out Saturday, Carothers urged.

Grant Explained By IDC President

Bob Calverley, Inter-Dormitory Council president, said Tuesday that money voted by the council to support the United Students Association was taken from the funds left over from last year, not from hall dues collected this year.

Several dormitory men had protested to the council Thursday night, saying that the council's action in voting $15 to support the United Students Association in the recent elections was "taxation without representation."

They said that, in effect, they were being taxed to support a political party which they do not believe in, since the council's money comes from dues collected in dormitories. This year, many dorm residents are pledges of Greek houses in the Associated Greek Students.

"The money we voted came from funds left over from last year," Calverley said, "when the men in the dorms were independents. It did not come from money collected in hall dues this year."

Oreganas Here For Non-buyers

All uncompleted payments for the 1951 Oregana have been cancelled, making some 30 Oreganas available for the first comes. Business Manager Bob Schooling announced Thursday.

Students who failed to complete the Oregana payments under the partial payment plan have forfeited their original $3 payment, Schooling explained.

Oreganas thus made available and those contracted for but still unclaimed will be distributed from 1 to 5 p.m. today in the Oregana office, third floor of the Student Union. Some 900 Oreganas, all paid for, are still unclaimed, Schooling said.

The business manager urged any student who knows of friends who have ordered yearbooks and have left school to notify the Oregana office so that books can be mailed to them at their home addresses.

AGS Votes Down Coalition Proposal By Large Majority

A proposal to make the Associated Greek Students a coalition party, with all campus living organizations eligible for membership, was defeated by AGS representative at a Thursday afternoon meeting. Only five votes were cast for the proposal.

The proposal, which would have renamed the party the Associated Students Organization, was to change the first article of the constitution to admit any approved living organization eligible for membership. The present constitution restricts membership to social fraternities and sororities.

"The group felt that the representation provided the independents in such a party would definitely be in a minority, and that they would not be fairly represented," said Bill Carey, outgoing AGS president.

Comments made by delegates during discussion of the proposal ranged from "we have a strong, unified party now, let's keep it that way" to "this is an opportunity for us to strengthen the party in the eyes of the University."

Several delegates felt that coalition parties would someday be present on the campus, and that

Rushing Topic Of IFC Confab

An eight-man committee was named Thursday night by Dick McLaughlin, Interfraternity Council president, to make recommendations for a "small fall term rush week for sophomores" and for regulation of freshmen rushing until winter term 1952.

According to the Oregon Plan as approved by IFC last week, freshmen rushing would be deferred until the second week of winter term.

Some IFC members said that they did not realize they had voted for winter rushing when they voted for the Oregon plan. They were decidedly not in favor of deferred rushing.

McLaughlin said that all IFC members need to know why a deferred rushing plan is necessary, because it will not work without the cooperation of IFC.

It was brought out that the deferred plan allowed the freshmen time to get adjusted to college life before they begin making an adjustment to fraternity life.

Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, also pointed out that the deferred rushing plan gives the fraternities a better chance to pick men that will make their grades and be of some good to the fraternities.

Ray Karnofski asserted, "I don't see how you are going to keep fall rushing to a mild roar unless we have good interfraternity cooperation."

Hawk brought up a problem of many fraternities in that they have board bills owed them by their members and cannot collect. Some house have brought up the possibility of getting administration help in collecting such debts.

Hawk said that at some universities the fraternities' bills were collected by the administration. He added that he did not know whether the administration here would assume the added work, but that he would go "all the way in trying to get such a policy if the fraternities wanted it."

Hawk urged the house presidents to inform their members that the new draft ruling does not allow college men to be drafted before Aug. 20. This is to give the colleges time to compute comparative grades of students.

He said that those men who don't get drafted in that month between Aug. 20 and the time school starts will be able to go on to school for another school year.

A clarification of a standing IFC rule was given by McLaughlin. He said that no pledge can be initiated until the term following that which he pledged.

Emerald Burlesque To Appear Monday

Here's an exclusive: Monday's edition of the Emerald will go to pot.

As usual, the University chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalistic fraternity, will put out its annual burlesque edition of the Emerald—complete with the "Daily 'E'" and the "Oregon Lemon."

This edition, it is hoped, will not bear any resemblance to the journalistic endeavor of any regular edition of the Emerald.

New AGS Officers

Larry Dean was named president of the Associated Greek Students at a meeting Thursday afternoon. He succeeds the outgoing president, Bill Carey.

Gerry Pearson was elected vice president of the group; the present secretary, Mary Gillham, was reelected by a unanimous vote.

An assistant secretary will be appointed later by the new president.

this proposal gave AGS a chance to lead the way.

Other delegates pointed out that making this shift fall term would have been interpreted as a strictly political move; however, waiting until after the political campaign was over—and being the victorious party in the ASUO elections—no such criticism could be made at this time.

"The dorms are a loosely organized group—constantly shifting," one delegate stated, "while the Greeks have a consistent policy and organization. Doing away with AGS would make the party comparable to the United Students Association."

Larry Dean, incoming AGS president, issued the following statement after the meeting:

"Under the present organization of AGS, we have a party that we feel—is doing the best job possible for good student government. We feel that a change would be detrimental not only to us, but to good student government as well."

That the AGS would have to adopt a new line of thinking if the proposal was adopted was brought out during the debate by one delegate. She pointed out that the party would receive a lot of criticism if it became a coalition party in name only.

Party officers for next year were also chosen at the meeting.

Turnabout Day On Tap Monday

Monday will be "Turnabout Day" on campus in connection with the Mortar Board Ball. Women will relax for a day in pedal pushers, jeans, and slacks and will ask the men out for coffee and Coke dates.

This day will be keeping with the Mortar Board Ball tradition with the women paying the bills and generally taking the part of the male. Betty Wright, president of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary which sponsors the annual ball, said that the men are bound to accept any invitations they receive.

Also running around campus will be five prominent campus celebrities who will be even more prominent that day, according to Miss Wright. She refused to give further explanation.
