Law Scholarship Interviews Set

Candidates from Oregon for the Root-Tilden Scholarships offered by the New York University School of Law will be interviewed by Chief Justice James T. Brand of the Supreme Court of Oregon on June 14, 15, or 16 in the Supreme Court building in Salem.

Dean Russell D. Niles of NYU made the announcement and also said that the time for filing applications for the scholarships has been extended to the end of May.

Assisting Chief Justice Brand in the interviewing will be E. K. Oppenheimer, president of the Oregon Bar Association, and Charles A. Sprague, editor and publisher of the Oregon Statesman.

The scholarships were named for two graduates of the NYU law school, Elihu Root and Samuel J. Tilden, and will be offered each year to enable 20 young men to attend the school.

Scholarship candidates are nominated by a committee in each state and the final selections are made by a regional committee in each of the ten Federal Judicial Circuits.

Candidates chosen from Oregon by Chief Justice Brand and his group will be interviewed by a committee from the Ninth Federal Circuit. Chief Judge William Denman and Federal Reserve Bank Chairman Brayton Wilbur, both of San Francisco, and E. B. MacNaughton, president of Reed College, will be committee members.

Edwin Sheely Due to Retire From UO Press

Edwin H. Sheeley, better known as "Ed" to students working at the University Press, submitted his retirement papers this week after 31½ years of service to the University.

Eyes twinkling through his gold rimmed glasses, Ed told the Emerald reporter that watching the Press grow from nothing into a print shop, along with the growth of the entire University, had been quite an experience. He also stated that he had enjoyed working with most of the students very much, and that, on the whole, they were very pleasant.

Before coming to the University Ed worked in the state printing office, and at various shops in Portland and around the country. After coming to Eugene, he liked the town and the people so well that he just couldn't move away.

A married, family man, Ed said that now he expects to work at his woodworking hobby, and help out his friends now and then when they need him.

Ed assisted in putting out the first Old Oregon, and when the Oregon Daily Emerald came into being he helped with that too. He has continued his work on the Emerald through the years.

When Ed began working at the University, the print shop was located in the basement of McClure Hall, and the composing and binding room was an old shed attached to the side of McClure and the Journalism building. But after one fire scare when the Woman's Gym (located next to McClure at that time), one fire which destroyed the Press completely, the Press has settled in a neat and spacious concrete structure behind the new science building.

Librarians Plan All-day Meet

Oregon Library Association, state association of professional librarians, will hold an all-day meeting Saturday on campus.

Registration is at 9:30 a.m. in the Student Union, followed by a business meeting at 10 a.m. A luncheon will be held at noon in the SU Ballroom.

Marshall Dana, former editor of the Oregon Journal editorial page, will speak on the "Romance of the Oregon Country" at the luncheon. Victor P. Morris, dean of the School of Business Administration, will welcome the librarians to the University.

A panel discussion on Pacific Northwest library development is scheduled from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the SU. Miss Dorothy Neil, high school librarian, and Mrs. Josephine Matsler, Springfield public library, will discuss problems of small high school and public libraries. Miss Muriel Mitchell, Roseburg public library, will talk on what larger units of service can do. Mrs. Eva A. Moore, of the Washington County Library Board, will discuss working with the Friends of Libraries in Washington County. C. W. Hintz, University librarian, will summarize, evaluate, and give recommendations. Miss Eleanor Stephens is moderator for the panel.

Tea will be served in the library from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. There will also be tours of the library annex and showings of the film, "Keys to the Library," made by Pasadena City College.

An attendance of about 150 members is expected, according to Miss Elizabeth Findly, head of the University reference library and president of the association.

At the time of the first United States census in 1790, one out of every eight persons was a slave, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Garrett Recital Set for Sunday At Music School

Glen Garrett, French horn player, will be the featured recitalist in a program at 4 p.m. Sunday in the School of Music Auditorium.

Garrett will be assisted in the Mozart Quintet for Horn and Strings by Sally Lichty, Larry Maves, Bob Groth, and Marjorie Carlson, on the violin, viola, violin and cello respectively.

On the Brahms Trio for violin, horn and piano, Garrett's assistants will be Aubrey Brist, violin, and William Wood, pianist. Wood will also accompany him in Hindemuth Sonata for Horn and Piano.

Garrett was soloist with the concert band on tour last spring term. He is a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and also of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, men's music honorary. He has held the first chair in the horn section for three years now, performing in both band and orchestra, and is also a member of the chamber music group led by Arnold Elston, associate professor of music.

Informal Recital To Be Presented

Students of George Hopkins, professor of piano, will give an informal recital at 10 a.m. Saturday in the School of Music Auditorium.

Frances Baum, junior in music, will perform Mozart's "Concerto in C Minor," while Joyce Everson, senior in music, will play Piston's "Concertian." Dorothy Pederson, freshman in music, will complete the group by playing Schumann's "Concerto."

This is a regular class, but since it is the last group meeting, it will be open to the public to demonstrate members, progress.

Physics Profs Meet at Reed

Four University of Oregon professors will speak at the fifty-seventh meeting of the Oregon section of the American Association of Physics Teachers which will be held Saturday at Reed College in Portland.

Francis E. Dart, associate professor of physics, will speak on "The Detection of Soft X-rays with a Scintillation Counter." Ronald Paul, graduate assistant in physics, will give a paper on "Energy Loss of Beta Rays in Solid Anthracene." E. G. Eggibhausen, associate professor of physics, will speak on "The Systematics of Alpha Decay," and Will V. Norris, professor of physics, will present the report from the associations national committee.
