Bauer's Long Triple Paces Final Victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(U.P.)—The New York Yankees won the World Series for the third straight year Wednesday by defeating the New York Giants 4 to 3 on Hank Bauer's triple with the bases loaded in the sixth inning.

That blow with two out ended the Cinderella saga of the Giants, who came from 13½ games back of the Brooklyn Dodgers to win the National league pennant in a three game playoff.

It was the Yankees' fourth victory in the six games which were necessary to close out the 1951 classic.

The Giants didn't go down without a galant battle. With 61,711 fans sitting in Yankee stadium, they almost pulled the sixth game out of the fire in the ninth inning, just as they came from off the floor to win the National league pennant.

Kuzava Retires Side

They filled the bases with none out and knocked Johnny Sain, the second Yankee pitcher, out of the box. Bob Kuzava came in and retired the side, allowing two runs in the process. The never say die Giants still were one run short of a tie and the game was over.

With the Giants trailing 4 to 1 going into the ninth, Eddie Stanky singled and Alvin Dark beat out a bunt for another single. Whitey Lockman dropped a third single into short center and it looked like the Giants might pull it out of the bag—just as they did against the Dodgers in the final playoff game.

But today he lifted a fly ball to Woodling, Dark scoring after the catch and Lockman holding second.

Sal Yvars came in to bat for Henry Thompson and sent a line drive which looked like it was headed for at least a single. But Bauer came in fast and made a brilliant catch as he fell to his left knee.

Bauer Saves Game

So Bauer, who had won the game with his bat, saved it with his fielding.

Bauer came up in the sixth with the bases loaded and two out and the score 1-1. He tied into a three and two pitch from Southpaw Dave Koslo and hit it against the left field fence for a base clearing triple.

That looked like curtains for the Giants, and it proved to be, although they went down to the final out before losing out. They had filled the bases with two out in the eighth off Sain, who relieved Yankee starter Vic Raschi, but could not score.

Then came that ninth, when the Giants came so close—but not close enough. Raschi was the winning pitcher while Koslo was the loser.

Friday Evening Rally Planned For Portland

Plans for a rally in Portland's Paramount theater at 8:30 p.m. Friday and a car parade to precede Saturday's football game with the University of Washington were announced Tuesday by Cy Newman, yell king.

One-thousand seats are being saved on the main floor of the Paramount theater for the rally which will also feature a sneak preview of a top film and a showing of the film "People Will Talk" starring Jeanne Crain and Cary Grant. Students are urged to get to the theater early, Newman said.

The rally will consist of an act by Newman and Jack Faust. The yell dukes and song queens will lead yells and songs. The film showing will follow.

Various living organizations will also put on acts and roll call of the organizations will be taken. Admission to the theater for the program will be 65 cents with a student body card.

The car parade will form at 11:45 a.m. Saturday in Holiday Park. The procession will then proceed through Portland to the stadium, led by the rally squad.

Gate B in Multnomah stadium, the Oregon student entrance, will open at 11 a.m. Saturday. Students are encouraged by Howard Lemons, athletic business manager, to be in their seats by 12:45 p.m.

The west bleachers in front of the main grandstand and the south bleachers in front of the Multnomah Athletic club are reserved for students.

Athletic activity cards must be shown for admittance, Lemons said. Cards may be obtained at the athletic department in McArthur court until 5 p.m. Friday.

Druids Show How it's Done

Fugitive From Professor Snarf Cuts Class to See Oregon Campus

Worthal, "Little Man on Campus," is coming to Oregon, chaperoned by Dick Bibler, his creator.

Bibler, who draws the "Little Man on Campus" cartoons for 21 daily and 96 weekly school papers, is expected to arrive on campus early Friday morning where he will attend the Press conference sponsored by the School of Journalism. He will lunch with the Emerald staff Friday noon.

It was at Kansas university where the "Little Man" was conceived. As the winner of a drawing contest, Bibler became the cartoonist for the Daily Kansas and then proceeded to create Worthal.

The campus sad sack is a conglomerate of characters, Bibler explains. Fourteen faces were drawn, then the most stupid-looking features of each was combined into one picture. The result, Worthal.

The cartoon title, "Little Man on Campus," was suggested by Gordon A. Sabine, dean of the school of journalism. Everyone talks about the big men on campus, Bibler commented. The "Little Man" is just the opposite. Worthal is supposed to be someone everyone can feel sorry for.

The blond cartoonist is now studying at Stanford so he can teach. Last year he studied education at Colorado State college, and the year before he received his masters of fine arts from the University of Kansas.

Bibler keeps one year ahead on the cartoons. This makes it possible to plan the panels to fit the school year: registration, football, basketball, etc. It takes him only about an hour to draw each panel, but the ideas don't go so easy.

After he has planned a program for the school seasons, he goes over such possible idea sources as catalogues, orientation pamphlets and year books. Once the ideas start to come, they arrive in clusters, he reports. But getting back to work after several weeks layoff is really hard.

Serenade Nights Friday, Saturday

A correction on the social chairman's handbook has been made limiting serenades to Friday and Saturday nights, according to the office of student affairs.

The social chairman's handbook states that "sweetheart serenades" can be held any night of the week but this has been changed because it does not correspond with student affairs regulations.

- Selection of Homecoming chairman

Blood Donations Total 290 Pints On First Day

The Portland bloodmobile's two-day visit to the University began Wednesday as students donated over 290 pints of the world's most precious liquid.

The program will continue today with the doors opening at 10 a.m., one hour earlier than planned, in order to take care of those students who cannot be there at other times. The bloodmobile will leave at 3 p.m., ending what will probably be the only blood drive on the campus this fall.

The quota for the University is 600 pints, which means that over 300 must be donated today in order to reach that figure.

Appointments will not be necessary, although the operation would be completed more smoothly if those who have appointments come at their scheduled times. No parental releases will be required.

Students will be given official medical excuses from classes in order to donate the blood.

The donated blood will be flown immediately to Korea for use within four or five days.

Donors should avoid fatty or fried foods, including butter and cream, during a period of four hours prior to donation.

They may eat or drink fruit, fruit juices, jam, marmalade, honey or preserves, dry toast or crackers, and tea or coffee with sugar but without cream.

Enrollment Figures Near 4,500; Twelve Percent Decrease Noted

Oregon's enrollment has risen to 4,446 and is expected to hit the 4,500 mark before final registrations are completed according to Lyle M. Nelson, director of public services.

The expected drop in enrollment for Oregon in pre-school period calculations was 10 per cent, Nelson said. The actual drop was 12 per cent.

Oregon State's enrollment is now 4,995. OSC anticipated a decrease of 10 per cent; current figures show a decrease of 14 per cent.

Total enrollment decrease in the state—taken from incomplete reports submitted by all state higher education schools—amounts to 14.64 per cent it was announced Wednesday by the state board of higher education.

Chancellor Charles D. Byrne said that there is every reason to believe final enrollments will be within one percentage point of the 13,180 student total around which the operating budget and staff were built in April. Current enrollments for state colleges and universities total 12,817 as compared to 15,015 at the same point last year.

Byrne reasoned that the decreases were caused by the graduation of an abnormally large senior class from the eight campuses last year, due to war veterans, and by the small size of high school senior classes last year—growing out of the low birth rate in the depression years of the early 30's.

Three campuses—Vanport, Eastern Oregon College of Education and the medical school—reported larger enrollments than were predicted. Oregon College of Education and Southern Oregon College of Education figures are still slightly below predictions. At the medical school the student body is up 24 students from last year.

Enrollment figures through Oct. 6 include dental school, 306; medical school, 539; Oregon College of Education, 470; Southern Oregon College of Education, 575; Eastern Oregon College of Education, 462; Vanport extension center, 1024.
