

Duck Tracks

By Bill Gurney
Emerald Sports Editor

It's a mighty good University of Washington football team which will face the Oregon Webfoots on the Multnomah stadium turf Saturday. A team of which it could be truthfully said that it is nearly great, and perhaps with All-American Quarterback Don Heinrich in the lineup, it would be great. Big Hugh McElhenny and he made a combination last season which was very hard to beat.

Huskie Coach Howard Odell, has however been unusually successful in replacing the gaping hole left by the loss of Heinrich. His second choice, Sam Mitchell, has completed 33 out of 51 passes for 374 yards gained. However Mitchell received a serious ankle injury in the rugged battle against the USC Trojans, which Washington lost, incidentally, 20-13.

Rockey Comes Thru

But Odell still has another ace in the hole for the vital T-formation slot, and he is sophomore Dean Rockey. Rockey seems to be another bulls-eye passer, with 23 completions out of 38 tries, and four touchdown passes. One of these scoring tosses was the most important in Rockey's budding gridiron career—with the Huskies trailing Minnesota, 20-18, and only three minutes to play, Rockey hit Hurricane Hugh McElhenny for the winning score.

So as long as Rockey is in the lineup, Washington still will have quarterbacking to match the rest of its high powered lineup. But should what seems to be a jinx in operation continue to stymie Huskie hopes, and something befall Rockey; then the Washington team will have to depend for quarterbacking on a pair of untried reserves, Clarence Robertson and Arne Bergh.

Oregonian Leaves Fold

We notice that the Washington starting lineup includes a young man by the name of Phil Gillis, a 202 pound end from Bend, Oregon.

Now we realize that it is a free country, and a boy can seek his higher education wherever he so desires, but competition in the Pacific Coast Conference would be much more equal, and smaller schools such as Oregon could compete on a more equal basis, if promising high school athletes would elect to attend institutions in their own state.

Of course such items as discrepancies in athletic budgets between a school the size of Washington, and a school the size of Oregon may have much to do with Oregon prep prizes attending out of state institutions. But ostensibly a boy is attending college not to play football, but to get an education. If he attends to live in Oregon after graduation, the long range viewpoint would be for him to start making friends and contacts there immediately.

Many Oregon Preppers Migrate

Also, there have been many cases where Oregon high school stars have gone far afield to find proper appreciation of their talents, only to find that the competition is such that they spend most of their athletic careers on the bench and as practice cannonfodder for material-loaded aggregations. On the other hand, the University of Oregon and Oregon State have never been so rich in material that stars from Oregon high schools have been denied the chance to show their wares.

Much of the over-emphasis criticism with which college football is currently receiving could be silenced if high school athletes attended schools in their home states.

OSC Flashes Power

Despite the difficulties we have painted, our Orange clad neighbors in the village to the north, seem to have put together an aggregation that may well be the Rose-Bowl bound darkhorse of the conference. Coach Kip Taylor's OSC Beavers have a tremendous passing punch in Left Halfback Dave Mann, and senior Quarterback Gene Morrow.

Big Sam Baker, workhorse fullback in Taylor's Michigan single wing has been bothered by an injury, but should be ready for the first major Beaver test of the season—a engagement with the power-laden USC Trojans, in the Los Angeles Coliseum Saturday.

It is always a disadvantage for northern teams to play in the south, with the heat and faster turf, but we would give OSC a good chance to come through with a victory.

Bears Travel North

We of the northwest should feel honored Saturday, for mighty California is journeying far afield to Pullman for a contest with the WSC Cougars. From all indications, Cal is better than ever this season, even though they are disqualified for the Rose Bowl. We only hope WSC can keep the score down.

Religious Notes

Potluck dinners, open houses and discussions on the importance of Christianity are planned by campus religious groups for the coming week.

Christian House

Open house is planned at Christian House, 736 E. 16th, Friday night.

"Why Disciples" is the topic for discussion at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at the House. The discussion, which will be led by Don Paine, pastor of the Corvallis First Christian Church, will be preceded by fun singing and worship service.

"Friendship Cultivation Night" is planned for Tuesday night. A dinner will precede "Cultivation Night" beginning at 5:30 p.m.

All campus married students are invited to attend the Christian House sponsored potluck dinner at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Wesley Foundation

"What is Christianity" is the topic to be discussed at 5:15 p.m. Sunday at Wesley House, 1236 Kincaid. Dr. Paul B. Means, head of the University religious department, will be the discussion leader. The subject discussed will be the first in a religious series designed to provide a more thorough understanding of the Christian faith.

Several students from Wesley Foundation are attending the annual fall retreat of the Oregon Methodist Student Movement this weekend at Camp Magruder on the coast. Dr. Georgia Harkness, professor of theology at Pacific College of Religion, is the guest leader for the retreat, speaking a number of times on the subject "Prayer and the Common Life."

Wesley Foundation plans a potluck dinner at 5:30 Tuesday and a chapel service at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Westminster House

Presbyterian students will leave Westminster House, 1414 Kincaid, at 4 p.m. Friday to attend a Jewish service at Temple Beth Israel in Portland. To be led by Rabbi Julius Nodel, Friday's trip will be the first in a series of visits to services in other religions.

The group will sleep at Roseway Presbyterian Church in Portland Friday night, staying over for the Oregon-Washington game Saturday. Student cars will provide transportation and any interested students wishing to go may call Rev. Thom Hunter at Westminster House by noon Friday.

"Is the Church Necessary for True Religion?" is the theme for the discussion period during Sunday evenings at Westminster House. Beginning at 7:15 p.m., the discussion will be led by Rev. Fred G. Sheer, pastor of Eugene Fairmount Presbyterian Church, with Jim Livesay and Barbara Fulton giving the worship service. There will be a social hour following the conclusion of vespers.

A fellowship potluck dinner is planned at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Westminster House.

"A College Student's Religion" is the general theme for the discussion slated for 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the upstairs chapel of the House.

UO Professors At Conference

Five professors from the University of Oregon's political science department were in Roseburg today lecturing at the Douglas County teachers' conference.

The theme of the conference is "The Role of the United States in World Affairs." The meeting is being sponsored by the General Extension Division, State System of Higher Education, and the county superintendent of schools, Douglas County.

The conference will be composed of lectures and panel discussions led by professors from Oregon, Lewis and Clark, Stanford, Mills College, and Reed College.

Oregon professors attending are C. P. Schleicher, P. S. Dull, M. J. Flach, M. Kroll, P. B. Means, and E. S. Wengert.

YWCA Groups To Begin Work Next Monday

Freshmen YWCA commissions will begin their year's work Monday, Jo Anne Hewitt, second vice president and in charge of the program, announced.

The commissions will be handled by junior advisers who are under Miss Hewitt's direction. All commissions will meet from 4 to 5 p.m. at the Y headquarters in Gerlinger.

Monday, the crafts commission will organize under Carolyn Silva and Jane Cartozian. The drama and music commission will meet Tuesday with Harriet Vahey and Kathy Swick in charge of drama and Janis Evans and Mary Alice Baker in charge of music.

Sharon Anderson and Dolores Parrish are leading the Wednesday service commission while the Thursday commission will have Pat Johnson and Maggie Powne in charge.

Mary Elizabeth McDowell, executive secretary of the Y, said that the junior advisers would contact the freshmen who are to be in their particular commission. If any freshmen are missed and would like to join a commission even though not signed up, they are to attend the meeting of the commission in which she is interested, Miss McDowell said.

Soph Whiskerino Set for Oct. 27 In SU Ballroom

The annual Sophomore Whiskerino will be Saturday, October 27, in the Student Union ballroom, according to Bob Brittain, sophomore class president. The name of the band which Brittain has engaged for the dance and the theme are being withheld.

All campus living organizations are to choose candidates Monday night for the Joe Colege-Betty Co-ed contest. Names of candidates should be turned into the Emerald immediately after selection for publication in Tuesday's paper.

Beginning Monday no sophomore male may shave. This is in preparation for the beard-growing contest. Rules will be strictly enforced and violators will be dealt with by Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's honorary.

The Henry Hudson Arch Bridge, New York City, has the longest plate girder, fixed steel arch in the

YW Officers Selected

Mary Ellen Burrell was selected as treasurer of the YWCA by the Y cabinet at their weekly meeting Tuesday. Chosen to assist her as assistant treasurer was Denise Thum.

Working with these two on the finance committee will be Gayle Abbott, Carolyn Silva, Jackie Wilkes and Janis Evans.
