

Germany Renews Student Dueling

HEIDELBERG, Germany — (U.P.) — Student dueling has returned to Germany despite a post-war ban, authorities report.

The scarred cheek has become a mark of courage and honor. Students reported fraternity men have been ordered by their officers to practice dueling secretly once a week and prepare for possible challenges.

Occupation authorities first banned the sport because it was practiced by aristocratic fraternities from which the elite of the army officer corps was selected. It was thought to promote German militarism and nationalism.

The duels are held in secrecy either at a secluded country spot or in the attic of the fraternity.

Weekly practice sessions are guarded by underclassmen and the weapons, masks and arm guards are kept hidden.

Dueling is being urged by the old university graduates, many of whom wear the three or four inch scar on their cheeks. They have insisted that the new fraternity member again take up the manly sport. In two cases the students of the fraternity have split with the grads and lost their fraternity houses.

A member of a dueling fraternity may be called on to fight two kinds of duel. Most are "friendly," involving a brother fraternity member, interested only in gaining the prized scar.

Very dangerous is the "satisfaction" duel arising from a dispute, which may involve a girl friend or an insult.

German Students Visit UO Campus

Several students from Germany, attending Montana State university, visited the eight German journalism students at Oregon as part of a ten-day trip Sunday.

The Montana German delegation, also journalists, accompanied by the dean of their journalism school, stayed overnight Sunday, and will return to Montana today. They have been in San Francisco during their trip.

Both groups, accompanied by C. T. Duncan and W. C. Price, associate professors of journalism, made a two-hour trip Sunday afternoon, visiting a pheasant farm west of Springfield.

The Montana contingent was amazed at the "beauty of the area," but expressed preference for the Montana climate over that of the Willamette valley.

Thursday Oregon's eight German journalism students visited dairy farms in the area, accompanied by Bob Frazier, Register-Guard staff writer.

Students to Get Gifts at Co-op; Wednesday Only

Representatives of the R. J. Reynolds tobacco company will offer plastic cigarette cases to students buying two packages of Camels or Cavalier cigarettes in the Co-op Wednesday.

The student pipe smoker will receive a $.50 Trapwell pipe and three tins of Prince Albert or four tins of George Washington pipe tobacco for one dollar.

The offer will be made Wednesday only.

SU Exhibit Will Feature Letters

The 75th anniversary correspondence exhibit will be shown in the Student Union Thursday as part of the University's 75th anniversary celebration.

Letters of congratulations from universities and colleges all over the world will be exhibited.

Plans of all past presidents of the University will be exhibited.

Forensics Squad Prepares for Meet

Preparations are being made by the University forensics squad for the Willamette Valley forensics institute scheduled for Saturday at Linfield College in McMinnville.

Topic to be discussed by the debate team is "Resolved: that the federal government should adopt a permanent program of wage and price control." The American political scene will be the general topic for the extemporaneous speakers. After-dinner speakers will talk during a lunch hour program.

Members of the group from last year are Robert Bozorth, Nancy Yates, Don Collin, Bill Lees, Leland Johnson, Doug Ambers, Harold Neufeld, Donna Knoll and Karl Harshbarger. New members are Bob Southwell, Karl Peterman, Bob Schmidt, Gayle Abbott, Don Mickelwait, Max Ingerson, Bill Ruitter, Judy Nason, Pat Atkisson and Wayne Metsker.

A. Hilbruner, speech instructor, and Ben Padrow, graduate assistant in speech, are coaching the group. They report that anyone interested in trying out for the squad should see them as soon as possible.

Future plans for the squad include a meet here with the University of Hawaii in April and a possible trip to the western speech conference at San Jose, Calif., on Thanksgiving. Negotiations are also taking place with an Australian debate team.
