

Willamette Follies Presented Today

The Willamette university "Varsity Follies" will be presented at 1 p.m. today in the Student Union ballroom.

According to Rollie Cocking, director of the group, the show will be 50 minutes in length and includes eight acts of "slapstick comedy" as well as straight talent presentations.

Acts will include numbers by a five piece jazz band, a trumpet solo a girls' quartet, a piano duet and a three-couple Charleston act.

The assembly is the first in a series of exchange assemblies between colleges in the Willamette valley, plans for which were made at a recent meeting of student representatives at Corvallis. Colleges represented at the meeting included Willamette, Oregon State, Portland university, Linfield, Lewis and Clark and Oregon.

The exchange program is being carried on on a limited basis this year, Oregon having definitely scheduled an exchange with Oregon State in addition to the one with Willamette. A tentative exchange has been arranged with Portland university. Dates for these will be announced later, Bill Carey, ASUO president, said.

Anderson Reports On DuShane Plan

Financial difficulties of some fraternities and sororities are largely the fault of the individual groups, not the University's freshman living plan, the unfinished Holloway report on the so-called "DuShane plan" states, according to a report made on the survey by Les Anderson, alumni secretary, to an alumni meeting during Homecoming Saturday.

The assertion was one of four points to be contained in the report, now being compiled by an eight-man committee headed by Charles Holloway, according to Anderson.

Other points include:

- (1)—The plan is here to stay.
- (2)—One advantage of the plan is the wide acquaintanceship the dormitory-living freshmen have

Public Utilities Sets Conference

A conference among officials of the Public Utilities commission, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. and student representatives of several colleges and universities in the state has been arranged for next Tuesday in Salem.

Word of the scheduled conference was received Tuesday night by Bill Frye, ASUO senate member, after he had been contacted by telephone from the Public Utilities office in Salem.

Chance to Voice Complaints

The hearing will give students their first chance to formally voice complaints in the term-long dispute over installation of pay telephones in living organizations of some universities. Only two schools—Oregon and Willamette—are affected now, but similar action has been proposed to include all institutions in the state.

Recently Oregon State gained postponement of pay phone installations pending investigation by the PUC.

Last week Frye filed a formal complaint with the PUC on behalf of the Oregon Federation of Collegiate Leaders, of which he is secretary-treasurer. The complaint was in the form of a resolution passed by the OFCL at a recent convention.

Abandon "Unjust Policy"

The resolution requested abandonment of the "flagrantly unjust policy" of the PT&T in installing pay telephones in college living organizations.

Five finalists have been selected by Sigma Chi in their current Sweetheart contest.

Finalists are: Alma Owen, Alpha Chi Omega; Anne Steiner, Delta Gamma; Janet Miller, Kappa Kappa Gamma; Teddy Croley, Pi Beta Phi; and Dolores Pasley, Susan Campbell.

The women were selected by a vote of the fraternity members after a dinner and fireside held last Tuesday. First announcement of their selection was made by a serenade last night.

The contest will be culminated at the Sweetheart dance on Dec. 8. At that time the Sweetheart will be announced and the coronation will take place.

Puddles Returns To UO Campus

Puddles, Oregon's mascot, has returned to the Oregon campus and his home with Leo Harris, director of athletics, after an OSC-enforced visit with the Beaver.

Puddles was returned to the Oregon rally squad at half-time of the Oregon-OSC game Saturday by a member of the OSC yell team. Cy Neyman, yell king, said that Puddles looked a little thinner, but outside of a few ruffled feathers, the duck appeared to be in good shape.

Harris affirmed Newman's statement that the duck was in good health and added that Puddles was happy to be home again and predicted that "Oregon will really beat the Aggies next year".

Fred Vosper, senior in journalism, spirited the duck away to Delta Tau Delta immediately after the game where he was kept until Sunday afternoon, when Puddles was returned to the Harris residence.

The mascot disappeared sometime after several Oregon students burned OSC's homecoming bonfire ahead of schedule and was not seen again until Saturday. This is Puddles fourth trip to the OSC campus. The first time he visited Aggieville was in 1946. He was kidnapped again in 1947, and once more last year.

Weekend Returns Prove Profitable

"It was a profitable Homecoming," stated Bob Metz, finance chairman for the annual event, Monday night.

And in the non-financial sphere, General Chairman Francis Gillmore reported that all of the Homecoming activities were very successful.

Metz remarked that the Homecoming expenses have not yet been tabulated, and he added, "The dance made money. The luncheon made money. The button sale made money. And I can say that it was a financial success."

The button sales accounted for an income of $507.77, which was more than an average of 10 cents per button because many people paid more than regular price.

Friars, senior men's honorary, and Druids, junior men's honorary, tapped new members at the Homecoming dance Saturday night.

New members of Friars included Tommy Edwards, Duck football player; Ray Hawk, associate director of student affairs (honorary Friar); John Gram, football manager for three years; Mike Adams, chairman of the Student Court; Herb Lombard, president of House Managers; Jack Hutchins, two-year varsity track letterman; and Gerry Moshofsky, lineman on the Duck grid eleven.

Druids tapped Tom Wrightson, Homecoming noise parade chairman, and Clyde Fahlman, Student Union Directorate chairman.

Bonfire Rally Opened Program

The program opened Friday with a rally followed by a mixer dance. The rally, originally scheduled for Skinner's Butte, was shifted to an old lot at 15th and Moss Sts. in a plan to protect the site from OSC raiders.

A large figure named "Benny Beaver" was tossed on the bonfire.

UO to Hear Douglas Speak on Nation's Problems of Today

Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), prominently mentioned as a possible 1952 presidential candidate, will address an assembly on "Problems Facing Our Nation Today" at 1 p.m. next Tuesday in the Student Union ballroom.

Serving his first term as a member of the United States senate, Douglas was this year named the outstanding senator in a poll of Washington correspondents conducted by Time magazine.

Douglas' itinerary on campus, as so far arranged, includes a press conference sometime Tuesday, the 1 p.m. assembly, and an informal coffee hour at 4 p.m. in the Student Union. All students and faculty are invited to the coffee hour, Olga Yevtich, SU program director, said.

Luncheon Planned

A luncheon for Douglas with members of the assembly committee and faculty in the economics department at noon is also planned, according to Lyle Nelson, director of public services.

Douglas was professor of economics at the University of Chicago until he took office in 1949. He had come to that school in 1920.

Having been elected to the Chicago city council in 1939, Douglas competed in 1942 for the Democratic senatorial nomination for the position he now holds, but was defeated. In 1948 he was elected to the senate position once held by his ancestor, Stephan A. Douglas, who was the political opponent of Abraham Lincoln in the 1860's.

Elected Economic Group President

Douglas last year was elected president of the American Economic association, the top position in the economic field.

The freshman senator served as a lieutenant-colonel in the marine corps in World War II, sustaining serious wounds and receiving several awards, among them the Miss Gillmore stated that a "wonderful job" building and guarding the bonfire was done.

The mixer was "very successful," stated Miss Gillmore, who added that there was not enough room.

Although many students had gone home for Thanksgiving, enough remained on the campus to stage a short noise parade Saturday morning. Three floats and a number of cars participated in the parade, which Miss Gillmore enthusiastically described as "the most surprising thing of my life."

Alumni Hear Holloway Report

About 30 alumni attended the annual Alumni Association meeting that same morning, and Alumni Secretary Les Anderson described, to those attending, several features of the Holloway alumni committee decisions on the University "living-in" program for freshmen.

Over 600 alumni attended the alumni luncheon at noon Saturday.

The Oregon-Oregon State football game, won 14-7 by the Beavers, was preceded by a performance of the Oregon and OSC bands.

Halftime entertainment included Duck card stunts and an introduction of Homecoming Queen Molly Muntzel, with the ROTC army drill team participating. After the game, OSC President Donn Black

Pre-registration Continues Now

Pre-registration for winter term classes continues this week.

Building of study programs with advisers and enrollment in courses through deposit of class cards in school and department offices and securing of school or department stamps are the necessary steps.

Students must then check with student affairs in Emerald hall—concerning housing and automobile registration. Deadline is Dec. 8.

Next step in pre-registration is assessment of fees in the registrar's office in Emerald Hall. Dec. 8 is the deadline for those who wish to pay their fees now; others should file their cards to be picked up for payment from Jan. 2-7.

Last step is payment of fees in the cashier's office in Emerald also until Dec. 8.

Students are not registered until they have completed all the above steps and have obtained a fee receipt. Last day for regular registration (open only to those not enrolled this term) or for anyone to change courses without fine, is Jan. 16.

Arena Style Play Opens Red Hair, Aspiring Woman Utilized in Present Play

Comedy will reign when the curtain goes up on "Petticoat Fever" the second University theater production of the season at 8 p.m. Wednesday. The play will be staged in the arena theater, 104 Villard. Frederick Hunter is the director.

Myron Campbell, Mike Hemingway, Sandra Price and Marigene Pelouze have the leading roles. Supporting actors are Leonard Kirchevsky, Gaylord Maurer, Allen Barzman and Dianne Dunn.

Campbell plays the part of Dascom Dinsmore, a radio operator in the isolate arctic. Sir James Fenton, played by Hemingway, is a rather stuffy member of the English parliament. The twice jilted Englishman and his fiancée, Ethel Campion, played by Sandra Price, are forced down in Labrador while "The role of Clara is a definite challenge to me," commented Marigene Pelouze, "because Clara's ambitions, desires, and feelings are at the other extreme from my own." Miss Pelouze plays Clara Wilson in "Petticoat Fever", which opens at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the arena theater in 102 Villard.

In Miss Pelouze's words, "Clara is a woman with definite motives." Clara has been engaged to Dascom Dinsmore for two years, but she has neglected him dreadfully. She hears that Dascom has inherited a large sum of money, and she hops right up to Labrador to join him.

Having Hair Dyed Red

Miss Pelouze is having her hair dyed red for the play, to fit the part. It was dyed red also for "Life with Father" in high school. Miss Pelouze reports her hair will remain red for about four months, wash. As a tip to those coeds aspiring for red hair, Miss Pelouze says the effect is much better done by a professional, than out of a bottle.

The only previous experience but will get lighter with every Miss Pelouze has had on the University stage was when she had a walk-on in "Martha" as a freshman. She is now a junior and hasn't yet decided if she will major in sociology or speech. Miss Pelouze is a member of Phi Beta, the speech, music and drama honorary.

"The role of Ethel Campion is fun to play mainly because the play is so much fun," Sandra Price remarked about her part in "Petticoat."

Ethel is the fiancée of Sir James Fenton, and together they are forced to land in Labrador when they
