

Douglas Discusses Politics, Elections

(Continued from page one)
 and what God thinks of him. "The Douglas God knows isn't qualified for president," he quipped.
 He added, "All I want to do is finish my job as senator and then fade away . . . I mean that."
 When asked if he would be willing to run for vice-president, he replied, "Well, look, who wants to be vice-president?"
 Douglas called himself a "liberal Democrat with Scotch blood who pinches pennies."
 He has fought for economy in government since he took office in 1949.

In a radio interview with Sen. Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, the two liberal senators exchanged mutual admiration. Morse's praise of Douglas prompted the Illinois senator to say jokingly, "Sen. Morse's sweet talk is like that of an Irishman and a Southerner, although he is neither."
 Discussing, in his main address, gifts sent to Congressmen to obligate them to the sender and yardsticks for determining what gifts to return, Douglas said he sends back anything worth more than $2.50.

Douglas Offers Plan To Stop Corruption

(Continued from page one)
 following it. Douglas' set of ethical proprieties included these:
 1. Don't accept valuable gifts.
 2. Refuse lavish entertainment.
 3. Officials with prior employment should not be allowed to participate in cases concerning their former employer for two years after that employment.
Dismiss from Service
 Infractions of these cannot be reached through law, Douglas said, but an official deemed guilty of an infraction should be dismissed from service or disqualified in his new position.

A central cause of corruption of legislators is the high cost of election, the 59-year old ex-marine lieutenant colonel stressed, since contributors to a candidate's campaign later want government favors from him.
 The responsibility of the voter begins with the campaign, Douglas maintained, and he should help the campaign financially. Also, the maximum amount spent "for" the candidate by private groups, not just "by" him, should be set. Otherwise, Douglas went on, private contributions should be prohibited.

Seconded Morse's Proposal
 Douglas' third point was a second to the suggestion of Sen. Wayne L. Morse (R-Ore.) who has previously advocated yearly disclosure by Congressmen of their income and its sources. "Sunlight is a great disinfectant," Douglas quoted Ralph Waldo Emerson.
 Though disclosure may pry into a Congressman's privacy and discourage good candidates (the poor because they will be said to have no brains and the rich because they will be called "grasping"), it will give people the knowledge that government is good, he stated.
 Douglas talk related to the disclosures in recent years of government corruption—the five percenters, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation scandals, government contract grafts, the crime revelations, and big-time basketball corruption and examination cheating.
 "How serious are these conditions?" Douglas asked. To obtain an answer he surveyed the government corruption in England 200 years ago, the election scandals of the early 1800's, and the "retainers" accepted by Daniel Webster, famed politician of the early 19th century in the growing United States.

Conditions Better Now
 England is now the politically cleanest nation, and no politician would now think of baldly obtaining pay for government services rendered to a bank as Webster did from the Second Bank of the United States, Douglas asserted.
 So we have made progress, he stated, but we often slip back. More improvement is needed, Douglas said, because the importance of government has increased tremendously, and because the indirect effects of the actions of public officials—the example they set—are more important than the direct effects.

Horse and Buggy Help

WILLIAMSON, W. Va. — (U.P.) — One of the "paper boys" for the Williamson Daily News is a 66-year-old man who covers his route with a horse and buggy. Mike Acord started delivering papers to supplement his regular monthly pension check. Now he distributes papers along a four-mile route in the coal fields around Williamson.

For Talks, Not Drinks

WHELLING, Va. (U.P.)—Victor R. Gore was arrested for frightening telephone operators by trying to force his way late at night into the Ohio Bell building at nearby St. Clairsville, O. It wasn't that he was anxious to make a 'phone call. The arresting officer, Knox Alexander, said Gore evidently mistook the lighted building for a tavern.

We have a fresh stock of
WHITMAN and ROGERS chocolates
 Gay Xmas Boxes — $1.00 to $10.00
Pennywise Drug Company
 36 E. Broadway Ph. 4-6033

HOME FOR THE HOLIDAYS

HAVE YOUR EYES EXAMINED
 School work is easier with properly fitted glasses. Eyes examined without obligation. No appointment needed.

Dr. Noles optometrists

COLUMBIAN OPTICAL CO.
 631 S.W. Alder, Portland

LEARS ROEBUCK & CO. COLUMBIAN OPTICAL CO.
 524 N.E. Grand, Portland 730 Main, Klamath Falls

Mrs. Omar J. Noles • R. P. Alexander • P. R. Brower • H. R. Scribner • K. E. Leitzel smartest at the shindig! . . .

Van Heusen
 REG. T. M.

Van Tux and Van Dress

You don't have to know how to rhumba to walk off with the prettiest gal at the ball. Wait'll she gets a load of you in your Van Tux (attached regular collar)—or your Van Dress (neck band only). And you'll be confident, too, because they're so well-cut . . . so comfortable . . . so smart with their snowy white pique fronts.

$5.95

Van Heusen
 "the world's smartest" shirts
 Phillips-Jones Corp.,
 New York 1, N. Y.

Efficient And Quick

RADIO REPAIRS

Endicott's
 RADIO AND APPLIANCE
 871 East 13th

Give That Gal The Bird This Christmas

Baby Parakeets can be taught to talk.
 Beautiful canaries are guaranteed to sing.

Also we have a fine selection of hamsters, guinea pigs, chipmunks, and numerous other pets for the home.

What a wonderful variety of gifts for Christmas at

OREGON TRAIL PET CORRAL
 35 W. 1st Ph. 5-1061 Visitors Welcome

MERRY CHRISTMAS and a HAPPY NEW YEAR to the UNIVERSITY OF OREGON

FROM The

EUGENE WATER & ELECTRIC BOARD

GIRLS!

Get Him a Cashmere by PRINGLE

Twenty different shades

USE OUR LAY-AWAY PLAN

Buy Now While There's Still a Wide Selection

Make FENNELL'S CAMPUS STORE Your Headquarters for Men's Wear He'll really go for that Cashmere from . . .

FENNELL'S

860 E. 13th Ave. Ph. 5-1363