Rubber Roads Tried In Many States

CHICAGO (U.P.)—Rubber roads are becoming quite common, in the experimental stage at least. The American Public Works Association reports that an increasing number of cities and states have been giving rubber roads a tryout since the end of the war.

Typical of such experiments is the newly-laid stretch of rubber road on Constitution Avenue in Washington, D. C.

In Massachusetts, highway builders announced plans for experiments with asphalt-rubber topping on an additional 100 miles of roadway in various parts of the state.

Highway engineers currently are trying powdered rubber as a mix with asphalt to provide smoother roads while at the same time giving a less slippery surface.

Engineers believe rubber will help overcome asphalt's chronic softness in summer and brittleness in winter and will tend to allow for expansion and contraction with the seasons.

Akron, O., laid the first section of test rubber road in this country in 1947. Virginia, with a 1,000 foot stretch of rubber road near Richmond, was another pioneer.

Other test sections are being built in Texas and on state highways in Ohio. Cities which have stretches of rubber street include New York, Columbus, O., and Baltimore, Md.

Old Oregon Staff Position Open

Applicants for business manager of Old Oregon, alumni magazine, may call at the Alumni office on the mezzanine of the Student Union from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday, Les Anderson, alumni secretary, has announced.

No petition is necessary, Anderson said. Persons who have had experience in advertising, selling and advertising layout will be given preference, but experience is not required for the position, he said.

The vacancy was caused by the resignation of Virginia Kellogg, who did not return to school winter term.

Austrian to Speak Today at Luncheon

Otto Zundritsch, special student in journalism from Vienna, Austria, will speak on "Student Traveling, a Necessity for International Friendship" at the first international affairs luncheon at noon today.

It was incorrectly stated in Tuesday's Emerald that Zundritsch was to speak Tuesday.

The luncheon is sponsored by the international affairs committees of the YMCA and the YWCA.

This is the first international affairs luncheon to be held winter term. The luncheons are held every week, with foreign students as guest speakers. The luncheons are open to any interested students, Pete Streefkerk, chairman of the YMCA international affairs committee, said.

Sorority Initiation Deadline Named

Sororities must schedule their initiations in the office of Mrs. Golda P. Wickham, director of women's affairs, before the date of initiation, it was announced at the Heads of Houses meeting Monday. Initiations are to be within 3 weeks after the beginning of the term.

Constance Bordwell, representing the WAVES, spoke on the women's naval reserve candidate school in Baltimore, Maryland, and explained the 6 weeks training sessions for two summers. Interested UO women students, below their junior year, will be interviewed for the program Jan. 22 in the Student Union, details to be announced later.

Houses must have their house lists in Mrs. Wickham's office by 5 p.m. Wednesday. Names of new house officers are to be given Mrs. Wickham and Barbara Williams after house elections.

The Hazel Schwering dinner for winter term will be Thursday, Jan. 31. House pairings for the dinner will be announced Jan. 28.

Since the dorms will be unable to house delegates to the Drama Conference Feb. 7 and 8, house presidents were asked to check on the number of girls their organizations could house.

Mrs. Wickham announced that late permission will be granted by house mothers upon adequate circumstances.

Accident frequency rates for 1950 in all industries submitting reports to the National Safety Council showed an 8 per cent reduction from those of 1949.

Science Exhibit Now on Display

As a part of the University's 75th anniversary celebration the library's science division has arranged an exhibit, "75 years of Science at the University of Oregon" in the circulation lobby of the main library for the remainder of January.

The main purpose of the exhibit is to contrast scientific literature of 1876 with the publications of today. Both domestic and foreign periodicals are placed in the exhibit because of their importance as source material for comprehensive study in any field of science.

A large increase of scientific publications since 1876 is evident in the display. Broadening of scientific interest has caused many general science periodicals to split into independent sections or to gradually turn toward specialization. Microfilm and microcards are shown as examples of the use and preservation of scientific materials otherwise unavailable.

Examples of laboratory equipment used in early University classrooms are also on display. Pictures of early classrooms provide further evidence of the type of work done at that time. A picture of Deady Hall and the nearly completed science building may also be seen as a contrast between old and new.
