Need Invitations For Dad's Day

A new promotion idea for Dad's Day has been initiated, according to Carol Lee Tate, promotion chairman.

In years before, letters have been printed in the Emerald to be clipped by students and mailed home to Dad. This year post cards will be sent. The Dad's Day committee feels this introduction of a more personal element to the invitations will be more successful in urging Dad to attend the event.

The post cards have been printed with a poem to Dad, and an illustration of the university's mascot. At the bottom is a dotted line for students to sign their names. The cards are being sold to the living organizations.

Students are urged to address and mail them home to their dads as soon as possible.

Films on China Featured Tonight

A shortened version of "The Good Earth," "Here Is China" and "Pagodas of Peiping" will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. tonight in 207 Chapman, under the sponsorship of the Student Union movie committee.

"The Good Earth," the short version of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, emphasizes the dependence of the farmer in China on his land, and his love for the good earth. The early scenes depict the development of the farm as a family project, then the economic effect on the farm communities when years of famine come, and the successful return to the farm after the passing of the famine.

"Here Is China," a portrayal of the home life of Chinese people, is narrated by Clifton Fadiman. The means of making a living, the modes of transportation, the destruction wrought by floods and the modernization of Shanghai are shown in the film.

Pagodas and carved stone tombs, marble bridges, bronze statues, street scenes, open air shops and a short discussion of jade are a few of the highlights in "Pagodas of Peiping."

There is no admission to the movie.

Wickham Speaks At OSC Dinner

Mrs. Golda Wickham, associate director of student affairs, spoke Monday night at the annual pledge dinner at Oregon State college.

The dinner and reception were attended by 300 pledges from every sorority on the Oregon State campus. Also present at the reception was Mrs. Ruth Ware Greig, representative of the national Panhellenic council.

"Living Memorials" was the title of Mrs. Wickham's speech. She stressed that the students could be living memorials during their life to their college and their fraternal organizations.

Limit on Pledge Class Size Subject Of Closed IFC Committee Talks

An inter-fraternity council committee met in closed session Tuesday to discuss possibilities of further limiting the size of fraternity pledge classes and coordinating pledge maximums with the size of each house.

Such a measure would be designed to distribute pledges more evenly among Oregon's 21 fraternities during this year's open rush season, which begins Monday. It was prompted by the IFC's recent rush week, which saw the majority of pledges signing a definite quota to each house.

After the proposed plan had been defined and analyzed, Phi Delta Theta President Norm Peterson presented the larger fraternities' attitude: "Some houses are physically suited for more than 20 men while others don't even need that many. I am opposed to blanket regulations which would not take this factor into account."

Past ATO President Dick Lee took the floor to agree with Peterson. "I think our pledge maximums should remain where they are. Instead of changing them, we should commend the houses which were able to pledge a lot of members. Limiting the larger houses in pledging would be unfair to both the houses and the freshmen."

During the meeting Bob Christ rose to recognize the extensive work during rush week of Hawk, Cy Ellingson, his assistant, and Paula Casebeer, his secretary. "Thanks to them rush week was successful in its overall results," he said.

McLaughlin formed the committee with three large fraternities and three small ones to represent the factions of Thursday night's meeting evenly. At that IFC meeting comments favoring limited pledge classes came from the smaller houses, while comments attacking the plan came from the larger ones.

McLaughlin proposed lowering the 30 man pledge class quota now in effect to 20 men, observing, "More than three or four houses must be powerful if any houses can be powerful. We must give those fraternities unsuccessful during rush week a helping hand."

Secretary Fred Baltz pointed out that the present pledge quota would require 630 men to give each house 30 men. Only 134 men rushed this term.

Sigma Nu President Larry Dean offered another method of controlling rushing. He thought the size of each house should be considered and then have the limits based upon those figures: "One house should have 25 or 30 to keep if filled, while another house must have 35 or 40 to keep going."

Adviser Ray Hawk, director of men's affairs, pointed out that Dean's suggestion concurred with Panhellenic's method of controlling the women's pledge classes by as-
