

Harlow Slates Split Sessions For Duck Skiers

Oregon's cross-country and jumping team will practice on Mt. Hood this weekend under the direction of Coach Gene Harlow.

The squad includes three Norwegian exchange students, Arne Borgnes, Haskon Nijelva, and Jim Onsrud, all of whom will enter the jumping and cross-country events. Stu McCollon, a letterman from the 1951 team, Jim Reddin, Dick Thomas, Roger Dockstader and Neil Mathison will enter downhill and slalom events. The squad is rounded out by Lee Rogers, who will represent Oregon in the cross-country events. The slalom and downhill team will practice this weekend at Santiam pass.

Confident Huskies Invade Igloo Tonight; Ducks Need Series Sweep for Title Shot

By Bill Gurney

The Oregon basketball team put the finishing touches on their preparations for a "last stand" tonight against the rampaging Washington Huskies, as they clicked off what Coach Bill Borchert termed a "good workout" Thursday night.

When the Ducks left the McArthur court maple about 5:00 p.m., Coach Tippy Dye's purple-clad highly-favored men from Seattle took over for a brief shooting drill.

Speed, Not Height

In regard to Borchert's strategy against Frank Guisness, Bob Houbregs and company, the Oregon mentor plans to open with a revamped starting lineup, which in his words, will "sacrifice height for speed and ball-handling."

The question mark of Bob Peterson's fate this weekend was answered as Borchert named him to start at one forward slot, pitted against six-foot, seven-inch Doug McClary. Pete's running mate will be Sophomore Ken Wegner, normally a guard. Starting Wegner in place of Mel Streeter or Keith Farnum is the core of the plan to gain speed and ball-handling prowess. The five-foot, eleven-inch driver will have the tough assignment of checking the stylish Guisness, although he will give away four inches to the Husky deadeye, a second team All-American last season.

As usual, tall Chet Noe will be at center, opposing all-Northern Division hook shot wizard, Bob Houbregs.

Duck captain Kenny Hunt will team up at the guard position with sophomore Bob Hawes in opposition to "Slippery Joe" Cipriano and Mike McCutchen. Hawes is tabbed by Borchert as one of the team's better long shot artists under pressure.

Top reserves for Oregon include forwards Streeter, Farnum, guards Bud Covey, Barney Holland, and Ron Bottler. Bottler was named by Borchert as another possibility for checking Guisness, if the need arises.

Standouts of the strong Husky bench are Forward Duane Enochs, and Guards Wilbur Elliot and Charlie Koon. Enochs, a six-foot, five-inch senior originally from Portland's Jefferson high school, has been called the best "sixth man" in basketball. He has scored 123 points, and won several games with sterling clutch performances.

Coach William Henry Harrison "Tippy" Dye of the Seattlites gave out with the traditional optimistic comment Thursday night:

"We expect Oregon to bounce back after we beat them so badly at Seattle, and the pressure is on us to win if we want to maintain our position in the league."

Actually the Huskies are top-heavy favorites, and most Duck supporters would gladly settle for so much as a series split. At Seattle on Jan. 18 and 19 Oregon was on the extreme short end of a pair of shellackings, 74-36 and 69-34. They managed only 19 field goals during the two games, and rebounding aces Peterson and Noe were handcuffed neatly by the defensively brilliant Huskies.

The handful of fans who watched the Northerners warm up Thursday evening were impressed by the almost uncanny accuracy exhibited by Guisness on long push shots, Washington currently leads the ND with six wins and two losses. Their latest defeat was last Friday evening at Pullman, as the WSC Cougars, always tough at home, took their measure by a 56-50 count. Saturday the Huskies bounced back to smother Coach Jack Friel's men by a 67-43 count.

Near-capacity crowds are expected for tonight and Saturday, as the games are feature attractions of Dad's day on the Eugene campus. Junior varsity preliminary games start at 6:00 p.m. each night, with the varsity contests beginning at 8:00 p.m.

HOT SHOT—Jumpin' Joe (Slippery) Cipriano, pepper-pot University of Washington Husky guard tries an underhanded practice shot (it's legal, though) which he would like to use against the Ducks tonight in McArthur court. However, the 5'11" junior guard from Nooksack Valley, Wash., gains more notoriety from his 20 and 25-foot long one-handers. Cipriano, in 18 games, is the third-ranking Husky in the point-making department with 184.

Campbells Top McChesney, 27-20; Sederstrom Thumps Hunter Five

By Bill Brandsness

Class A games predominated Thursday afternoon's intramural playoffs as there were five A division games played and only one B game. The only class B contest was between Campbell Club and McChesney hall. Campbell Club won on a 27-20 score.

In the A games Minturn turned back Gamma 30-24 in a close one, Sederstrom licked Hunter 51 to 34 in one of the highest scoring games to date; Nestor hall came to life in the second half to down Cherney hall 34 to 25; Barrister Inn slipped past Yeomen 16-13 in the last ten seconds of play; and the Campbell Club A squad trounced the Legal Eagles 44-15.

In the Minturn-Gamma contest, it looked for awhile as though Minturn was going to be upset. The score at the half time was a narrow 16 to 13 but Minturn finally cracked the Gamma defense and pulled out the win. Pat O'Brien pushed through 17 for the victors while Dick Graham netted eight for the Gamma five.

Sederstrom launched one of the highest point spurges seen in intramural play as they downed a determined Hunter hall team 51 to 34. The game started out at a rapid pace with Sederstrom grabbing an early 23-13 halftime lead. Don Holt made shots from every angle as he dumped 13 buckets for a total of 26 points. Dick Davenport was second high for Sederstrom with 12. Walt Badorik paced Hunter hall with eleven points followed by Bruce Dingler with eight.

Nestor hall pulled out a 34 to 25 victory from Cherney hall after a close half that ended 12-12. Nest-that Borchert could well use on his JV squad.

High point honors for the Nestor squad went to Dick Kofford with nine, Jim Tennyson and little Bobby Takano followed with eight each. Ken Daugherty hit eight for the losers.

Barrister Inn downed Yeomen in a game that went almost to the gun. With a slim ten seconds left, both teams had chances to win but a foul shoot by Kelly from Barrister put the game on ice. Joe St. Martin found time in the remaining seconds to grab a wild pass to put the final score at 16 to 13. St. Martin was high for Barrister with five points, while Jim Redman scored four for the Yeomen.

Campbell Club completely dominated play as they racked up the Legal Eagles 44 to 15. Bill West netted ten and Dick Erickson pushed through nine for Campbell Club. Tom Mosgrove was high for the Legal Eagles with four to his credit.

To finish the day's action the Campbell Club B team came on the floor to follow suit of their big brothers and beat McChesney 27 to 20. The game started at almost a walk as the boys from the Club held a 8-7 half time lead. Melvin Westfall led his team to victory with nine points while Jones scored seven for the losers.

or sharpened their attack in the second half and took advantage of the Cherney hall dribble kings to find the road to easy victory. The only real opposition Nestor found was in the form of lanky Bob Wagner, who dominated both backboards and handled the ball very well for a big boy. Wagner is a boy
