

Inquiring Reporter

Deferred Living Called a Success By Seven of Nine

By Laura Sturges

Deferred living on the Oregon campus was considered successful by nearly all the students questioned by the Inquiring Reporter. Seven students believed it has succeeded, while two dissented. One student was unfamiliar with the plan.

Several students thought deferred living gave the freshmen a greater opportunity to learn how to study before moving into a house and to make more friends in his own class.

One disadvantage found with the plan is that the freshman's interests are divided between the dormitory and house and that deferred rushing should accompany deferred living.

Margie Tuggle—senior in art education—"Yes, I think it will work out better in time. Right now, it's pretty hard on the sororities and fraternities, and on the pledges. It's a good idea, but something should be worked out so that pledges can work more with the houses.

Lawrence Richardson—junior in business—"Well, I don't know too much about it. From the dormitory standpoint, I think it is; from the fraternity standpoint, I don't know.

Kay Haugeard—senior in art—"No; I think deferred rushing should accompany deferred living if they have it at all. The students' interest are too divided between the sorority or fraternity and dormitory. They can't adjust enough."

Carolyn Hoskins—sophomore in liberal arts—"I think it's very unsuccessful—putting two freshmen together in the dorm who have never learned to study. I think they would learn how to study from upper classmen in the houses. The good thing about it is that you meet a lot of people you might not have met otherwise."

Orville Colver—junior in sociology—"In general, it has been, but the "hands off" policy somewhat limits the opportunity for freshmen to get acquainted with upper classmen."

Beverly Jones—freshman in liberal arts—"Yes, I suppose it is, but it's been pretty hard on the fraternities and sororities. After a few years when it's been worked out, it'll be more successful."

Marc Delemme—special student in political science—"Yes, I should say so, because a freshman should get accustomed to University life and studying in a quiet place before going into a house, where a lot of his time will be taken by house activities."

Tom Harney—sophomore in biology—"I don't know; I've never lived in a dormitory. It seems like a good idea because it gives the freshmen a chance to meet more of their classmates."

Duane Setness—freshman in liberal arts—"I think it has. I think it is better than moving in right away. It could be just as good the other way, I suppose, but in this way, you have a background of University life before moving in."

Davia Saul—sophomore in liberal arts—"Yes, I do. The freshmen make more lasting friends, which they keep after moving into their houses. It has seemed to have worked out successfully."

Holloway Report Readied by Alumns

The Oregon alumni association's Holloway report on deferred living should be ready this week, Alumni Secretary Les Anderson told the Emerald Friday.

The report is being compiled by an eight-man alumni committee under the direction of Charles Holloway. The alumni association had asked that a committee investigate deferred living and report back to them.

A sub-committee is preparing the report in Portland, Holloway told Anderson, and the result will be given to each committee member individually for approval.

The report will be submitted to the association, to President H. K. Newburn and will be printed in Old Oregon, alumni magazine.

March of Dimes Drive Ends, Nets $232.67

Total contribution of the campus March of Dimes drive, which ended Thursday, was $232.67. Campus goal was $400.

"As our aim was to stir the interest and awareness of the need for a March of Dimes campaign, I feel the drive was brought to a successful conclusion," Francis Gillmore, campus chairman, said. "Each of the freshmen, and particularly Ann Gerlinger, acting as freshman chairman, is to be congratulated," she added.

Freshmen worked on the drive as a class project.

Young Demos Elect Officers

Arlo Giles, graduate student in sociology, has been elected president of the Young Democrats replacing George O'Dea, sophomore in business.

Bob Ridderbusch, senior in law, was named first vice-president; Dick Whittaker, junior in journalism, second vice-president; Helen Jackson, junior in English, secretary; and O'Dea, treasurer.

The Young Democrats have announced that they will sponsor a "talk about Truman" coffee hour Wednesday. Monroe Sweetland, Democratic national committeeman from Oregon and a Truman supporter, will be at the meeting, the group said.

Discussion of policies of the Truman administration, both foreign and domestic, will be held, Dick Whittaker, second vice-president, said.

The coffee hour will be open to all students. The time and place will be announced later, Whittaker said.

CAMPUS CALENDAR

MONDAY

4:00 ASUO Cabinet	337 SU
7:00 Co-op Council	112 SU
Yeomen Mens Lounge	Ger
7:30 Block & Tackle	110 SU
8:30 Phi Mu Alpha	113 SU

Three 'Y' Officials Attend Conference

Jackie Wilkes and Dave Hobbs, YWCA and YMCA regional chairmen respectively, and Nan Mimaugh, campus YW conference chairman, attended the Y regional council meeting Friday and Saturday at Menucha near Crown Point.

Delegates from Y organizations in colleges in the northwest region, which includes the states of Washington, Idaho, Montana and Oregon, were present at the meeting. Discussions of the regional Y programs was held.

Classical Music Program Tuesday

A varied program of classical music will be played at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the music listening room of the Student Union, adjacent to the browsing room.

The program includes "Romeo and Juliet," "Overture Fantasia," "Overture 1812," "Swan Lake," selections from "Nutcracker Suite," and "Francesca da Rimini."

Read and use Emerald classifieds.

Be a Sweetheart

Remember those you care for with joyous cards from our full selection.

Suitable for all your loved ones.

Cards
Party Decorations
Gifts

VALLEY STATIONERY CO.

76 W. Broadway

Phone 5-6411

● Campus Briefs

● All women participating in Oregon flying speeches and Oregon sales women, except those working in sales booths in the Student Union and the Co-op, are asked by Jody Greer, Oregon publicity chairman, to attend a meeting at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Oregon offices in the SU.

● Petition deadline for general co-chairmen of the World Student Service Fund Vodvil show are due at 4 p.m. today. Petitions should be turned into Joann Sloan, WSSF chairman, at the Delta Gamma house or the ASUO office on third floor of the Student Union.

Buck up, Kids . . .

THE weather is nasty . . .
Mid-terms are here;

BUT Christmas is coming
So be of good cheer!

. . . a word of solace from your

