School of Law Sponsors Traffic Court Conference

Delegates from 11 western states have been invited by the law school to attend the regional traffic court conference on the Oregon campus today through Friday.

Principal speakers will be James P. Economos, director of the American Bar association's traffic court program, and members of the traffic institute at Northwestern university.

Members of the institute are considered authorities in the field of traffic. They have written "Judge and Prosecutor in Traffic Court," the only text on the subject.

Traffic problems will be discussed in an attempt to present a clear picture of the traffic situation as it now exists for the law enforcement officers.

Conference will officially begin 9 a.m. today with registration in the law school. J. F. Cramer, of the general extension division, will open the conference with general announcements.

The delegates will then be welcomed by Orlando Hollis, dean of the law school; J. J. Quillin, chairman of the committee on improvement of traffic courts of the bar association; and Franklin M. Kreml, director of the traffic institute.

The conference is presented by the law school and the extension division, in cooperation with the bar association and the institute. Bureau of municipal research and the Eugene police department have also assisted.

Two Chairmen To Head Vodvil

A committee representing ASUO and World Student Service Fund petitioners Monday night screened petitioners for co-chairmen for the all-campus Vodvil show and selected two from the field of six to submit to the senate Thursday.

Joan Dysart, junior in English, and Rex Balentine, junior in liberal arts, were recommended by the committee.

Other petitioners were Cathy Tribe, sophomore in business; Joanne Forbes, junior in speech; Sharon Anderson, junior in music; and Pat Bellmer, junior in speech.

Serving on the screening committee were Helen Jackson, Mary Alice Baker, Janie Simpson, Judy McLoughlin and Dave Rodway, representing the senate; JoAnn Sloan, Barbara Swanson, Jody Greer, Sally Thurston, representing WSSF; and Jackie Wilkes, Duck Preview chairman.

The all-campus Vodvil will be presented during Duck Preview weekend, Apr. 25-26.

Primary Discussed By USA Committee

Discussion of a proposed constitution which would contain the primary election plan now before the ASUO senate took place Tuesday at a meeting of the United Students association interim committee.

Dick Paul was accepted at treasurer for USA and Helen Jackson as secretary. Donna Buse presided at the meeting in the absence of Virginia Wright, USA interim committee chairman.

the problem after four panel speakers presented views on the situation. Tenor of the discussion was that segregation of Negroes in the poor living areas on west 11th st. is harmful and undemocratic. Most felt something ought to be done about it.

Near the end of the discussion remarks that certain Negroes had been denied more decent housing because of their color (in answer to some assertions that no discrimination had been made, or that every effort had been made to prevent it) were greeted with applause. Also applauded was a remark that the group was erring in trying to be do-gooders, in trying to place blame solely on Eugene realtors. The matter, some said, was one of "personal dedication."

Chemist Interviews Planned for Today

J. F. Phillips, assistant personnel director, and G. E. Adam, administrative director, of the American Potash and Chemical corporation, will be on campus today to interview chemists for positions in the company's production program.

The American Potash company operates plants in various parts of the United States including the well-known plant in Trona, Calif.

Men who are interested in employment in chemistry at any levels may make appointments for interviews with the company representatives in the graduate placement office, Emerald hall.
