Compiled by Helen Jones

(From the wires of the United Press and Associated Press)

The great and the near-great are gathered in London for the funeral of King George VI today. Secretary of State Dean Acheson will represent President Truman. The royal heads of all European states, with the exception of King Baudoin of Belgium, will attend.

At Windsor Castle where the King will be laid away, the hillside slopes are being covered with floral tributes. On Windsor's main street, royal purple mourning streamers are going up. Shopkeépers are replacing window displays with seats for paying spectators.

But the big spectacle begins in London with the funeral procession from Westminster hall to Paddington station. The Queen Mother, Princess Margaret and the King's sister Mary, the Princess Royal, will ride in a carriage close behind the coffin. Behind on foot will walk the four royal dukes, the Duke of Windsor, the Duke of Gloucester, the Duke of Edinburgh and the late King's 16-year-old nephew, the second Duke of

The procession will be led by massed bands and 10,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen from all ports of the Commonwealth, followed by the diplomatic corps. The Royal coffin will ride on a gun carriage.

Monarchs and chiefs of state and their representatives will ride behind the royal carriage.

But the procession has its common touch. In places of honor just before the Royal coffin will walk two of the King's servants, his valet, Thomas Jerram, and his assistant valet, James McDonald.

Westminster hall, where the King's body lies in state, was kept open all Thursday night to allow mourners to pass the bier, ten abreast.

While Secretary Acheson represents President Truman at the funeral, the President and Mrs. Truman will attend memorial services for Britain's ruler in Washington.

Eugene Epidemic Bypasses Campus

Although Eugene's flu outbreak has reached the proportions of a minor epidemic, it is not as severe on campus as it is in the public schools, according to Dr. F. N. Miller, director of the student health

The infirmary has been able to handle all cases, but for the past week its 26 beds have been nearly all occupied, mostly by students

Dr. Miller stated that a sudden change of weather, such as that experienced here early this week, often causes a sharp increase in the number of flu cases.

Symptoms of flu vary from severe back pains and headaches to sore throats and coughs, Dr. Miller said, and those who contract flu should either go to bed or report to the infirmary for treatment. Being a virus disease, flu has no positive cure, he concluded.
