Husky Mermen To Meet Webfeet

By Norm Webb

The Washington Huskies will be defending their first place berth in the Northern Division Swimming Conference against the strong contending Duck swimming team this Friday at the men's pool at 3:30 p.m. Coach Borchardt believes that this will be the toughest meet of the season for both of the teams involved.

Veteran diver Merrill Hodges of Washington, who was the Northern division champion in the diving events, will compete with Duck Sophomore Pete Charlton. Both Hodges and Charlton are undefeated in dual meet competition thus far this season and the points they have accumulated during the season total out nearly the same. This is certain to be some of the best diving in Northern Division meet competition.

Coach Borchardt put the Duck squad through a vigorous drill Wednesday adding the finishing touches to the strokes and timing of the swimmers. Yosh Terada's time trials show that he has a chance to be victorious over Pete Salmon of Washington. Gordon Edwards will be out to break the record in the 200 yd. and 440 yd freestyle events.

Allan Wakinekona is expected to give All-American Magnuson of Washington a terrific race in the 200 yd. breast-stroke. It will also be a close race with Milton Kotoshirodo of Oregon and Dick Elliott, who, at the present time is the fastest man in the conference.

A record crowd is expected to attend the impending meet with U. of W. this Friday. Next Wednesday the Ducks will meet Oregon State at the men's pool at 7:00 p.m. Oregon was victorious over OSC and the Beavers will be out to vindicate their loss in the coming meet.

High Scoring Cougar

ERIC ROBERTS, co-captain on the Cougar quint, leads individual scoring with 279 points this season. Last season he had a phenomenal .468 average from the field in the Coast conference race and was instrumental in leading the Cougars to a third place finish. Besides being fast, he can also rebound with the best men of the Northern Division on the backboards.

Student Union Recreation Tips

Tuesday's ping-pong tournament finals named Dough Hunt, sophomore in liberal arts, the men's champion and Mary Ellen Burrell, junior in business, the women's champion.

In the play-offs Tom McDonald and Mary Whitaker were the runner-ups. The tournament winners will have their names engraved upon a cup in the SU trophy case. 53 men and 6 women competed.

Recreation committee member, Rosemary Hampton, guided the tournament with the assistance of Nancy Cottingham, Bob Shaw and Jim Casper.

Dance Contest

Donna Claire Ringle and Donald Monte won the Tuesday night's SU dance contest. They will have their names engraved on the dance trophy on display in the SU trophy case.

Contestants were judged on their ability, poise, and style in performing the fox trot, jitter-bug, rhumba, samba, and waltz.

Bridge Tournament

Everyone is invited to watch the bridge tournament finals in the SU tonight at 7:30. This final elimination between four couples will determine the team to represent the University in the regional bridge tourney.

Winners of the regional contest will be able to enter the nationals, scheduled for April 18-19 in Chicago. Tonight's games will be played with the same prepared hands that are being played in colleges over the country.

Bridge Lessons

The weekly bridge lessons followed by social bridge will again be featured at the SU this afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00.

Gunning Butler, junior in psychology, instructs the weekly classes in the fundamentals of the Culbertson system of contract bridge. Today Gunning will explain any questions which arise during the social bridge period.

If sufficient interest is shown in the bridge this term, duplicate sessions might be held during spring term instead of the regular social bridge.

Hoopsters Depart For Inland Contests

The Oregon basketball team went through a brief workout Wednesday at McArthur court in preparation for their Pullman invasion tomorrow. The game with Washington State Friday night will mark the first of the famed four-games-in-five-nights marathon. The Cougars will be eager to avenge the twin defeats suffered here at the start of the season. WSC was in the same situation then as the locals will be when they face an identical 59-45 score.

Coach Borchardt has a healthy respect for the Northerners saying that "Washington State beat Washington, on their own floor, which is more than we were able to do." Both teams have improved since the first encounter but the Cougars may have the edge in their own territory.

Cougar coach, Jack Friel, will be without the services of Phil Brown, the promising sophomore guard and early season regular, who ran into academic difficulties. Jim Howell, senior guard, will fill in for Roberts in the lineup which will include Pete Mullins, George Rosser, Bob Swanson, and Eric Roberts.

Wednesday's practice began with work on the ball control offense. Borchardt noted that this has been particularly sloppy in the Oregon State series.

Pete, Wegner Win Dinners

This was followed by regular offensive practice with a first team composed of Bob Peterson, Mel Streeter, Chet Noe, Ken Hunt, and Bob Hawes going against a spirited "Washington State" defense.

Final action of the day took place in the form of a conditioning drill consisting of a 15 lap race around the court. Two races were run, one for the "big men" and one for the "small men." Bob Peterson and Ken Wegner were the winners in the two event meet and earned steak dinners in Portland for their efforts.

The Northbound train left at 6:30 a.m. this morning for those members of the team not driving.

The traveling squad will include Bob Peterson, Keith Farnam, Mel Streeter, Chet Noe, Ken Hunt, Bob Hawes, Jim Vranizan, Ron Bottler, Hank Bonneman, Ken Wegner, Barney Holland, and Bud Covey.

Versatile

PETE MULLINS in his second year of varsity basketball, is one of the key men for Coach Jack Friel's Cougars. Last year he played forward, but this year has also played guard in order to take advantage of his excellent floor play and accurate shooting.
