ASUO President Powers Defined

An interpretation of the ASUO constitution by the constitutional committee has defined the appointive power of the ASUO president as only that specifically mentioned in the constitution.

"In view of the fact that (the constitution) . . . vests in the senate the power to create special committees and to select their chairman, the president clearly does not have the power to do so," the report said.

"If it is desirable that the president have more extensive powers of appointment than those given to him in the constitution, a change in the constitution must be effected," the report stated. "The Constitutional committee has only the power to interpret the constitution as it is written."

Stems from November Debate

The interpretation, which will be presented to the ASUO senate Thursday night, stems from a senate debate on Nov. 30. At that

Agenda for the ASUO senate which meets at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in room 334 of the Student Union will include:

Carey replied he would not make interim appointments if the appointees, after having taken their jobs, were not approved by the senate.

Move 'Temporary,' Will Apply Only To Greeks, Co-ops

By Phil Bettens

A partial victory has been won in the war of the pay tele-phones.

Coin box service will be removed and flat-rate business service phones installed in fraternities, sororities and co-ops at the University of Oregon and Willamette University. And Oregon State College houses will be allowed to retain their present flat-rate phones.

Fred Scholl, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company general commercial manager for Oregon, revealed this new move to ASUO telephone committee chairman Dick Kading and Emerald representatives here Wednesday night.

"Temporary" Move

He said that the move was only a "temporary" solution to the pay phone problem.

"We are conducting investigations to try and find a solution that will be equitable both to the phone company and to the students," he said. "The company is granting this return to flat-rate service during the period in which they make their investigation. Completion of the research should take at least 60-90 days," he said, adding that he felt the business phones would be left in at least until the end of the present school year.

ABC's of Getting Back Flat-rate Telephones

Here's how fraternities, sororities and co-ops are to go about getting flat-rate business phones reinstalled:

- All houses who employ the Bresee-Warner system to handle their house accounts should contact that organization immediately and have it apply for the flat-rate service.
- Houses not served by Bresee-Warner will be contacted by telephone. Louis Eade, Eugene manager of the PT&T, requested that, in order to speed up the installation of the phones, these houses do not call the phone company.
- It costs: If a pay phone is merely replaced with a business phone, there will be no charge. If a new line in addition to the present pay phone lines is installed for a flat-rate phone, there will be a $7 installation charge ($3 for each additional extension).

PT&T manager, said that he would talk to administrative officials of Oregon and OSC today.

He emphasized that the PT&T does not feel that restoring business service is fair to the company. And restoring flat-rate service on this temporary basis is contingent upon two conditions:

No Complaint

● That no formal complaint is filed with the Public Utilities commission regarding pay telephone service by any of the schools affected.

● That the administration does not now press for temporary restoration of flat-rate service in University-owned dormitories.

"We don't propose to make any change there," said Scholl, when asked about removing pay phones on the same basis from the University-owned dormitories.

Change Over Soon

The PT&T officials said they would start working on the changeover immediately and promised to let the Emerald know today how long they thought it would take.

"If a formal complaint is filed, this whole thing is out," Scholl emphasized. He explained that the company would not then jeopardize its case by allowing flat-rate phones to be installed even temporarily here and at Willamette.

Kading had mailed a formal complaint to the PUC earlier Wednesday afternoon, but said he would now revoke it. OSC has a formal complaint in the hands of its lawyer, which has not yet been filed.

Scholl emphasized that the phone company is not revising its interpretation of the phone tariff, which the PT&T maintains calls for pay phones in all campus living groups on the grounds that they are "semi-public."
