St. Elias Ascent Shown in Movie

Only two successful ascents of Alaska's second highest mountain—St. Mt. Elias—have ever been made and colored movies of the latest climb will be shown at 8 tonight at Roosevelt junior high school.

A party of climbers stood on the mountain's topmost ice pinnacle on July 16, 1946, the 205th anniversary of its discovery. It was the first American ascent, and first southside one, of the peak.

Two members of the successful climbing party, Dee and Cornelius Molenaar, brothers, will show the film, presented by the Harvard mountaineering club. It has been shown throughout the nation.

The 16-millimeter film will be shown at Roosevelt, 25th ave. and Hilyard street. Admission is 50 cents for adults, 10 cents for children. Tickets are on sale at the door and at Hendershott's sporting goods store downtown.

Mt. St. Elias, 18,008 ft., is in the center of one of the most heavily glaciated regions in the world, exceeded in this respect only by the polar ice caps and Greenland. For this reason few men have penetrated the area. Six other attempts had been made before 1946 to climb the mountain during the 60 years of Alaska's mountaineering history. The only other successful ascent was made in 1897, when an Italian expedition led by the Duke of the Abruzzi reached the top from the Canadian side.
