

Senate Approves Honor Code Group's Report

The report of the senate honor code committee was adopted unanimously by the ASUCO senate Thursday in the last winter term meeting. The approval, in effect, cleared the way for a spring term honor code orientation program and a student referendum, tentatively scheduled for April 23.

And in a surprise move initiated by ASUCO President Bill Carey, the senate rescinded a fall term decision to send official observers to the National Student Association convention this summer.

Carey asked that the plan to send observers be dropped when he presented the 1952-53 budget letter, also approved, requesting $1840 for student government next year. It would cost from "$300 to $500" to send delegates, he ex-

Eric Johnston Cancels Visit

Movie Czar Eric Johnston will not be a speaker in the 75th anniversary program, revising his previous decision to speak this spring because of unforeseen schedule conflicts.

Johnston, president of the Motion Picture Association of America and former Economic Stabilization head, had accepted the offer to be an assembly speaker, but he has notified the University that his trip to Europe will be longer than originally expected. He will not be available before some time this summer he said.

Johnston was originally selected by the University to represent management in the year's program of speakers. Labor's side was handled by Walter Reuther, president of United Auto Workers, last month.

The University is now attempting to obtain Clarence Randall, president of Inland Steel manufacturing co. of Chicago, according to Lyle Nelson, director of public services.

Editor Norman Cousins Will Speak At Matrix Table-Gridiron Banquet

NORMAN COUSINS, editor of The Saturday Review will be on campus next term to talk with students and address a banquet sponsored by journalism honoraries.

Norman Cousins, editor of The Saturday Review, will be a School of Journalism visiting speaker on the campus for a week during spring term and will be the main speaker at the annual Matrix Table-Gridiron banquet sponsored by two journalism fraternities.

Cousins will speak on "A Positive Strategy for Peace" at the April 8 Matrix Table-Gridiron banquet in the Student Union, sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, and Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism honorary.

He will speak to English, political science and journalism classes and to other groups during his stay on the campus, which begins April 3.

Editor of The Saturday Review during the past 10 years, Cousins has written four books, edited another and been a newspaper reporter. He is 39 years old.

Recently he spent several months in India as a representative of the United States State department and had considerable interest in the development of better foreign relations for the United States. He especially wishes to discuss service careers in the State department with interested University of Oregon seniors and graduate students while he's here.

Greeks, Co-ops Get Business Phones

Business phones are back — in fraternities, sororities, and co-ops.

Carrying out the agreement announced last week, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company installed flat-rate phones in those living organizations desiring to get rid of pay phones. Many Greek and co-op houses elected to retain one pay phone for long-distance and toll calls.

Dormitories still have pay telephones, with no immediate prospect for change. However, University officials have indicated that they will press for equal treatment of the dormitory students.
