

Spring Vacation Cooperation Asked

The week-long spring vacation initiated this year will need the cooperation of students to be a success, according to Donald DuShane, director of student affairs. DuShane, at the request of the Board of Deans, told the ASUO senate Thursday that the vacation was increased in hope that students would not return for spring term several days late.

The board, which acts as the calendar committee in setting the academic year, has pared down the school year as much as possible now, he explained, and if students continue to return late to classes the two or three day "long weekend" spring vacation may be reinstated.
