Twenty-cent Charge

There will be a charge of 20 cents per person for University students; it will be collected at the door. High school seniors attending Duck Preview will receive their tickets when they register.

Each living organization is responsible for getting dates for the high schoolers staying with them, according to Cathy Tribe, chairman of the dance committee. The same plan as last year will be followed. Each men's living organization will contact a women's organization and will arrange dates for the visitors expected to stay in each of the houses.

Freshmen vs. Prep Seniors

As explained by Miss Tribe, the high school senior men will be dated with University freshman women, and the senior women will go to the dance with freshmen men from the University.

The dance will begin at 9:30 p.m. and will continue until 12:30 a.m.

An addition to the program for the weekend was announced Tuesday by Jackie Wilkes, Duck Preview general chairman. On Saturday from 11:30 until 12, the state director of selective service, Maj. Gen. T. E. Rilea, and his assistant, Col. T. W. Mason, will speak to

College Majority Feel Few Students Cheat

A little over half of students polled by the Associated College Press throughout the nation believe that very few students make a practice of cheating on tests and examinations.

A similar poll conducted by the Emerald, questioning 30 students, showed that 30 per cent of those interviewed feel that very few students at Oregon cheat.

Personal Poll Showed 47 Per Cent

A personal poll conducted by the student discipline committee last year showed that 47 per cent of Oregon students have cheated at some time.

Answers received at Oregon showed a slight tendency toward a belief in a greater amount of cheating here than results showed in the national poll. Here are the comparative figures:

Comparative Results

ACP national poll—51 per cent believe very few cheat; 24 per cent feel about one-fourth cheat; 12 per cent think about one-half do; 4 per cent believe about three-fourths cheat; 2 per cent think almost everybody does; and 7 per cent have no opinion.

WSSF Campaign Begins Today; UO Goal $2000

The 1952 World Student Service Fund drive opens today, with the money designated to Pakistan, India and Greece for student relief. The drive will officially close with the all-campus Vodvil show Friday night. Proceeds from the tickets will go directly into the fund drive.

This year a goal of $2000 has been set.

In conjunction with WSSF drive, Alpha Phi Omega, men's service honorary, will be in charge of the "Ugly Man" contest.

The contest is entered by every living organization on the campus, each of which select a candidate for the title and support him by contributing money to a milk bottle in the Co-op.

Bottles with the candidate's name and living organizations sponsoring him will be in the Co-op today until closing hours Wednesday night. At this time money will be counted and the six obtaining the most money will be designated as finalists. Their respective bottles will remain in the Co-op until Friday night and the winners will be announced at the Vodvil show.

An auction to be held Friday afternoon at 4 p.m. outside the SU is another project to help raise the money for the goal of the University of Oregon's drive. Campus personalities including Skull and Dagger members, "Ugly Man" finalists and others will go up on the block.

Reitz Scheduled For Junior Prom

Johnny Reitz and his orchestra have been selected to play at the 1952 Junior Prom, April 9.

The title "The Most Talked About Band in the Northwest," has been given the band by Pacific Coast promoters. Reitz's engagements include civic organizations, service clubs and other universities throughout the Northwest.

JOHNNY REITZ
"Talk of the Northwest"

During his fall personal appearance tour Reitz and his band have appeared in practically every major club and commercial dance hall in the region.

The orchestra presents a diversified program through the combination of a rhythmic style of music, specialty numbers, and the singing of sentimental ballads and hit tunes of the day by vocalist, Marcelaine.

Reitz originally hails from Iowa, but migrated west with his parents and enrolled in the University of Washington. His education, however, was interrupted by Uncle Sam and he spent three years overseas as a G.I.

Returning, he completed his course of study and received his degrees of music and arts.

It was during this time that the original Johnny Reitz orchestra was formed, playing for University dances and in the Seattle area.

Since that time more and more people have "discovered" his music. Just recently, the band inaugurated the opening of a new wing of the Student Union at the University of Washington.

The prom committee includes Bonnie Birkemeier and John Talbot, co-chairmen; Sue Hamilton, intermission; Paul Lasker, decorations; Jean Hall, program; Tom Wrightson, tickets; J.I.F.C., cleanup; Barbara Booth, hospitality; Jean Mauro publicity; Merle Davis, promotion.

SU Assembly To Feature Talks On Honor Code

Students will have a chance to hear the honor code centrally discussed in Tuesday's 1 p.m. Student Union assembly—the day before the student referendum on the code.

Two student members of the honor code committee, one faculty member, and administration speaker and a speaker opposed to the code will be on the program. A question-and-answer period will follow.

Question Period at 4

Also scheduled on the day's program is a Student Union coffee hour in the Dad's lounge at 4 p.m., at which all members of the honor code committee—an agent of the ASUO Senate—will be guests, and will be available for an informal question-and-answer session.

This is the scheduled assembly program:

ASUO President Bill Carey will make introductory remarks. Merv Hampton, chairman of the committee, and Jean Gould, member, will discuss what the code would mean to the Oregon students and what its advantages are.

Ebbighausen to Talk

E. G. Ebbighausen, faculty member of the committee and former chairman, will speak on the code as one member of the faculty. Donald M. DuShane, director of student affairs, will present a message from Acting University Presi-

Opinion Forum Planned for SU

A public opinion forum to summarize major domestic and foreign issues in the 1952 presidential campaign and sponsored by Life magazine, the National Broadcasting company and the National League of Women Voters is scheduled for the Student Union Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Students, faculty, townspeople and residents of Lane county are expected to attend.

Results of the forum, which will allow individual balloting to determine which issues are most important, will be tabulated and the leading questions will be asked of presidential candidates May 1 on the NBC program, "The Citizen's View of '52."

Eugene is one of a number of cities to participate in this grass roots opinion forum. On the local scene the University's department of political science is making the arrangements in conjunction with the Chamber of Commerce and League of Women's voters.

In charge are E. S. Wengert, head of the political science department, Fred Brenne and Mrs. Eldon Johnson, wife of the dean of the college of liberal arts.

Speakers, who will make non-partisan presentations of information on 13 issues, include Charles P. Schleicher, professor of political science, Ward Macy, head of the department of economics, and Richard Steiner, pastor of the Unitarian Church in Portland. Voting will be done following the talks and a half-hour question period.

Presidential candidates who have already agreed to appear on the radio program include Sen. Ester Kefauver, Sen. Robert Kerr, Harold Stassen, Gov. Earl Warren, and Paul Hoffman, appearing for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Liberal Studies Decrease Noted

By Al Karr

A gradual swing in American campuses away from the liberal arts—especially the humanities—is the trend at Oregon, though to a lesser degree, Eldon L. Johnson, dean of the college of liberal arts, has indicated.

A survey of 100 representative institutions conducted by the New York Times showed that in comparison with enrollment ten years ago proportionately fewer students are in the liberal arts than in the technical and professional fields.

More in Humanities

Johnson said the same trend applies here, more in the humanities than in the sciences, social sciences or professional schools. A general decline in enrollment is true of all areas, he said, and a decline in staff members in the liberal arts and humanities has been observed.

Chief cause of the shift, Johnson explained, is the emphasis of the age, at least for the present, on the technical, materialistic and vocational aspects of education increased by the last war. He pointed out that employers, while expressing a desire for educationally well-rounded college graduates, in theory, tend to hire those with immediate vocational skill in practice. This is not true of all employers, however, he said.

Special Situation

Johnson said one reason for the drop in faculty in the humanities at Oregon is the special situation in service courses for freshmen and sophomores. This is best illustrated in English composition, he said, where many sections are offered, and a substantial drop in enrollment means the release of a certain number of staff members.

By contrast, he pointed out, a drop in economics majors means smaller upper division classes, but
