

Duck Counseling Petitions at YWCA

Duckling counseling petitions are now available at the YWCA office in Gerlinger.

All freshmen women who are interested in being "big sisters" this summer for incoming freshmen women next fall have been urged to fill out petitions.

The Duckling Counseling program will be explained by co-chairmen Ann Blackwell and Bobbette Gilmore, at the YWCA sophomore dessert at the Sigma Kappa house, Tuesday, April 29. Petitions will be available at the dessert.

Petitions for Duckling Counseling may also be obtained from Bobbette Gilmore at Carson hall. Interested girls living off campus may get petitions from Miss Gilmore, 5-9625, or at Gerlinger.

"As it will be necessary for every incoming freshman woman to have a big sister, it is up to the present freshmen women — next year's sophomores—to petition for Duckling Counseling," said Miss Gilmore.

Liberal Studies

no sections can be dropped, since only one section is offered for each course, and the same number of staff members is retained.

The drop in faculty because of the former situation is true, however, in such services as mathematics, which have a large freshman enrollment, Johnson added.

"We certainly wish the proportional drop were not the case," Johnson said. "We wish we had the ordinary proportion in the humanities and all liberal arts, or even an increase." But, he stated, neither the liberal arts college or the specific areas knew the solution to the problem.

"It is part of the job of an institution and higher education in general to try to keep some of these areas which have significance in human values from being submerged in the competition of this technological society," Johnson asserted. He said these values cannot be measured in the technical and financial way that some of the more concrete benefits of the sciences, professions and business opportunities can.

● Campus Briefs

● All notices posted in the library by campus organizations must be stamped by the library office (room 106) beginning Monday. This is to assure space for approved posters, the library office stated, but the stamp should be regarded only as permission to post a notice—not official approval of the activity.

● There will be a special Junior Inter-fraternity council meeting at Delta Upsilon Tuesday, according to Bill Schuppell, JIFC president. Owing to lack of a quorum, there was no regular meeting of the group last week, he said.

● A campus coed, five feet or under, is wanted for a part in the all-campus sing program, but no singing ability is necessary. Anyone who has this qualification and is interested in participating should call Francis Gilmore at Kappa Alpha Theta by Wednesday.

● The first elimination for Junior Weekend queen will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday night in the Student Union. Short silks are in order for the occasion. At this time 25 candidates will be selected to compete in the Wednesday night elimination.

● Members of the senior class who received announcements damaged or of inferior quality, should return them to the University Co-op. Some of these, it was discovered Thursday were of faulty quality due to printers errors and will be returned.

● Amphibians, women's swimming honorary, will meet at the women's pool at 7:30 tonight, not the men's pool as previously announced by President Mary Benette.

● A meeting of YWCA cabinet officers will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. today in Gerlinger to prepare the delegates for the YW convention in Chicago May 1 to 7. Jackie Wilkes, YWCA president, has asked all officers to attend all or part of the meeting. Pre-convention issues will be discussed to enable the two delegates—Sharon Anderson and Mary Elizabeth McDowell—to represent the thoughts of the campus YW, Miss Wilkes said.

Summer Work Listed by Bureau

Looking for a good down-to-earth and back-to-nature job this summer? Mrs. Shirley Sylvester, head of the University Employment bureau, could probably make some suggestions.

Job prospects on the local scene, she said, are not as promising as last year owing to the decrease in construction in this area. But she doesn't think this is any indication of fewer summer jobs in the northwest in general. For example:

Maybe you'd like to try your hand at gold mining in Alaska. She has requests for young men from one Alaska mining company which offers $1.38 and one-half an hour, plus $2.25 a day for room and board. The pay isn't exceptional, she said, but the work week will be from 56 to 63 hours—so 16 to 23 hours of time and a half.

Oregon Caves Interviews

She also reports that Richard Sabin, manager of the Oregon Caves resort, will be on campus this Tuesday to interview students interested in summer work at the caves. Appointments for interviews may be made through her office in the Extension building, she said.

In the primitive woods and sky-blue division, jobs for both University men and women in summer camp work are offered in Oregon, Washington and California. For the girls these include YWCA, Campfire girl and Girl Scout camps with such jobs as counselors, instructors in crafts and waterfront directors. For men over 21, there is one request from a private boy's camp in Northern California.

Strictly for Men

A strictly-for-men offer, but one which at this time is restricted to those with experience in the merchant marine, navy or coast, is that made by the Military Sea Transportation service for this summer. MSTS (which is a federal agency, and civil service job) is offering what Mrs. Sylvester called "good pay" for able-bodied seamen, quartermasters, oilers, firemen-water-tenders, junior engineers and junior officers.

Later on, she said, MSTS may lower its requirements and accept men with no previous experience.

Other Offers

And besides these scattered and varied opportunities for summer employment with an appeal to the outdoor man and woman, other job offers include requests for:

Engineering aides and laborers on road construction projects throughout the Northwest, general office clerks and experienced tellers in Portland banks, general office workers and stenographers, also in Portland, cannery workers in Milton-Freewater and Portland and workers at the Crater Lake National park hotel.

Phi Theta to Sell 'Red and Whites'

Red and whites, Phi Theta "mystic" chosen for this year, will be sold on campus the day of student body elections, April 30.

Kept secret until the day of the sale, red and whites were selected as the "mystic" for the annual Phi Theta Upsilon sale, run by freshmen women. "Take a bite . . . of Red and White" is the sales slogan.

Freshmen women will sell the unknown commodity from a dozen booths placed by the Student Union, Co-op, Fenton hall, Carson hall and the quad.

Red and whites will be sold on campus April 30, and in the living organizations April 30 and May 1. Houses will be contacted about pre-orders for red and whites.

'Factor Girl' Contest Photos Due Tuesday

All women's living organizations are reminded by Karla Van Loan to select their candidate for the "Max Factor Girl" contest. Candidate names and pictures are due Tuesday to Miss Van Loan at Alpha Phi (5-6626).

Judging will be on the basis of the photographs, by a non-student panel. The pictures should be 5 by 7 glossy prints.

The six Oregon coeds selected will be entered in the national Max Factor Girl contest. The national winner will receive a $1000 scholarship for herself and $1000 for her college or university.

A vacation trip for two to Hollywood for coronation ceremonies and sightseeing is part of the winner's award.

Other prizes include a typewriter, shoes, stockings, radio, a corsage delivered each month for a year, luggage, clothes, make-up case, a jeweled watch, encyclopedia, record player and 25 albums and a vocal audition by Capitol Records.

The "fresh, natural look" of the college candidates is emphasized. The contest is sponsored by the Max Factor make-up studio in Hollywood.

Simpson to Speak On Business Cycles

Paul Simpson, associate professor of economics, will speak on "Regional Business Cycle Analysis" at a meeting of the Social Science club at 7:30 p.m. today in the faculty club.

The customary dinner meeting will not be held.

Simpson, who has been aided by a Social Science Research Council grant, has been exploring the economy of the Northwest for some years. His talks tonight will concern the conclusions which can be drawn from regional data concerning business cycles.

The club will also hold election of officers. The meeting is open to all faculty members.

AMS Approve Constitution Plan

The Associated Married Students held the first of their general meetings Thursday night. The AMS constitution was presented and was approved by all persons attending.

Guest speakers, Carolyn Silva and E. G. Ebbighausen, associate professor of physics, spoke on the honor code system. Another highlight of the program was a pantomime by Fred Sausville. Jesse Himelsbach announced plans for a Co-op store which is being set up in the Amazon housing project. Ted Havlicek and Jack Sweeney provided music for the evening.

Skull and Dagger Calls For Petitions Friday

Petitions are being called for by Skull and Dagger, sophomore men's service honorary. Deadline is Friday and the petitions should be turned in to John Beal at Phi Kappa Psi, or Bob Scott at Sigma Chi.

Membership is based on participation in campus activities. Petitions are available at the office of student affairs and must be cleared there for eligibility. A 2.00 accumulative GPA is required.

Science Students Receive Awards

Margery Gray, Ralph Kavanagh, Arthur Livingston, Donald Kohler and Russell Lehman, advanced science students at the University, have been awarded graduate fellowships by the National Science Foundation.

The awards, each for $1400 plus full tuition, are good for the 1952-53 school year and are designed to encourage the advance of scientific talent.

The five may use their awards to attend any accredited institution in the United States or abroad. Miss Gray, who is working on her master's degree in biology, said she was planning to stay at Oregon.

Four hundred awards, varying in size from $1400 to $3000, were made by the foundation, she added. They were notified here of the selection more than a week ago, she said.

Economics Instructor To Leave UO for Yale

Edward Budd, instructor in economics, has received an appointment to Yale University effective in fall 1952.

Budd came to this campus last September from the University of Illinois, where he taught for two years following completion of his graduate work at Berkeley, Calif.
