

'Operation Politics' Cut to One Day Due to Conflict With House Dances

"Operation Politics," Oregon's mock political convention, will be held only May 2, not May 2 and 3 as originally planned, due to numerous house dances planned for Saturday, May 3.

Governor Val Peterson of Nebraska will be the key-note speaker at the convention.

The decision to hold a mock Republican convention was made earlier by the students through a campus poll.

Houses Voted

Various living organizations have been paired and assigned the states to be represented at the convention. Each living organization elected its representatives for their respective states. Representatives are to contact the Republican headquarters of their assigned states in order to determine for whom that state will vote in the national presidential nominating convention.

House representatives are urged to call Bob Ridderbusch, Phi Sigma Kappa, as soon as they have completed a list of their delegates. Students living off campus who are interested in serving as delegates are also requested to call Ridderbusch.

Idea Came From Oberlin

The original idea for the mock convention came from the Oberlin college convention in Ohio, which boasts of 92 years of experience with mock conventions.

It is the desire of the students planning the convention that "Operations Politics" will be a realistic replica of a national convention.

Reserve Commissions Available Through Advanced ROTC Course

Men who are not presently enrolled in the ROTC program, but who are eligible to apply for the advanced course and interested in obtaining a reserve commission are urged by the department of military science to apply at that department.

To qualify for enrollment in advanced ROTC an applicant must have completed two years of basic ROTC and have had two full academic years remaining in school or be a veteran of at least 12 months service and have it at least two full academic years remaining at the University.

Army and Air Force Options

The military department has an advanced army ROTC program and an air force ROTC program. The army ROTC program offers training in the infantry and the transportation corps. Upon successful completion of army ROTC training the graduate is appointed a second lieutenant in the organized reserve corps of the army.

The advanced air force ROTC offers four options: administration and logistics, comptrollership, general technical and flight operations.

The administration and logistics option prepares the student in administration, supply and transportation functions. The comptrollership option prepares the cadet in the statistical service of the air force. General technical is primarily designed for students majoring in science and mathematics, to prepare them for the technical services of the air force. Flight operations is designed to prepare students for flight training in such positions as pilot, navigator, observer, and radar man.

Voluntary Application

Completion of the air force program gives the cadet a commission as second lieutenant in air force reserve.

The student must apply voluntarily for admission, according to the ROTC department, and must be selected by the head of the institution and the head of the military unit. Those selected must sign an agreement to continue in the ROTC during the remainder of their undergraduate courses, and to attend summer camp when ordered to do so.

In return they become entitled to receive a monetary allowance (at the current rate—90 cents per day) except while attending camp. The four-week summer camp is usually attended between the junior and senior years. While at camp, the student is paid at the rate of $75 per month, and is furnished subsistence, housing, medical care and necessary uniforms.

Railroad fare paid for by the ROTC, or a travel allowance of 5 cents per mile, is authorized for the round trip to and from camp.

The advanced course contract is not to be confused with the deferment agreement, which continues throughout the period of military training and thereafter as long as the individual remains in good standing in the ROTC program.

The army ROTC is now accepting applications for advanced training in transportation and infantry fields. Deadline for applications is April 30. Applicants for army ROTC will be interviewed by a board of officers beginning Saturday.

Art Workshop Deadline April 30

The deadline for turning in art material for the Student Workshop, to be held May 2 to 11, is April 30 in the Student Union browsing room.

Paintings submitted must be prepared for mounting, and water color work must be matted. Other materials which may be submitted are ceramics, sculpture and weaving.

Art majors who plan to submit work must do their projects outside of class or if done in class they must be a year old.

Foreign Students To Be Entertained At Sunday Picnic

The annual foreign student picnic sponsored by the international affairs committee of the YMCA and YWCA will be held Sunday at the Frank Graham residence at Jasper.

All persons planning to go are to leave their names at the YM office in the Student Union or the YW headquarters in Gerlinger by noon Friday, YW Chairman Barbara Boushey has announced. Anyone is invited to attend, Miss Boushey said.

The group attending will meet in back of the Student Union at 10 a.m. Sunday. Sack lunches are to be brought, Miss Boushey said, and refreshments will be provided. A charge of 25 cents will be made to cover the refreshments and transportation.

Selective Service Qualification Tests Scheduled Today

Selective Service qualification tests will be given on campus today at 8:30 a.m. in Fenton hall, according to J. Spencer Carlson, director of counseling and admissions.

All men planning to take the test he said, should present their tickets of admission at room 3, Fenton hall, where the test will be held.

Doors will close at 9 a.m. for the exam. Persons taking the exam are asked to bring a pen or a No. 2 pencil. The exam takes about three hours excluding time for reading instructions.

PS Professors To Attend Meet

Several members of the University of Oregon political science department will attend the fifth annual Northwest Political Science association meeting at Washington State College in Pullman, Wash., Friday and Saturday.

Faculty members who will participate in the program are M. J. Flach, visiting lecturer in political science, who will talk on "The Effect of the United Nations on International Tensions" at the round-table discussion of "The United Nations in the Framework of Power Politics;" and J. M. Fosskett, associate professor of sociology, who will speak on "The Contribution of Sociology to Political Science" during the round-table discussion of "The Contribution of History to Political Science."

Surprenant Elected

Paul Surprenant, Pi Kappa Phi, was elected president of the House managers association Tuesday night.

Other officers elected were Lowell Schuck, Delta Upsilon, vice-president; Bill Wright, Alpha Tau Omega, secretary; and Marty Johnson, Sigma Phi Epsilon, treasurer.
