Letter Contests ASUO Elections

The recent ASUO elections has been contested in a letter which has been filed with the constitution committee.

According to the letter, the writers feel that the "elections were held contrary to provisions" of the constitution and they felt it was their "duty in the interest of good government to contest these elections regardless of outcome."

Basis for the contestation concerns the publicity given in the Emerald the sample ballots and the amendments concerning the freshmen elections.

Article two, section one, clause eight of the constitution which states that the sample ballot and voting instructions shall be published in the Emerald two successive publication days prior to the elections was cited.

The letter said that at one time were the sophomore and junior class ballots printed and as that was a "violation of the constitution," they asked that results be disregarded and the election declared illegal.

Quoting from article seven, section two concerning the amendment, they said that the amendment was to be published three days prior to a week before the elections. Stating that the amendment did not appear until April 25, five days before the April 30 election, they wished the results of the voting on the amendment declared invalid.

In regard to election procedure, they raised a question concerning the use of the Australian ballot and the time that polling booths were open on the day of the election (citing discrepancies of from a few minutes to a half hour in the time the booths were actually open).

The letter was signed by Robert A. Ridderbusch, Richard C. Hansen, Rodger Eddy, Howard McGinnis, John R. Walter, John R. Mielwald, Elmer F. Staubs and Henry D. Ambers.

Reactions to the letter by ASUO officers were varied, but all seemed to think that there was no

Writer to Talk At Assembly

Bernard DeVoto, editor of "The Easy Chair," a feature in Harper's Magazine, will arrive on campus today to speak to students at the 1 p.m. DST assembly in the Student Union.

His topic will be "The Professional Writer." Students will have a chance to meet him today at the 4 p.m. coffee hour which will also be held in the Student Union.

Editor of "The Easy Chair" since 1935, DeVoto is the author of several books and has written articles, stories, historical essays and reviews for various publications. He was formerly editor of the Saturday Review (of Literature) and the Harvard Graduate's Magazine.

He has written such books as "Mark Twain at Work," "The Year of Decision: 1846," and "Across the Wide Missouri".

UO Now on Standard Time; Eugene Decides on Daylight

The state is on standard time, Eugene is on daylight time, and the University of Oregon is on a modified standard time which—in effect—is daylight saving time.

Confusing? Very likely. Here's the setup:

According to state law (passed by referendum vote), Oregon is to remain on Pacific Standard time unless the governor decrees otherwise. Gov. Douglas McKay this year chose to keep the state on standard.

Last week the Eugene city council passed a resolution to go on daylight time, so all retail merchants are on the fast time, as are radio stations and newspapers.

Oregon's board of deans, acting as a schedule committee, decided Saturday to keep the University on standard time, Oregon being a state institution, and to move all classes up one hour to make—in effect—University schedule conform to Eugene time.

So classes are now held at 7, 8, 9 and 10 a.m., and 12, 1, 2 and 3 p.m. Lunch hour is 11 a.m. University-scheduled events follow this system.

All clocks, including those of the Student Union and the University co-operative store, are on standard time, but the SU and the co-op are operating on daylight saving time including meetings in the SU.

(Schools in Public School District No. 4 are on the same revised standard time basis as the University.)

All dormitory meals—men's and women's—have been moved up one hour, also—making breakfast from 6:15 a.m. to 6:45 a.m. PST, lunch from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. PST in John Straub and from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. PST for women, and dinner from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. PST in Straub and from 4:30 to 5:15 p.m.

PST for women.

Most fraternities, sororities, and co-operatives groups are operating on daylight time.

Women's closing hours will also follow the one-hour earlier pattern.

Closing hours during the week are now 9:30 p.m. PST; on weekends 12 midnight PST; and on May 9, the night of the Junior Prom, will be set at 1 p.m. PST.

SU Board Directorate Membership Petitions Called for 11 Positions

Petitions for membership on the Student Union board directorate are now being called for with eleven positions to be filled.

Members of the directorate—the eleven positions—are the chairmen of student union committees which include: art gallery, browsing room, dance, forum house, movie, music, personnel, publicity, recreation and recorded music.

The forum committee is a new group to take charge of regular coffee hours.

Handles Coffee Hours

The committee will enlarge and regularize these coffee hours, which were put on by the board for the first time this year.

The forums may be supplemented with an occasional speaker within the University or by discussion of current topics which concern the campus.

The committee will consist of a chairman, five students and one faculty member and two ex-officio members. Organizations who themselves will be bringing speakers to the campus will be invited to utilize the coffee hour program if they desire, according to the board.

Duties Listed

The duties of the SU committee chairmen are as follows:

Art gallery—take charge of planning and exhibiting paintings.

Browsing room—be responsible for the browsing room program, including the Friday evening coffee hours, the Wednesday lectures and special programs such as campus

Business Head Petitions Nil, New Call Issued

Larry Hobart, junior in journalism, will be the Oregon Daily Emerald editor for the first half of the 1952-53 school year.

Hobart, present Emerald news editor, was appointed to this position by the Student Publications board following an interview Monday night.

Also petitioning for the job were Phil Johnson, junior in pre-law, Jim Haycox, junior in journalism, and Kitty Fraser, sophomore in pre-journalism. Johnson is assistant managing editor. Miss Fraser and Haycox are assistant news editors.

Hobart will serve for one-half year under the new ruling of the publications board which calls for two staffs a year. In the past, the editor has served a one-year term.

The board also officially approved the appointment of Sally Thurston, sophomore in business, as advertising manager.

No petitions were received for the job of Emerald business manager. The board will continue to accept applications for the position until May 16. Interviews will be held May 19.

Ford Reappointed As Ore-Nter Editor

Bob Ford, sophomore in liberal arts, was reappointed editor of the Ore-Nter, new student information booklet, for the 1952-53 year by the board Monday night. He edited the 1951-52 booklet.

Ford plans to select his staff and begin work immediately.

SU to Distribute Oreganas Today

The Oregana will be distributed beginning today in the Student Union check room. They will be available from 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. (PST) today and Wednesday only, Business Manager Chuck Isaak announced.

Those who have completed payments for the book may pick up their copies, Issak said. Students who have payments to make must complete them before obtaining their copies.

The cover of this year's yearbook has a background picture of an Oregon football game played some years ago, Editor Bob Funk said, and features a four color inset of Deady hall. There are a total of 376 pages.
