

Float Parade To Roll at 4 p.m.

The Junior Weekend float parade will begin today promptly at 4 p.m. (DST) assembling at 4th and Willamette. The parade route is down Willamette to 13th, up 13th to University st. and from University to McArthur court.

All floats will begin assembling at 3:30 at the railroad depot and position in the parade will be determined by arrival at the depot. Floats must remain in original order because a tally of the parade positions will be given to the judges for judging of the floats. Any arrivals after 4 p.m. will be disqualified. Parade Chairmen Norma Hultgren and Jim Owens announced.

The judging committee composed of Carlisle Moore, associate professor of English; L. N. Marx, associate professor of psychology; D. B. Slocum and Dick Bailey of the Bailey Lumber Company, will be stationed at the City Hall throughout the parade. Floats will be judged equally on originality, adherence to the theme and quality of workmanship.

Rules for the parade are maximum height—12 feet, and maximum cost—$70. The awards for the winners consisting of two cups for first place, will be awarded at the all-campus sing tonight.

The parade will not be discontinued if it rains, but will continue along the regular route until it is completed.

Bowerman Instrumental in Ending 'Dink' Wearing by UO Freshmen

Freshmen no longer are forced to wear freshman caps throughout the year.

The man responsible for this state of affairs exerted his influence to abolish the old hat rule at a time when he was in charge of enforcement of traditions!

He was one of the few ASUO vice-presidents who have gotten into disputes with ASUO presidents. And he once had the modesty to remark that, although he was vice-president of the student body, he didn't have the ability to head the campus Music committee.

Now known to track fans throughout the Pacific Coast, his name is Bill Bowerman.

Vice-President

Bowerman, a Duck football and track performer, was elected vice-president in the spring of 1932. In January, 1933, while presiding over a meeting of the Traditions council, Bowerman strongly argued in favor of elimination of the frosh lid tradition.

When he felt that the moment was opportune, he called for a vote, and the decision was 11 to 9 in favor of continuance of the tradition. However, Bowerman ruled that several of the 11 negative voters were members of Skull and Dagger who were present only for debate and did "not belong to the tradition group proper."

"Therefore," Bowerman stated, "it is apparent that the wearing of freshman caps will no longer be enforced here." It was quite apparent, since Bowerman was in charge of enforcement.

Widely Hailed

The move was widely hailed by campus officials, including Chancellor W. J. Kerr, Dean of the School of Law Wayne Morse; and Basketball Coach Bill Reinhart.

Bowerman's dispute with ASUO President Bob Hall occurred during the previous term. A quiet political scene was suddenly shattered when Bowerman issued a statement to the Emerald, charging Hall with running "what virtually amounts to a dictatorship" and trying "to run the whole show in the student body."

"If Hall is to be a second Mussolini," Bowerman wrote, "let him say so, and I will meet him on those terms."

Specific Complaints

Offering some specific complaints, the present Duck track mentor stated:

"Before the committees were appointed last spring, I asked Hall to consider me for the head of the athletic committee, inasmuch as that was the line in which my major interest was centered. His answer was to appoint himself. I was named head of the music committee. I know nothing about music, and considered it poor judgment on Hall's part to name me to that position."

Hall did not answer the charges, but Emerald Editor Richard Neuberger, now a prominent Democratic politician, wrote a lengthy editorial, asserting that neither Bowerman nor Hall was greatly at fault.

Hot Under the Collar

"In our opinion," Neuberger wrote, "Hall made his mistake when he appointed Bowerman head of the music committee. It is easy to imagine a big six-footer like Bill Bowerman, who raced 89 yards with a ball under his arm against the Washington Huskies, getting hot under the collar when presented with the chairmanship of the music committee after he had asked for a similar position on the athletic board."

The editorial also pointed out that it was a precedent for the ASUO president to head the athletic committee, and Hall's status as a letterman gave him a claim to that position. The issue died as suddenly as it had arisen.

Two O's To Be Prettied

The painting of the Oregon "O" on Skinner's Butte, and the scrubbing of the Oregon Seal on the Student Union walk, will both take place at 8 a.m. today, Dick Morse, Junior Weekend traditions chairman, has announced.

The "O" will be painted by members of the Junior Interfraternity Council, with the "assistance" of members of Order of the "O".

The scrubbing of the seal, which will also be done by freshmen, will have the assistance of the lettermen, also.

Four Campaigners Here Next Week

Oregon's busy 75th anniversary assembly schedule will be even busier next week when four presidential candidates will speak.

They are Gov. Earl Warren of California, Harold Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Ford Foundation, and speaking for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republicans; Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Democrat.

Warren will lead off the week's addresses Monday in a 1 p.m. assembly in the Student Union ballroom.

Tuesday Hoffman, who has not declared himself as a GOP candidate but who is prominently mentioned as a possible nominee, will speak at 4 p.m. in the SU ballroom, and, at 8 p.m., Kefauver will give an address in the ballroom.

Warren has been campaigning in the state this week. A member of the Republican party liberal wing, he is a supporter of Eisenhower, although he is campaigning on his own hook.

Hoffman is a former head of the Economic Cooperation association, past president of the Studebaker corporation, ex-chairman of the automotive safety foundation.

Kefauver, who made the headlines with his committee's investigation of crime throughout the nation, is battling party colleagues for the Democratic nomination left wide open with President Harry Truman's announcement that would not be a candidate. Kefauver has won every primary he has entered except the last one, in Florida, which he lost to Sen. Richard Russell of Georgia.

Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, is also an Eisenhower supporter. He was a leading candidate for the Republican nomination in 1944, but has not fared so well this year in most states.

Subjects of the speeches have not been announced.
