

Warren Tells Ideas to Big Audience

By Al Karr

If Gov. Earl Warren of California is elected president of the United States this year, he will favor:

A Republican party for all the people, regardless of race, creed, color, living site, or economic status.

Recognition and fulfillment of world obligations.

A forward-looking party.

A reversal of the present trend toward centralization of government in Washington, D. C.

Eliminate Duplication

An elimination of unnecessary duplication and obsolescence in federal organizations.

Establishment of a rigid code of honor and publicity to eliminate present secrecy and corruption in government.

Elimination of subversives from government through the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An administration operating within the framework of written law.

Balancing the budget and elimination of financial waste.

And a modified universal military training.

Those were the chief policies emphasized by Warren in his assembly talk and question period Monday in the Student Union Ballroom before approximately 1700 persons.

Accompanied by Journalists

Warren was accompanied by a bevy of newspapermen (including representatives of the New York Times, Chicago Daily Tribune, San Francisco Chronicle and Portland Journal) news reel and Television Columbia Broadcasting System cameramen, and his wife and two of his daughters, Virginia and Nina.

Moving pictures were taken of portions of his talk, sections of the bulging audience and, after the assembly, of the five students who asked questions in the limited question period.

John Tonack, president of the Oregon Young Republicans, presented Warren with a green-and-yellow elephant, gave a duck to his wife, and a small elephant each Virginia and Nina.

Serving his third term as governor of California since he was first elected in 1942, Warren asserted in his address that government should support private enterprise and encourage competition. Businessmen should have the good will and help of government, he said, farmers should be aided in avoiding disastrous cycles of booms and busts, and workingmen ought to have their fair shares of security.

"We want the unfortunate to be cared for. We want everyone . . . to have the same fair, honest consideration he is entitled to by this government."

Asked later how farm subsidies can be reconciled with decentralization, Warren said he didn't mention subsidies, and favored price support controls. It is not necessary to have planned economy, he said.

Against Centralization

Turning to the ills in government which he said should be attacked, Warren stated, "It is imperative that we keep right in our communities and states as much of the power of government as possible." He denied the belief that "all power, all wisdom, all goodness" is to be found in Washington.

When we give up responsibility at home, we give up the opportunity to solve our own problems, he asserted. Such a situation could become an "inverted pyramid," Warren said, with a few men try-

Open Hearing Set In Election Muddle

An open hearing on "the whole business" of the contested ASUO election—including the move by the contestants to stop the installation of new ASUO officers Wednesday night—is scheduled for 3 p.m. DST today in the law school.

The hearing was set by the constitutional committee in a meeting Monday afternoon. All litigants will be present, Merv Hampton, ASUO vice-president, said.

What Kind of Action?

He did not know, however, what might be accomplished in the hearing; specifically, if action would be taken by the committee on either the petition contesting the election of April 30 or the one requesting an injunction against the installation Wednesday.

The principals in the case are, as plaintiff, Bob Ridderbusch, and as defendant, Hampton, who acted as chairman of the election committee which supervised the voting. Ridderbusch is represented by law school students Francis Linklater and Fred Risser; Hampton by John Sabin and Lester Pederson.

Legal Signers

Others signing the notarized petition contesting the election and who, according to Hampton, may figure in the hearing, are James Mead, Leland C. Johnson, Richard C. Hansen, B. O. Maharajh, John A. Simmons and Arlo Giles.

Replying to the charges made in the petition, Hampton said that the ASUO ballot for president, vice-president and senators-at-large did follow the regulations outlined by the senate.

The Minutes Say . . .

The minutes of senate meeting No. 18, at which time the ballot was discussed, state that "Mike Lally (Junior Class president) moved that the parties have priority in determining the order of the placement of candidates on the ASUO election ballot. Bill Frye (senator-at-large) made an amendment to the motion which stated that the candidates' names in each party's preference of order be placed alphabetically in alternate positions on the ballot."

"This is the exact procedure that was used," Hampton said. "The intent of the original motion concerning party priority is clear, however the phraseology of the amendment is somewhat lacking."

Alphabetical and Alternating

What the amendment meant, he said, was that the first choice of each party (ASUO presidential

Men's Store Offers Blood Drive Bonus To Every Donor

Baxter and Henning, Eugene men's clothing store, is offering $10 credit towards the purchase of a suit from their store to every person who donates a pint of blood for the Red Cross blood drive on Wednesday.

Arrangements for blood donations by students are under the direction of Joan Walker, campus blood drive chairman. Each house is being asked to have at least three persons donate.

Miss Walker reminds all students that they eat no fatty food substances for a period of four hours before donating.

Each organization is being assigned a specific time for donations and transportation will be available at the Kappa Alpha Theta house. The donations will be taken at the Masonic Temple on 10th and Olive.

Asklepiad Initiates Collect for Cancer

Newly tapped members of Asklepiads, pre-med honorary, will be collecting money this week for the honorary's cancer fund, which is sent to the University of Oregon Medical School in Portland.

By Paul Keefe

One thousand army and air force ROTC cadets will march in a parade review on Howe field at 1 p.m. (DST) today in honor of army and air force inspectors visiting the campus military department.

The formal dress parade, including the ROTC band, will be reviewed by members of the inspection teams and the permanent party staff. Col. Emory Bruns—head of the University military department—announced that all students, faculty members and townspeople are invited to observe the review.

Silver Star Award

During the ceremonies a posthumous award will be made to Eldon C. Barton, former Oregon student, who was killed in action in Korea. The Silver Star, fourth ranking

Hoffman, Kefauver Assemblies Today

It's a prominent Republican Eisenhower campaigner and Democratic Senator Kefauver in two assemblies today.

Paul G. Hoffman, former head of the Economic Cooperation association on leave from the Ford Foundation and campaigning for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the GOP nod, will speak at 4 p.m. in the Student Union ballroom today.

And, at 8 p.m. in the ballroom Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) will give an address in his own behalf.

One of Three Ike Men

Hoffman, who has been mentioned by some as a possible Republican candidate himself, is one of three Ike campaigners sent into Oregon to campaign for the supreme commander of allied European military powers. Others are Gov. Sherman Adams of New Hampshire and Rep. Hugh Scott (R-Penn.)

A past member of such organizations as the Department of Commerce business advisory council, honorary chairman of the United China Relief, and President Harry Truman's committee on foreign aid, Hoffman resigned from the ECA in 1945 to become president of the Ford Foundation. He has also been president of the Studebaker corporation.

Eisenhower vs. Taft

Hoffman's candidate for president, Gen. Eisenhower, is currently battling Sen. Robert A. Taft (Ohio) for the lead in state delegates to the Republican convention in Chicago this July. Other declared GOP contestants include California's Governor Earl Warren, who spoke here Monday, and University of Pennsylvania President Harold Stassen, who will give an address on campus Thursday night.

Kefauver is best known for his senate committee's spectacular, television-spotlighted investigation of crime throughout the nation, with such notables as Frank Costello investigated.

Going Getting Tough

The Tennessean, though a freshman senator, was a Congressman from 1929-1949. Sporting a coonskinned cap on his nationwide campaign, Kefauver vaulted way ahead of his competitors in early state primaries and conventions, butis receiving stiff going from some of them now.

Ten Delegates Picked for Ike

By the United Press

Ten of the candidates for Republican delegates from Oregon were selected for the Eisenhower camp by the Ike backers Monday.

Under the dual Oregon primary system, delegate contestants may file by declaration for delegate from a district (eight will be selected for the GOP), for delegate-at-large (ten), or may petition for either spot.

Those who file are automatically pledged on the first national convention ballot to support the state's choice in the primary. Those who petition are unpledged.

In order to combat the eight persons (two for district and six at-

Baritone Recital Slated Tonight

Morris Beachy, baritone, will give a recital at 8 p.m. tonight in the School of Music auditorium. He will be accompanied by Williams Woods, pianist. Beachy is a graduate student in music.

The program will consist of numbers by Handel, Duparc, Ravel, Wagner, Mahler, Barber, Griffes, and Vaughn Williams.

The first group is Handel's "Oh Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?", "Dank Sei Dir, Herr", and "Aria di Radimisto" from Radimisto. Then comes Duparc's "L'Invitation au Voyage" and Ravel's "Chanson Romanesque", "Chanson Epique", and "Chason a Boire".

Wagner's "Die Frist ist Um" from the opera "The Flying Dutchman" is the third group, followed by Mahler's "Rheinlegendchen—"Das Schildwache Machthild", "Wo Die Schoenen Trompeten Blasen", and "Das Irdische Leben".

The last and fifth group is modern—Barber's "With Rue My Heart Is Laden" and "The Queen's Face on the Summery Coin", Griffes "The Lament of Ian the Proud" and Vaughn Williams' "I Got Me Flowers" and "Antiphon."

Bearcats Cancel UO Assembly

The University of Oregon exchange assembly which was to have been presented at Willamette University today has been cancelled, Andy Berwick, exchange assembly chairman, has announced.

The assembly was cancelled because of conflict with a speaker, Berwick said. At the present time there is no plan to present the assembly at Willamette at a later date, Berwick stated.

Thousand Cadets Will March Today; Posthumous Award To Be Presented

United States military award, will be given for outstanding gallantry in action at Taeusan, Korea. George S. Barton of Eugene, father of Pvt. Barton, will be given the citation on behalf of his son.

The army and air force drill teams will put on a short drill demonstration. Cadet Colonel Bob Masingill, senior in business, will be commander of troops and Cadet Colonel Leo Nuttman, senior in geology and geography, will act as troop adjutant.

Two Inspection Teams

Two separate ROTC inspection teams are on campus today completing a check of the army and air force ROTC units. The air force team arrived last week-end from Hamilton air force base, Cal., and is composed of Col. Frank A. Flynn, Maj. Robert L. Nixon, Maj.

Charles J. Maloney, and Warrant Officer Lester O. Gardner.

The army team arrived from Oregon military district headquarters in Vancouver, Wash., and is composed of Col. Gamble, Lt. Col. Norris, and Warrant Officer Kamp.

University ROTC Compared

The inspection teams checked personnel of the military department, inspected unit files, visited classes and inspected individual cadets. Their findings will be used for comparison and rating of the Oregon military department and other colleges and universities.

The teams will visit William Jones, dean of administration, Tuesday morning and look over the facilities of the campus under the direction of Col. Bruns and Lt. Col. John Cunningham, head of the army ROTC unit.
