Reds Make Attack On Pork Chop Hill

Compiled by Andy Salmins
Emerald Assistant Wire Editor

(AP)—The Chinese Communists made probing attacks all along the 155-mile Korean front Monday, looking for a weak spot in allied defenses. There was a savage attack on Pork Chop hill, at the western end of the front, which covers the important allied supply center of Chorwon. Most of the 350 Chinese who stormed the hill in vain Monday did not get back to the Red lines.

Meanwhile the gloom in the United Nations over the Korean deadlock intensified after a two and a half hour long harangue by the Russian foreign minister Andrej Vishinsky declared that the Communists stand pat on their demands for the return of Red prisoners. Vishinsky rejected also the compromise plans of the Mexicans and the Peruvians on the grounds that these plans merely reflect United States proposals. Vishinsky also demanded a new United Nations committee to settle the Korean affair.

William Foster, deputy defense secretary, returned Monday to Washington from Korea and reported that the high command wants to step up the fight as forcibly as possible. He said also that so far as he knows there is no plan for a major offensive.

Prime minister Winston Churchill noted in London Monday night that every kind of reasonable proposal has been made by the Allies to get peace in Korea. Churchill said also, "There has been no doubt that so far it has been the policy of Moscow for reasons which are obvious to prevent an agreement from being reached."

It is no wonder, said Churchill, that the president-elect Eisenhower wants to view Korea with "Eisenhower's own experienced discerning eye."

The United States Eighth Army is already planning to pull down curtains on the visit of Eisenhower in Korea. The Associate Press learned in Seoul Monday that there will be such a blackout that the outside world won't even know that Eisenhower was in Korea until after he has left.

In Commons Monday, the former deputy prime minister, Herbert Morrison, referred to a new government in America and said this may lead to economic difficulties with the possibility of a world slump.

The Churchill regime, contended Morrison, has been too content to depend on American help without doing anything for its own serious economic condition. With that, a motion of no confidence in the Churchill government was introduced. The showdown is set tonight, and the Conservative leaders have blown the whistle for a turnout of all their men on the test.

Meanwhile the president of the Wall Street Journal, Bernard Kilgore, told a salesmen's convention in Columbus, Ohio, Monday that predictions of a coming depression aren't worth the paper they are written on.

Ike Gets Pat From Harry

(AP)—President Truman telegraphed a pat on the back to president-elect Eisenhower Monday. The president told his successor he picked eminently satisfactory men in Senator Lodge and Banker Joseph Dodge as the interim Republican watch-dogs in Washington. Meanwhile South Carolina Sen. Burnet Maybank has concurred with Virginia's Sen. Harry Byrd that Eisenhower can count on the Southern Democrats to help him in the congress. Maybank added, "I believe he will make out all right."

Self-confidence Stated by Taft

(AP)—Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft said Monday he might have done better than Eisenhower if he had been the party's candidate.

"I might not have won by a large majority," explained Taft, "but I think I might have won just as many states. I think we'd have carried more senators."

Republican representative Joe Martin disagreed, however. "I am inclined to think," he said, "that Eisenhower is the only man we could have won with this year."

Trygvie Lie To Resign

(AP)—The United Nations secretary general, Trygvie Lie, appeared suddenly on the floor of the UN General Assembly Monday and declared that he wants to resign from his job. He said that it would be better for the United Nations if he did so now, because, he added "I hope this may help the United Nations to save the peace." It is understood that the secretary general wants to quit because he believes that the Russians are so set against him because of his support of the United Nations action in Korea that perhaps the Korean affair might be settled if he got out.

Laborites Hit British Leader

(AP)—British laborites were talking about the chances of a financial bust in the United States Monday and tried to put Prime Minister Churchill's government on the spot.

In Commons Monday, the former deputy prime minister, Herbert Morrison, referred to a new government in America and said this may lead to economic difficulties with the possibility of a world slump.

The Churchill regime, contended Morrison, has been too content to depend on American help without doing anything for its own serious economic condition. With that, a motion of no confidence in the Churchill government was introduced. The showdown is set tonight, and the Conservative leaders have blown the whistle for a turnout of all their men on the test.

Race Riots Continue In South Africa

(AP)—Race rioting continues in the Union of South Africa. The natives of the East coast African port of East London completed their second day of pillaging and killing Monday.

The number of casualties in the battles between the police and the rioting Africans has not been disclosed. The natives are protesting against the South African government's segregation policies.

It is known that at least 22 persons were killed in Kimberley and East London over the weekend. A strike in Port Elizabeth has also been reported.

Leaders from Oregon State college and the University of Oregon will meet at 3:30 p.m. this afternoon in the Student Union to discuss the OSC-Oregon game and the possible problems before and after the game.

Pat Dignan, ASUO president, said that such meetings in the past have helped to alleviate problems arising from the rivalry between the schools.

Those attending the meeting will be the editors of the Emerald and the Barometer, presidents of the lettermen's clubs, yell kings, band leaders, ASUO and ASOSC presidents, and the dean of men. Si Ellingson will represent Ray Hawk, UO dean of men, since Hawk will be out of town.

New Street Lamps To Light Campus, Brings Total to 80

Five new street light fixtures are being installed this week in the area near the Science building, bringing to 80 the number of lights located throughout the campus, according to I. J. Wright, superintendent of the physical plant.

Numerous trenches have been dug along the sidewalks for electrical cable connections, which will be connected to a trunk line near Friendly hall.

Six light fixtures were installed around Commonwealth hall earlier in the term. Lights were first installed on the campus two years ago as part of the over-all campus beautification program.

Four seniors in the physical education department will participate in a discussion of student teaching tonight at 7 in Gerlinger hall.

Donna Beckius, Mary Ellen Holeman, Norma Munie and Joan Powers will discuss "What You Can Get Out of Practice Teaching." Mary Best from University High school and Wilma Ernest from Roosevelt Junior High, supervisors of the student teaching program, will also take part.

Mary Bowman from the Oregon state department and a representative from the education school will be present to ask and answer questions.
